THE COUNTY JAIL BREAK.

How Fred Van Wagner Escaped Prison.

OUR ROTTEN COUNTY BASTILE OPENED.

More Could Have Got Away Had They Desired Liberty.

Fred Van Wagner broke from the county jail Wednesday at 4 o'clock.

Chief of Police Mintz was on track of young Van Wagner six months before he got him for burglaries that would have sent him to state prison for ten years. Now he is free.

Van Wagner had access to the corridor that surrounds the cells and had only to break the lock off the door at the southeast corner. The lock was a heavy steel jail lock and had not been unlocked for many months. It was badly rusted. He probably stuck it with a piece of iron and broke it, then replaced it so that to all appearances the door was safe and solid, but he had only to wait for a chance to make his exit.

He walked out about 4 o'clock, walked quietly past the men who were hauling wood into the basement of the jail, walked out to Court street, crossed into the alley back of Eugene Breymann's residence. He crawled through a hole in the fence and hid himself under a porch of Mr. Chandler's house. A few minutes later policeman Latourette and Doh Savage appeared and asked if anyone had been seen. They had not. A few minutes later Mrs. Chandler went out to look under the porch when Van Wagner ran out and slipped down the alley and disappeared. He was seen again at the King place a few blocks north. Then he vanished.

Van Wagner is a fine looking man 28 years old, dressed in a light summer suit of blue cloth, black slouch hat, wears moustache, brown like his hair. Sheriff Knight and all his deputies were out all last night. They were assisted by the police force and a citizen's posse, but Fred was too sharp for them. He had not been seen or caught up with at noon today.

There were three other prisoners in the jail at the time, Robinson, Clark, and Buffum. They were sitting around reading papers that Deputy Sheriff Cooper had passed in to them ten minutes prior to Van Wagner's escape. So quietly did he make his escape that they did not notice him. These three men could have followed Van Wagner had they been disposed, and preferred to remain in jail and run chance of being acquitted at the next term of court.

AGAINST CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

The New City Ordinance Passed by the Council of Salem.

The following is the full text of the ordinance "Prohibiting Cruelty to Animals" passed at the session of the city council Tuesday night:

A mean thing in a Salem paper at a neighbor town causes the Albany Democrat to say: "Salem men who come here say Salem is worse off than any of the towns; but we are all in the same boat. The observations of transients don't amount to much. Times are not undoubtedly on the mend, and everybody should put in a stitch." What it says about Salem being "worse off" is not true, just the same.

Low Rates on Hops.

The Southern Pacific company announces that they will issue effective September 1, 1894, a special tariff on hops in carloads, minimum weight of 12,000 pounds, of $1.70 per 100 pounds, from Oregon terminal and intermediate points to Missouri river, Mississippi river, Chicago and points common therewith, Cincinnati, Detroit and common points, Pittsburg, Buffalo, and common points, and New York, Boston and Atlantic seaboard common points. This is nearly a 25 per cent. reduction and will be of great benefit to the hop growers of Oregon. The Southern Pacific company recognizes the fact of the present low prices being offered for hops and is willing to help the situation by reducing freight rates. E. P. Rogers, A. G. F. & P. THE BRANCH ASYLUM CASE.

It Is Argued Before the Supreme Court.

A FULL HISTORY OF THE INJUNCTION

And the Legislation Providing the Asylum.

The supreme court today listened to the argument on appeal, in an injunction suit brought in the third judicial circuit court, by a resident of Polk county, restraining the state board of commissioners of public buildings from locating a site for a branch insane asylum in Eastern Oregon.

The petitioner will be represented by able counsel, Messrs. Bonham & Holmes, Attorney Bigler and District Attorney McKane appearing in such behalf, while the board of commissioners, and incidentally Union county, will be represented by Ex-County Judge Moreland, of Multnomah and Hon. Thomas H. Crawford, a leading attorney of Union county.

HISTORY OF THE SUIT.

At the last session of the legislature, senate bill 192, introduced by Mallock, of Umatilla, was passed, providing for the erection of a branch insane asylum in one of the counties of Eastern Oregon. It constituted the governor, state treasurer and secretary of state, acting in their capacity as a board of commissioners, to select the site and provide for the construction of the proposed new state building. For securing such site and erecting the proper building the sum of $165,000 was appropriated, and the bill became a law, without the signature of Governor Penoyer, February 21, 1893.

Following the enactment of this law, throughout the various counties of Eastern Oregon there was intense rivalry to secure the location. Baker City, Union, Pendleton, Heppner and The Dalles all vied with each other to demonstrate to the members of the board that their particular locality was the only one suitable for the erection of the proposed building. It was thought that Pendleton, the home of the author of the bill, would carry away the prize, but when a decision was finally reached the pretty little town of Union was selected, and those who had been disappointed satisfied themselves with the fact that a branch asylum would be located in Eastern Oregon anyway.

The location of the site was to cost the state $23,000, and Thos. Wright of Union came to Salem to transfer the property to the state but that is as far as the work of providing a branch asylum has ever progressed. Opposition to the proposed erection of such a building soon manifested itself, as also it did against the building of a Soldiers' home at Roseburg. The main contention was that the constitution of the state provided that all state buildings should be erected within the boundaries of the state capital. Eastern Oregon retailed with a threat that if the opposition of Salem was manifested, a move might be made to submit an amendment to the constitution providing for the relocation of the state capital. This caused the proceedings to be carried with more caution and when the desired injunction was sought to restrain the board of commissioners the petitioners did not hail from Salem, but from beneath the shadows of the Polk county hills. The injunction was granted, and now, after the lapse of many months, the supreme court will finally settle the question.

