PRES. CARNOT ASSASSINATED. President of the French Republic STABBED BY AN ITALIAN.

Supposed to be the Plot of the European Anarchists.

KILLED WHILE IN HIS CARRIAGE.

Police Protect His Murderer from Mob Violence.

LYONS, France, June 25.—Marie Francois Sadi Carnot, president of the French Republic, breathed his last at 12:30 a. m. He was assassinated Sunday evening by an anarchist. He was stabbed to the heart and died almost immediately. The president was visiting Lyons in connection with the international exhibition. Upon his arrival he was tendered a reception at the prefecture, after which he visited the exhibition. After passing some time at the exhibition, he proceeded to the Palais de Commerce, where a banquet was given in his honor. About 9:25 o'clock the president started for the theater, where a gala performance was to be given because of his presence in the city. Several carriages were in the procession, the first one being occupied by the president. Carnot's carriage was driven slowly along in front of the Palais de Commerce, and then turned into Rue de la Republique, still following the facade of the Palais. When half way down the street, which was lined with enthusiastic crowds of people who were loudly cheering, a man rushed out of the crowd and stepped upon the step of the president's laudau.

At this moment M. Carnot was waving his right hand in response to the ovation that was being given him. People close to the carriage saw that the man standing on the step had a knife in his hand. By the glare of the electric lights they saw the bright blade gleaming in the air as the assassin's arm descended, and then President Carnot was seen to fall back in his seat, his face deathly pale. One of his hands was pressed to his heart, where the steel had entered the body. M. Rivaud, perfect of Lyons, who was seated at the side of President Carnot, immediately struck the assassin a blow full in the face and knocked him from the step, thus preventing the man from stabbing the president again, which it was his evident intention to do.

Instantly cries of "the president is assassinated!" were heard on every side and the crowd swelled to enormous proportions, every member seemingly intent upon killing the assassin. He was grasped by a dozen hands, and his life would have then and there paid the penalty of his crime had it not been for several police who seized him and attempted to draw him away from his captors. This was found to be impossible, for the infuriated populace was determined to lynch the man. All efforts availed nothing beyond saving the man from instant death. Blows were aimed at his face, and he was raised on the shoulders of the police, who had by this time received reinforcements. At length the police succeeded in driving the howling mob back a foot or so from the prisoner, but to get the captive through the crowd was a physical impossibility.

The news had spread with lightning-like rapidity, and mounted guards were sent to the aid of the police, who were struggling to preserve the life of the assassin. With drawn sabers in their hands, the guards rode down into the crowd, heedless of whom the horses trampled upon. The crowd gave way before the horses, and at last the center of the mob was reached. Then a cordon was formed around the almost exhausted policemen and their captive, and their march to the police station began. Even thus surrounded, the prisoner was not safe, for men in the crowd made frantic efforts to reach him. The guards repelled these attacks with the flat sides of their swords, at the same time keeping watch of the crowd to prevent the prisoner from being shot. Maledictions were hurled upon the captive, and never before has such a wild and indignant demonstration against a human being been seen in this city.

Physicians were immediately summoned to the president, who had been conveyed to the prefecture. A careful examination was made of the wound and the doctors declared his condition hopeless. Excitement at the theater and all over the city is intense. The murderer is a young Italian anarchist, French flag, which were in abundance, were procured by the crowd, and with cries of "Down with the foreigners," "Out with them," hundreds of people marched to the Rue de la Barre, in which street the Italian consulate is situated. There is no doubt the consulate would have been attacked had it not been for the action of the police, who stopped the crowd and compelled its members to disperse. The excitement continues at fever heat and it would take very little to precipitate bloody riots. Threats are made to take summary vengeance upon the countrymen of Santo, and the authorities fearing that attempts will be made to put these threats into effect, sent couriers to patrol the city to prevent any outbreak.

Marie Francois Sadi-Carnot was born in Limoges in 1837. He held minor office until 1876, when he was elected to the chamber of deputies from Beaune, and became its secretary. In 1878 he was appointed under secretary of public works, in 1882 minister of finance. He held this position until 1886, when he was made president of the republic, to succeed Jules Grevy. His term of office would have expired December 4, 1894. He was a brilliant orator, and was famed for his power of recalling diverse and hostile elements.

