CAPITAL JOURNAL PUB. CO.

Printers Ink, the great Advertising Guide, says in a recent issue, "The Salem Oregon, CAPITAL JOURNAL is the first one-cent paper established on the Pacific coast and the only one west of the Rocky Mountains. Not all the reader of a one-cent paper belong to a one-cent class of people, as many busy men purchase a penny paper because its matter being more condensed, is more quickly read. The newspaper or magazine which reduces its subscription price will not lessen its value as an advertising medium if the quality of its reading matter is kept up to the standard."

ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

NO. 12.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—One of the impressions I got in looking over the now abandoned World's fair grounds was the thought that here Chicago had taken possession of many thousand acres of land on short notice, and spent twenty millions of dollars for pleasure—to advertise the city—and it is today the best advertised and best known city in the world.

Now all is chaos and ruin except the art building. What a mighty effort for bombast and amusement! Of course, there are educational and esthetic values flowing from the Columbian Exposition of incalculable value. The dominant thought is however, that all that vast expenditure and the carrying of millions to and fro gave employment to much labor. No doubt, but that a war would have come sooner but for the work here supplied.

Now, the thought is why shall thousands of acres and twenty millions not be at command for some useful purpose, as well as for pleasure? If ten thousand acres could be laid off in forestry here in this prairie state of Illinois, it would not only give employment to thousands of persons, now, but for all time in the future, but it would benefit the state and prove a source of wealth.

Treep-planting on a large scale, under proper state control would crowd no other industry, would benefit the climate and take up surplus labor. Forestry employs millions of laborers and is a source of great revenue in Europe, and we have come to the point where we must invent labor as well as labor-saving machinery. We have been expending all our resources on the latter.

IN THE STUDIOS.

I spent sometime at Chicago in the studio of artists and sculptors—some of great renown. Carl Rosi-Smith has the studio of the Woman's Temple; where he is working out the figures for the $100,000 Iowa soldiers' monument to be erected at Des Moines. It is a place of wonderful interest to an Iowan and as a member of an allied order to the G. A. R. the work now in progress is the hands of this Danish artist, who created some of the most imposing figures at Jackson Park, possessed a peculiar charm. If there is such a thing as a sculpture for the masses they will realize it at the hands of Rosi-Smith. He is a man of great vigor of expression, as well as a deep student and interpreter of the common—human—burde. One of his figures represents a veteran at home after the war is over, stripping off his army jacket, a free man again, glad it is all over, returned to the freedom of civil life, all restraint and discipline at an end.

The feeling that the nation once again breathes free comes from every line of the figure. So matchlessly has he wrought out the idea that a genius tells the story. It is the heroic coming to well deserved repose. The figure is simple, but expressive so much. The clash of arms dies away in the sweater melodies of peace and restored families.

When we arrived at the studio an Iowa lady was posing as the model for one of the female figures, and we had to come again. The sculptor's wife is a very sweet Danish lady of the nobility and is her husband's almost constant helpmate, companion and a charming person to meet. As we entered, Geo. M. Pullman, of sleeping car fame and General Miles, the Indian fighter, came away. They are having busts made. I attended one of the free lectures at the new Chicago Art Institute, given by George L. Schreiber, who is also art lecturer at Armour Institute. He lectures before large and fashionable classes at Kenosha and elsewhere. The large lecture room was filled a few minutes after it was opened. The lecture was the first of a course of twenty, the second course Mr. Schreiber is employed to deliver here in the largest art institute in the new world. After holding the attention of several hundred art students for an hour, he escorted them through the galleries to give practical effect and illustration to his text. This is free education in the arts to the masses of the people. Mr. Schreiber is animated by a thorough passion for his life work, and has spent many years of hard work with the best masters of Europe. He is a typical young American.

GERTRUDE HOME.

This is a beautiful new apartment building on Forty Seventh street, near Grand Boulevard. It is the Froebel Pestalozzi house of the new world. A part of the work of the Chicago Kindergarten Institute, this home for the young women students of the Froebel system, is peculiarly fitted for its purpose.

At a low price the most perfectly appointed suites and chambers are here supplied to the girls who come to a large city to become trained Kindergartners. There are no servants but so operative kitchen, dining room and laundry, equipped with the latest conveniences, afford opportunities for self-help and economy.

The girls arise at 6:15, breakfast at 7, go to the institute down town at 8. In the afternoon and evening, they can hear lectures on music, literature and art, or go at practical Kindergarten work in various parts of the city. A girl once started cannot but go ahead and develop all that is best in her and grow to be a useful and self-sustaining woman.

Wipe it Out.

ED. JOURNAL: The American Book Company should be asked and compelled to take a back seat, and let the state of Oregon select her own school books. Let us have such histories as does not cast reflections upon the heroic deeds of the old veterans of the G. A. R. The American Book Company's U. S. history has many objectionable features. Some are belittling the brave deeds of the defenders of our country's flag, and in another place it falsely states that John Brown was hanged as a traitor which is false. The writer of this article was acquainted with John Brown and knew him to be loyal to his country and flag, yet this book which is forced upon us, to enlighten the minds and mould the opinions of our youth, is for reading. We cannot come to any other conclusion than that they are trying to mitigate the dark deeds of the rebellion by false histories. I am down on the American Book monopoly. I would rather my child should be deprived of any knowledge of our nation's history than to learn to distrust the defenders of my country and flag. We do not see the dark deeds that were practiced in the prison pens of Andersonville or Libby. They would be too horrible, but we do see in that a tendency to misrepresent some of the defenders of our dear old dad.

Right Arm Paralyzed!

Saved from St. Vitus Dance.

"Our daughter, Blanche, now fifteen years of age, had been terribly afflicted with rheumatism, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. We feared St. Vitus dance, and tried the best physicians, with no benefit. She has taken three bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine and has gained 3 pounds. Her rheumatism and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid."