A great deal of interest, says the Oregonian, is shown in Union as to the outcome of the suit, and, if a decision favorable to the erection of the branch asylum is reached, the work will probably be speedily commenced, so as to insure the retention of the $165,000 appropriation, which otherwise would be covered into the treasury at the close of the present year.

PLATFORMS AND PARTY DUTY.

Speaking of the railroad commission and the Republican party the Salem Independent says: "If the party does not wipe out this and other commissions after pledging themselves to it, what will the people do then? And what will Mr. Hofer do?"

What should any representative do, but stand upon his platform and do his duty by the people if the party managers will let him. The Democratic party managers in the present congress would not let the representatives of the people do their duty and pass a free sugar bill.

The managers sold the party out to the trust and will reap the reward of their treachery, both pecuniarily and politically. We cannot imagine such a state of affairs in the Republican party of Oregon as deliberately ignoring the main planks of the platform. In the McKinley congress, when the senate, then Republican, had passed a free silver bill, Harrison and McKinley deliberately combined to prevent the house of representatives coming to vote upon it. But free silver was not in the Republican national platform. It passed the senate with Democratic votes. But refusing to allow the representatives to come to a vote on that bill cost the Republican managers dearly. It snowed them under in 1892.

We assume the Republican managers in Oregon propose to keep their pledges to the people of this state. The Republican party is a pledge-keeping party. That is its record and its boast. Constituted as human organizations are, and full of uncertainties, treacheries and dishonesties, and a prey to every interest, as political parties are, it is not certain that all the propositions in the Republican platform, even with full and unlimited power, can be carried out completely. It would be a good thing for the people if they could. It will be a bad thing for the party if they can't.

WHAT ARE THE FACTS?

The Albany Democrat copies with great gusto the following from the Salem Democrat, now conducting the Salem Statesman:

"My bill for the erection of a public building at Salem has passed the senate two or three times, and also my bill for the erection of a public building at Baker City was reported favorably and passed at the last session of the senate."—Senator Dolph in Monday's Oregonian. But "my bill" failed to pass. "My bill" is good to talk about, but the same old story will, after a time, come to bear the flavor of the chestnut.

The facts in the case do not reflect upon Dolph. The Salem public building bill has repeatedly passed the senate but failed in the house.

These Democrats should damn the Democratic administration that has bankrupted the nation's treasury, created a big deficit and cut down the national revenues so that for the first time in twenty-eight years they will not pay the running expenses of government, to say nothing of erecting new public buildings.

As has been fully stated in THE JOURNAL, no public buildings bill of any character was passed by the present congress. Then why slur Senator Dolph?

MORE BAD SPELLING.

ED JOURNAL.—Will you kindly oblige me by making the following corrections. In my communications as published in Monday's JOURNAL, I am not responsible for the word "about" after "think," which changes the meaning of the sentence; nor for the entirely superfluous quotation marks around the expression "takes the cake"; nor for the mis-spelling of the word "pabulum".

These are small mutilations compared to those that Mr. Clark complained of, a few days ago, but as my manuscript was type-written and fairly well-spelled and grammatical, I do not see why you should have turned your language-butcher loose on it at all.

[The above is from the author of an able communication on government control of railroads. The mysteries of a composing room can never be fathomed by writers or proof readers. The average type setter probably does the best he or she knows how. A great many seem to think that "setting up" the English language requires no better knowledge of it, than to write articles, teach school or preach sermons. That is a mistake.]—ED. JOURNAL.

The cows are all thoroughbred Jerseys. I consider my work correct, as I have had ample experience in sampling and analyzing.

The following are the results of the fat determination on skim and butter-milk made March 2, 1893: Skim-milk-cream gathered by DeLaval No. 2 separator; temperature 85 degrees; Jersey milk: fat, a bead about the size of a pinhead, too small for reading. Buttermilk-ripened cream, churned at 64 degrees; time of churning, 20 minutes; churned in Davis No. 2 churn. About six quarts of water were used for rinsing down the churn. Amount of butter, 38 pounds; fat, a bead about the size of a mustard seed, too small for reading.—E. Tarbell in Rural New Yorker.

The Columbian Cheese Test.

It is known that the Guernseys will have to meet the lightest charge of food consumed. The Jerseys are 214 pounds ahead of the Guernseys in yield of greener cheese, which is very comfortable margin to hold against the credit which the latter will have in the least cost of food eaten. After the cheese is cured, scored and valued, and account taken of increase or decrease in live weight, the relative standing of the breeds in the cheese test will be accurately determined.

Florida Mosquito Guards.

"You can talk about mosquitoes as much as you please," said C. P. Burdick, "but the largest, fiercest and most numerous in the United States can be seen and felt in the northern portion of Florida about Baldwin. It is the only place I ever saw men wear 'mosquito guards,' but there they are a necessity to those who work in exposed places. A sort of trap or coop is made, fitting around the neck and extending above the head. Around this is fastened as fine a mosquito bar as can be procured. Of course there is very little weight attached to it, and while at first it bothers the eyes yet it does not take a great while to get used to it. I wore one for a week there, and if I should return I certainly would not be without the protection of a 'mosquito guard.'"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

It was in a bottle sent out by the hydrographic office for the purpose of experimenting with ocean currents and had traveled 660 miles in 152 days.—Baltimore Sun.
