ADVERTISING RATES. Want ads, 3 lines 3 insertions, 25 cts.

Printers Ink, the great Advertising Guide, says in a recent issue, "The Salem Oregon, CAPITAL JOURNAL is the first one-cent paper established on the Pacific coast and the only one west of the Rocky Mountains."

THEY CAN BE REGULATED.

Justice Brewer of the United States supreme court has decided that the maximum freight rate law of Nebraska is constitutional, but declares that the rates named in the law are too low.

The Nebraska law has been suspended in the courts a year and a-half, the reduced rates having never been put in force.

Railroad managers have great reason to be elated over Brewer's decision. As they have the disposition of traffic earnings they have only to see to it that those earnings are consumed up to a given point and freight rates need never be lowered except by such competition as cannot be forestalled by the railroad pool.

QUEEN HELENA REJOICES.

As was intimated in an editorial letter to the JOURNAL, Helena was destined to win the location of the state capitol. By vote of the people at the recent election the Silver Queen of the Rockies is made the permanent seat of government of Montana.

The book trust papers continue to talk against a change, as though that were the issue. It is a six years' contract at face prices that is not wanted.

Few people are getting excited over the Portland exposition. The day when an enterprise of that kind could be boomed by a few free passes to the editors of the state is past.

The old seat is under the sod, and the new one promises greater freedom for his people. Velly, an occasional funeral is a good thing, even among the royalty.

Salem proposes to place clean men in office at the coming city election.

PENNOYER'S PARDONING POWER.

Portland Sun: "Does Governor Pennoyer give notices of his pardons to the newspapers now?" queried a Salem gentleman recently. "There is an opinion in the capital city that he does not," he continued. "Some time ago a petition for the pardon of a convict sentenced from this county was circulated, and, as I understand it, received the indorsement of the district attorney. Several of the convict's friends, myself among them, read the newspapers constantly, in the hope of seeing the customary notice published when a pardon is granted, but no such notice appeared. One day, while walking down Commercial street, I met my friend, the convict, and, on halting him, learned that he had been out of the penitentiary for more than a week. I mentioned this fact to several citizens of Salem, and one of them recollected that he had seen on the streets two or three convicts whose sentences had not expired. They had probably been pardoned, but notices of that fact had not appeared in print. It is understood in Salem that the governor is a little 'touchy' on the pardoning question since the newspapers scored him for exercising his prerogative so, as the public thought, indiscriminately some time ago. Probably he wants to escape a repetition of it by keeping his pardons to himself."

About two weeks ago Mrs. Filkins, the wife of a rancher living near North Powder, wandered away from her home in the night time, while probably temporarily insane, and yesterday a party of searchers found her dead body clothed in her night-dress. Her body was found about one mile from the house, shockingly mangled and partially devoured by coyotes. Full particulars have not yet been received, but it appears that on the evening before her mysterious disappearance, Mrs. Filkins quarreled with her husband, and sometime in the night, while partially deranged wandered away into the hills and subsequently died from hunger and cold. It is likely that the woman was finally too weak to reach aid, even if she became rational. After her disappearance her husband was under a cloud of suspicion, which, it now seems, was a great injustice to him.—La Grande Chronicle.

Democra is so scarce that Salem will not have a Democratic ticket in the field this year.

Next year Salem ought to have the best state fair ever known in Oregon's history.

Salvini, the great tragedian, is playing at the Marquam in Portland this week.

The good prices for dried fruit this year are giving that industry quite an impetus.

A state teachers' institute for the first judicial district and Josephine county was held at Grants Pass, Nov. 19, 20 and 21.

Budd may be a vice presidential candidate, but that is far from being vice president.

Salem people should patronize home institutions first, last and all the time.

Notice Primary Election.
