

SUGGESTED COMMENT.
Hear Barkley, at the opera house Saturday night. He is a superior orator.
Turn out and see all of the Republican candidates at the opera house Saturday night.
The JOURNAL has decided not to purchase the Oregon Pacific railroad next Saturday.
Charley Moore, the "Mark Twain of Oregon," will entertain the public at the opera house Saturday evening.
Moore, Barkley, Hofer, Gessner and other Republican candidates will make brief talks at the opera house Saturday evening. Hear them.
The governor of Washington has been forced to move to the state capitol, heretofore having resided at Seattle. Oregon's governor will hereafter live at Salem.
The Popocrat combine against John Knight and L. V. Ehlen is growing quiet. Honest Populists resent the scramble for spoils, and prefer a Republican official to a sacrifice of principle on their part.
The campaign of education is nearing its close, and no doubt many of the candidates know more than they did at the start. They are still learning, and by June 5th many will receive another solid dose of information.
It seems that Swank, the joint senator candidate on the Populist ticket, agrees with Penroy on the trust business, for he belongs to the Miller's trust. In his own business affairs he is no doubt just as much of a gold-bug as his excoellency, too.
D. V. S. Reid, the Democratic candidate for state superintendent has just sent out circulars to teachers, invoking their support, and in a manner traducing his opponent. These circulars are signed by a list of teachers, who the reader is led to suppose are all voters, while in truth a number of them are ladies, from whose name the "Miss" or "Mrs." is purposely omitted. This is not "square," and savors too much of political trickery.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.
Local Correspondence from Towns in the Valley.
BROOKS.
Mrs. E. M. Savage's father and mother were down Tuesday.
Mr. Frank Evans and his sister Minnie and Lena drove to Salem Tuesday.
Mr. Brown was in town a few days this week looking after the flax industry.
E. K. Shaw and wife, P. Byrne and wife were the guests of G. B. Erwin at Silverton Sunday.
Miss D. Massey returned from Junction City Sunday and is visiting her brother Geo. Massey at present.
Mrs. M. L. Jones' brother and wife of Hubbard, also Mrs. Jones' sister, of Portland, were in the burg Friday.
The little folks of Brooks and vicinity gave Ralph Sturgis a pleasant surprise last Monday evening the occasion being his eleventh birthday.
FROM MARION.
A. F. Shultz, one of the proprietors of the Jefferson mills, of Jefferson, Or., was in town Tuesday.
Miss Weltha Farnham went to Salem one day last week, where she will remain for sometime.
The school here, taught by Myrtle Tomlinson, will close on the 5th of next month, with appropriate exercises.
How She Became a Missionary.
"I'm doing missionary work a good deal of the time," was the reply of one of the most charming women of New York, to a friend, who asked her how she busied herself. "I see by your looks you wonder what I mean by that. I'll tell you. A few years ago life was a burden to me. I had been a victim to female weakness of the most aggravated character for a long time, and the doctors failed to help me. Existence was a long, steady, terrible torture—a lingering, living death. One day I saw Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription advertised in the newspaper. Some time in the advertisement impressed me favorably. I caught at the glimmer of hope it held out as the drowning man is said to catch at a straw. Still, I did not dare to hope. But I got the medicine, and behold the result! I feel so well, so strong, and O, so thankful, that I go about telling other women what saved me. In no other way can I so well show my gratitude to God, and to the man who has proved such a benefactor of women, and my love for my suffering sisterhood."

INSPIRE COURAGE.
For more than thirty years Alcock's P. Porous Plasters have been doing their excellent work, relieving pain, inspiring men, women and children with new hope and new courage.
Pain is a great discourager. When all the muscles are sore, it is hard to keep a hope. Alcock's P. Porous Plasters and pain have no affinity for each other, one or the other must yield, and pain is the one to be defeated.
Place a high up between the shoulder blades and on the chest they are a sure cure for coughs; on the pit of the stomach they relieve indigestion; over the muscles they relieve strains and stiffness, and cure. Wherever there is soreness, they will cure.
Andrew's pills do not injure the stomach.
How Nice
Miss Nell is looking, Addie. Yes, Lillian. Why, only a year ago her face was completely covered with pimples, blotches and sores. She told mother that she owed her nice, clear complexion to her using Sulphur Bitters. Well, Lillian, I shall try them too.

