There was less freight yesterday morning than any other day this season, all of the freight arriving yesterday not being sufficient to pay the running expenses of one boat. The four boats, the Altona, Hoag, Modoc and Eugene, were all lying at their docks at the same time last evening. They also remained over night, departing for their various destinations this morning.

The Oregon City Transporation company has placed in its office at Salem a complete shipping guide containing schedules of all ccean and river steamers and trains in this state. This will be of great value to shippers and the traveling public in general, as it shows precisely where connections are made. All changes in sailing dates will be recorded in this bulletin twice a week.

The marquise vies with the oval cluster for supremacy, while the five stone circlet is gaining merited favor. In five stone circlets, as a rule, all the stones are of the same description, though contrasts are preferred by some. In the cluster ring the opal is much in use as a central stone. In fact, this beautiful gem is largely employed in marquises and circlets.

Turquoises, pearls and opals are perhaps the most popular stones for marquise ring centers. All diamond marquises and also close set marquise rings are finding a ready sale.

Children's rings are to an extent repetitions of ladies' rings on a smaller scale. Narrow gold circlets, with fancy settings, misses' marquise rings in turquoises and pearls or rose diamonds only are among the prominent styles.

Seal and intuglio rings, chased or plain, in Roman or yellow gold, set with jade, lapis lazuli, bloodstone or garnet, cut in angular or oval forms, are staples among jewelry for men's use. Initial rings also hold an established position. - Jewelers' Circular.