PARIS, June 25.—Mme. Carnot, accompanied by her two daughters, left at 1 o'clock this (Monday) morning for Lyons. The news of the assassination of her husband was broken to her as tenderly as possible. She was almost prostrated with grief, but gave orders that preparations be at once made to convey her to Lyons. LYONS, June 25.—M. Carnot's last speech was delivered at the banquet given in his honor. He dwelt upon the success of the exhibition and said the same heart beats in all French breasts when it is known the honor and security of rights of the country are at stake. This same union of all Frenchmen formed a guarantee of the march toward progress and justice, to which it belonged to France to give an example to the world.

DEEP SYMPATHY FELT. PARIS, June 25.—Deep sorrow of dismay and anger prevails throughout France over the cowardly assassination of President Carnot. Telegrams of sympathy are pouring in from all points. Newspapers of all shades of opinion deplore the assassination. Throughout France flags are at half mast and public buildings are draped. Mme. Carnot, accompanied by her three sons, arrived at Lyons this morning. She proceeded immediately to prefecture, where the body of the late president reposes in state. The death chamber was cleared and the family left alone. It is stated Mme. Carnot desires the body embalmed and removed from Lyons to this city. The body is to lie in state in the chapel of Elysee palace. A strong detachment of troops is guarding the building in which Giovanni Santo, the assassin, is confined. On the boulevards, scenes of the greatest excitement were witnessed today. Several Italian flags were displayed, out of sympathy for France's loss and draped with crepe, were hoisted at and at least one torn into shreds. In every quarter a fierce demonstration against the Italian residents has taken place. Nearly all the Italian cafes and restaurants have been closed but if the feeling against the Italians is strong, the sentiment of hatred, with which the majority regard anarchists, is still stronger. Murderer Santo has boldly asserted that he is an anarchist. It is reported the police are convinced of the assassination of Carnot and the result of the plot.

THE WEAPON USED. The weapon used by the murderer was a long triangular blade of stiletto pattern. Upon the blade are engraved the words "Record of Toledo." The sheath of the weapon was of velvet with red and black stripes. President Carnot's last words were "Thank you, my friends, thank you." HIS SUCCESSOR. It is believed ex-Premier Casimir Perrier, now president of the chamber of deputies, has the best chance of succeeding the late president.

MOURNED EVERYWHERE. LONDON, June 25.—Following the precedent, adopted at the time of the death of Garfield, the British court will be in mourning out of respect to the memory of President Carnot. BERLIN, June 25.—The assassination of President Carnot has created a profound sensation in Berlin. All classes are indignant. Emperor William has telegraphed Mue. Carnot his condolences. WASHINGTON, June 25.—The death of President Carnot was the subject of the prayer by Rev. Mr. Millburn in the senate. After adopting resolutions of condolence, the senate adjourned until tomorrow.

HAD ACCOMPLICES. PARIS, June 25.—There no longer seems to be much doubt as to the assassination of Carnot being the result of an anarchistic conspiracy to avenge the deaths of Valliant and Emile Herr. Twenty detectives have gone to Cante, department of Herault, where Santo was recently domiciled to track down supposed accomplices. AMERICA BOWERS. WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—The following message was sent by the state department today: "Eustis, Ambassador at Paris, France: Express to the minister of foreign affairs the profound sorrow with which the president and the American people have heard of the atrocious crime which has robbed a sister republic of its wise, humane and patriotic chief magistrate." Gresham. MESSAGE TO CONGRESS. The president sent the following message to congress: "The shocking intelligence has been received that the president of France met his death yesterday at the hands of an assassin. This terrible event which has overtaken a sister republic cannot fail to deeply arouse the sympathy of the American nation, while the violent termination of a career promising so much in aid of liberty and in advancing civilization, should be mourned as an affliction to all mankind." (Signed) Grover Cleveland.

ROME, June 25.—Both Italian houses have been closed out of sympathy for France. The Italian government has sent a message sharing the grief into which France has been plunged by an Italian anarchist, a man without a country.

SANDY HOOK EXCURSIONISTS.

Seventy-Five Human Beings Sink at Sea.

A TERRIBLE SUNDAY FATALITY.

