Printers Ink, the great Advertiser's Guide, says in a recent issue, "The Salem Oregon, CAPITAL JOURNAL is the first one-cent paper established on the Pacific coast and the only one west of the Rocky Mountains. Not all the readers of a one-cent paper belong to a one-cent class of people, as many busy men purchase a penny paper because its matter, being more condensed, is more quickly read. The newspaper or magazine which reduces its subscription price will not lessen its value as an advertising medium if the quality of its reading matter is kept up to the standard."

LATE NEWS ITEMS.

Eugene's hammerless shot gun factory commenced work Tuesday.

Miss Edith, daughter of J. V. Pies deputy postmaster at Albany, died on the 9th, after a brief illness with the scarlet fever.

A cottage Grove boy has thirty hens, which laid 354 dozen of eggs from January 1, 1893, to August 30, 1894, worth about $70. The entire cost of feeding was $5.75. And yet some people claim that hens do not pay.

A few days ago a Sherman county farmer drove thirteen hogs into Rufus which weighed 490 lbs., and eight of them weighed 500 pounds each. For these he received 5 cents a pound, and they were fed on damaged wheat that he could not sell at any price. This is a very successful experiment of feeding grain to hogs, and one that will pay better than selling wheat at 30 cents a bushel.—The Dalles Mountaineer.

An apple tree in Prof. Johnson's yard in this city yielded a big crop this year. It is of the Baldwin variety, and bore fully 25 bushels of apples, and when picking time came there were about 16 bushels of good sound apples on the tree. At the present prices this would make the yield of that one tree about $5.40, or at the rate of over $7000 per acre. At that rate there would be money in raising apples, as there is comparatively no expense in gathering and preparing for market.—Eugene Register.

History vs. Romance.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—In the interest of history as well as of truth and "veracity" permit me to segregate the facts from the romance in the story of the "Fruitful Murderer," as told to the Portland Telegram by a new member of the Portland police force during the dog watch. The statement that "it's a little more than thirty years ago that we had no higher courts than justice courts in the interior of Oregon, and Jack Griffin was tried before a Yamhill county justice near Lafayette, for killing a rancher in a quarrel," requires a little manifestation in order to make a correct history. No justice of the peace ever had such jurisdiction in the territory of Oregon and no such justice ever sentenced any man in Yamhill county to be hung.

The facts of history out of which the romance has been spun are as follows: Hon. D. C. Pratt, the celebrated Chesterfield gentleman, held the first circuit court in Yamhill county in 1869, which is 45 years ago. He was succeeded by Hon. Geo. H. Williams, and he by Hon. R. P. Hale, in 1880 who remained upon the bench until 1881. It is but a matter of justice and truthfulness to say that no other judge ever dispensed justice that these three learned and eminent justices.

"A little over thirty years ago" there was a man by the name of "Hill" who was tried before Judge Hale for the crime of murder, but his name was Robert Griffin and not Jack Griffin. As he was the only man ever hung in that county he is evidently the "Hill"

Griffin" referred to. The facts in his case are these:

Z Griffin was a harmless, peaceable and quiet old blacksmith of the town and boarded with an old lady whom Griffin was trying to court. A much younger man by the name of Shane was also boarding with the widow, and to spite and irritate Griffin, Shane pretended to court the widow and tried to poison her mind against Griffin. The scurrilous remarks of Shane rankled in the feeble mind of the old man till he became reticent, melancholy and almost insane. After some weeks he tied his clothes in a bundle, put them in his shop, and taking a revolver walked into Shane's store where Shane was sitting, and after saying "you called me an old gut," he drew his gun and shot Shane through the heart. Griffin then walked out but made no effort to escape. When Henry Warren, the sheriff, who lived eight miles from Lafayette, came to town the next day, Griffin was arrested and put in jail.

Griffin never denied any fact in the case, and made no effort to escape or leave the jail, although it was reported that the sheriff was not very careful to see that it was always locked, and no watch was employed, while the sheriff seldom visited him except to carry him his meals.

There was quite a general desire that Griffin should escape, as he was known to be quiet and inoffensive, while his executor was known to be a vicious and dangerous man. An old-fashioned gallows was erected, about a quarter of a mile from the jail, which could only be reached through a winding, narrow road through the tall dense thickets of oak growth. On the day of the execution, at Warren's urgent request, the writer, the sheriff and Griffin walked alone and without arms through the brush down to the gallows.

Griffin was neither tied nor bound in any way, and no effort was made to prevent his dodging into the brush if he so desired; and if he had done so, "the brush was altogether too thick for us to have followed him," as the sheriff said. The gallows stood for months thereafter, but the "superstition," the "preserved hat," and the "Lafayette town museum," have no existence except in the mind of the romancing "new member."

It should require "a little more than thirty years," before the romancing historian begins to imitate the legendary history of the ancients, which may, perhaps, like the story of the Telegram, have a grain of truth as a foundation for its wonderful stories. But it would be less irritating perhaps, for such historians to wait until the old Yamhillers had passed away, and then almost any fish story would find ready and willing swallowers about Lafayette, Oregon.

The trial of Lorin Parker, indicted by the grand jury of Harney county, charged with the murder of Bud Howard, the murderer of Eli Glaze, resulted to the jury bringing in a verdict of manslaughter and recommending him to the mercy of the court. The Burns News says of the case: "Many ladies attended the Parker trial several days; being the first murder case ever tried in Burns made it of absorbing interest to even those not particularly concerned for the welfare of the young man accused. The Burns church was never before so crowded as Wednesday evening by men, women and children to hear the argument in the case of State vs. Loren Parker for killing Bud Howard; Thornton Williams, Deputy District Attorney, and M. R. Briggs for the State and Walters & Gowen, and C. W. Parliuh for the defendant. This case has occupied the court from Saturday 9 a. m. to Wednesday 10 a. m. exclusive of Sunday. Jury reported at 9 a. m. Thursday of manslaughter; recommended to the mercy of the court."

INDIAN WAR VETERANS.—T. B. Walt has issued the following call: "By order of Grand Commander T. A. Wood, I call a meeting of all the Indian war veterans in Polk and Marion counties to meet in the A. O. U. W. hall over the State Insurance office at 1 o'clock, Nov. 17. Important business will come before the meeting. Come or send your son or daughter to represent you."

Resolved.—At a special meeting of the board of directors of school district No. 24, the following resolutions were adopted: "Resolved, that the board will not demand from the county court, of Marion county, Oregon, the proportion of the taxes of the year 1893, belonging or due to this district which are now delinquent and unpaid, and for which a sheriff's sale of the property assessed is now being conducted, until the amounts due for such delinquent taxes are collected by said county or until the lawful period has elapsed for a sheriff's deed to issue for the property sold; provided that this district shall not be liable for costs incurred in connection with the sale of such property as aforesaid."