$5 FOR CLIPPING A PET DOG.
Poodles of the Four Hundred Tenured According to the Current French Style.
A sign that looks new attracts passersby in front of a barber shop of Sixth avenue. It reads as follows: "Fashionable ladies' pet dogs clipped by an expert. Barber calls at residence."
The proprietor of the shop is a smart young Frenchman. He said he furnishes an expert poodle clipper at a moment's notice, and that he has the bulk of the business of shearing pet dogs in this city. It appears that the dog barber does not practice on gentlemen callers at the shop. He just attends to the poodle branch of the trade.
"Jean is out attending to Mrs. Frank Leslie's poodle this morning," said the shopkeeper. "He makes more at clipping the pets of fine ladies than some of the men in fashionable barber shops whose patrons are clubmen and millionaires. He could tell you many interesting things about his business if he were here. He suggested this branch of my business to me. One day he came into my shop and asked for a job. He said he could not shave well, but could cut hair artistically. He told me that in Paris he had made a good living by cutting the hair of the fashionable ladies' dogs, and he asked me to let him try the experiment in this city."
"One day he read a story about the pet dogs owned by the rich ladies of the city. He had some card-printed and mailed them to these ladies. It was not long before he received letters to call, and now we are thinking of hiring an assistant for him. He has made certain styles prevalent in Paris in clipping poodles all the rage here."
"What price is charged for clipping one of these pets?"
"Jean charges $5 for clipping, bathing and perfuming, and he often gets as much more as a gift from some of his wealthy patrons. Would you like to see some of these rich New York ladies have their pets done off golden dishes. When Jean was considering with me the proper price to charge, I thought it best to charge as high as $5, for unless you charge a great deal a rich woman will think you are not an artist. I told Jean he was an artist and should fix his price high, as all artists from Paris do."
"Jean tells me that the usual decoration consists in leaving the hair on the poodles full length in the form of little anklets about the necks, two little tufts on the hips and one on the back. The forelegs have anklets and knee bracelets, and the body is clipped close to the breast, up to an ornamental collar of long hair. A mustache is left on the muzzle, which is clipped smooth up to the eyes. The ears are left long and shaggy."—New York World.

TO STRENGTHEN HOPES.
The idea is suggested in a French journal that, in order to insure greater strength and consequently more safety in ropes used for scaffolding purposes, particularly in localities where the atmosphere is destructive of hemp fiber, such ropes should be dipped, when dry, into a bath containing 20 grains of sulphate of copper per liter of water and kept in soak in this solution some four days, afterward being dried. The ropes will thus have absorbed a certain quantity of sulphate of copper, which will preserve them a long time, both from the attacks of animal parasites and from rot.
The copper salt may be fixed in the fibers by a coating of tar or by soapy water, and in order to do this it may be passed through a bath of boiled tar, hot, drawing it through a thimble to press back the excess of tar and suspending it afterward on a string to dry and harden. In a second method the rope is soaked in a solution of 100 grains of soap per liter of water. The copper soap thus formed in the fiber of the rope is said to preserve it even better than tar.
The man who will not exert his resolutions who, they are fresh upon him can have no hope from them after ward. They will be dissipated, lost, stifled in the bustle of the world or swamped in the slough of indolence.
Do not seek to get away from the common, everyday things of life. In them is found the happiness and peace of mind that it may be you are looking for in opportunity and circumstances which he in times and places now far removed.—Montreal Star.

Saved Our Boy
A Clergyman's Statement
Constitutional Scrofula Entirely Cured.
"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: "Gentlemen: Wishing to tell what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for us, I will say that 3 years ago we had a beautiful boy born to us. When about six months old he took a sore throat. I had two doctors but all to no benefit. At the age of 11 months he breathed his last. Thus we laid in the grave. On Aug. 4, 1903, another boy was born to us. At the age of two months he became afflicted with the same disease. I believed the boy's trouble was constitutional, and not common sore throat. I procured a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and commenced to give it regularly to both mother and baby, and occasionally washed his mouth with a syrup of buck brush root. Improvement began at once. We have succeeded in eradicating the scrofulous blood from the system and today we are blessed with a nice fat baby boy, eighteen months old. He is the very picture of health."
All life and full of mischief—thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am a member in the Methodist Protestant church. I am here to back what I say and in no way interested in any profit in the matter, except the relief of suffering humanity.

General Hook's Prayer.
More than a score of times during his illness General Hook asked to have the Lord's Prayer repeated. Only the day before he died his eldest daughter, Mrs. Craig, had at his request knelt at his bedside and joined in the prayer with him, and when they had concluded the sick man said, "Charity, let us repeat it," and together the father and daughter again earnestly sent up that petition for guidance and comfort.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.