Crew Saved, but Nearly Forty Passengers Lost.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The tug, James D. Nichol capsized off Sandy Hook Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock with sixty-three excursionists and a crew of twelve. On the return trip, when about three miles out east the waves began to break heavily over her. To dodge the water and wind the passengers began to run around the port side and to climb on top of the deck-house. The boat careened and the water swept over the rail. The terror-stricken men rushed back to the starboard and the tug swung deeply on that side. At that moment heavy breakers struck the boat in quick succession. The captain, William Hayati, stuck pluckily to his post and sounded the whistle in a prolonged scream for help. Even as he did so the tug filled with water from both sides and sank out of sight. She went like a stone carrying many of the passengers with her.

MORE DETAILS. The disaster was rendered more harrowing by the fact that most of the men leave large families. It is thought not less than thirty-three have perished. So far, however, only seven bodies have been recovered. Captain John Hyde, commander of the ill-fated tug, is twenty-five years old. "I could count but fifty-eight passengers on the tug when she left the second stopping place at pier No. 3, East river, said Hyde today. "There were five men in the crew, making sixty-three all told. We were lying off Seabright, when the wind began to freshen up. We raised our anchor intending to leave. We were about three-quarters of an hour from shore. Passengers, thinking they might get wet, crowded to the port side. I asked them to divide and part take the starboard side but no heed was paid. The sea was somewhat choppy but not what could be called heavy. We were in no apparent danger except for the people crowding to the port side. I suddenly saw a heavy swell bearing down on us close by, followed by a second. I called again to the people to take the starboard side, but it was not done. When the first wave hit us I cried, "For God's sake get over to the other side." I pulled the whistle rope then a signal of distress and then, seeing great danger, tied it down. It kept blowing until Nichol went down. After the boat had careened under the second swell, Al Hammond, a deck hand, and myself climbed through the starboard windows of the pilot house and went overboard. The life raft was near the spot where the tug sank, and I made for it. There were passengers hanging to it, and their struggles capsized it. When I arose to the surface I managed to grasp it again. The crew of the boat were all picked up by the tug Sayre. I am not a drinking man and had touched no liquor whatever. Had the passengers acted as I told them, we would have come through all right."

IMPORTS OF WOOL.

Following table shows the import of wool for a number of years back and shows from what countries it came. It also shows how much wool came from each country with its value, so as to form an idea of the relative cost of the different kinds.

The information desired is obtained in detail for 71 years, from 1822 to 1893, in the report on wool and manufactures that was issued this year by Mr. Worthington C. Ford, chief of the bureau of statistics of the treasury department. It would occupy too much space to give the figures in full, but we give the aggregate of imports and the value of the wool at stated periods as follows:

Table with 3 columns: Year, Pounds, Value. Rows from 1822 to 1893.

Our receipts of wool from Europe never exceeded 50,000,000 pounds in any one year up to 1870, since when they have fluctuated from 79,716,031 pounds in 1880 to 107,927,736 pounds in 1893. From British North America the largest quantity ever received in a single year was 4,724,296 pounds in 1872. From Mexico we imported 2,384,654 pounds in 1890. From all South American countries our greatest imports were 38,409,516 pounds in 1872, but last year we took only 17,157,149 pounds, of which the Argentine Republic supplied 13,842,868 pounds.

Asia shipped us as much as 34,492,218 pounds of wool last year, which was by far the greatest quantity we ever received from there, and was doubtless due to the increase in our manufacturing of carpets. From Africa we obtained 16,173,465 pounds of wool in 1864, but last year only 2,158,415 pounds. The largest quantity of wool ever imported from the Australasian colonies was 15,359,722 pounds in 1892, but last year we took only 9,176,282 pounds from there. These figures, however, show only the direct shipments from the colonies, as much of our imports of Australian wool is included in the figures of receipts from England.

A rapid decline in the price of wool is plainly shown in the foregoing table. In 1880 we bought 124,483,227 pounds of wool for $23,090,064. In 1890 we paid out $5,200,000 less money, but got 2,200,000 pounds more wool. In 1893 we got 44,500,000 pounds more wool than in 1880 from foreign countries, and paid for it $2,500,000 less money than in 1880.
