

A Weak Digestion

strange as it may seem, is caused from a lack of that which is never exactly digested—fat. The greatest fact in connection with appears at this point—it is partly digested fat—and the most weakened digestion is quickly strengthened by it.

Scott's Emulsion

The only possible help in Consumption is the arrest of waste and renewal of new, healthy tissue. Scott's Emulsion has done wonders in Consumption just this way.

A SUNDAY FOX HUNT.

An Impromptu Chase That Brought Mortification to the Participants.

Benjamin S. Rupp of Talmage, Wis., tells this story of his personal experience:

"One Sunday about a year ago I mounted a horse often used for fox hunting to ride down to the back pasture lot to give the calves a bit of salt, and, as usual, my four hounds followed. It was a beautiful, clear morning, just after a rain, with the roads decidedly muddy. Suddenly over toward Earville I heard a pack of hounds on a hot trail. So did my horse and dogs. My horse was bound to go, and as I could not keep the dogs back, and fearing they would be lost, I thought I would go a little way up the hill and see what the racket was about. My horse was so excited that I could not hold him.

"I passed several straid old Mennonites going to church and splattered them full of mud, but I pulled my hat down, looked solemn and as if crying, and they thought I was going for a doctor. I had not run a mile till I had met Sam Carpenter, who has ten dogs; Sylvester Miller, who has ten dogs; and who were out salting their calves and could not hold their horses any better than I could. As we went on, at some crossroads or forks we met Rudy Frankhouser, Jacob Sowers, Roland Royer, John Sowers, Martin Balmer, Mart Kuppenhafer, Adam Hoover and about 20 more who had gone out that morning also to salt calves. It was a regular salting day, and I never knew that there were so many calves in West Earl township, and that they were all given a lick of salted bran on the same day. It was a really singular coincidence. Now, some of the men were riding barebacked, some were on mules, some only with blind bridles on their steeds; none was dressed for either church meeting or fox hunting.

"It was the most innocent party I ever saw, and they did all they could to curb mules and horses and call off the hounds. But the trail was hot and the dogs eager. We might just as well have whistled jigs to milestones and expect them to dance. So the hunt went on, and we could not stop it. We ran to Farmersville, then to Hinkleton, next to Vogansville and wound up at Groffdale—about 50 riders who had all gone out in the most pious way on Sunday morning to salt calves in the back lots and were led astray by circumstances over which they had no control. The worst of the whole matter was that that infernal fox, possessed by the devil, took us by every church in the neighborhood. He almost ran into one church, and we were forced to ride by—splattering mud in all directions, scaring the old people and taking the thoughts of the young folks off sacred things.

"When we first started, we tried to make the people believe we were after a thief, the doctor, priest, or that we thought we were late for church service and so were riding fast and furious. But this racket would not do. There were too many of us and 100 dogs on a hot trail. We pulled our horses and mules and shouted at the wicked, ungodly dogs, but no good. He had a through ticket at special rates and could not stop off. There were all kinds of creeds among us riders, and that fox took us by our respective churches. The preachers saw us, our elders, deacons, our wives, daughters and sweethearts behind us, and every one wept great weeps."—New York Advertiser.

A CUNNING REPTILE.

The Various Clever Devices He Used to Deceive His Discoverer.

A correspondent of The Popular Science News tells the following strange story:

While searching for snails I turned over an old log and disturbed a snake, called by our negroes a "spreading arrow." The tactics pursued by this snake were curious.

First he erected his head and neck and flattened them out till they seemed no thicker than cardboard, thus increasing his apparent size, as he took care not to be seen edgewise. The shape of his head changed. It took a pronounced triangular form—similar to the heads of our most venomous snakes. Then his tail, with the aid of a dry leaf, was proclaiming that it was the tail of a rattlesnake.

All this, coupled with an ominous hiss, was calculated to strike terror to the heart of his discoverer, as for a moment it did. I regained my courage, however, and began to poke the serpent gently with a stick, when, finding "bluster" of no avail, he sought safety in flight.

Repeated "headings off" showed him how futile were his efforts in that line, and he altered his tactics again. He turned on his back and remained motionless. I threw him six feet from the ground, and so quickly did he turn over that he seemed to strike on his back.

Once on his back, nothing could induce him to move. Tapping, prodding, twisting his tail—all were in vain. Then I suspended him from the limb of a tree, retreated a little and watched.

At the end of two minutes the reptile moved. Slowly he turned on his spinal column as on an axis, surveyed the premises, and seeing nothing dangerous dropped to the ground and was making off.

At my approach he died again. After sundry proddings, which failed to move him, I rewarded him for his cleverness by giving him the liberty that he certainly had earned.

SEALS ARE FOND OF MUSIC.

And Hunters Use Sweet Sounds to Get Them Within Reach.

"Seals are very fond of music," said C. L. Tompkins of New Bedford, Mass., "and the hunters who pursue them most successfully usually make use of some musical instrument to attract them. I have a distinct recollection of the first seal hunt I ever went on. Early one morning I, in company with about a dozen others, set out in a rowboat for a spot where the seals were said to be plentiful. The boatmen dipped their oars slowly in the water and sang in unison a weird, wild song in a peculiar undertone. To me, being uninitiated in the sport, this seemed to be a curious accompaniment to the seal hunt, but I was still more surprised when one of the men produced a flute and played on it a quaint, sympathetic air.

"The effect of the music was soon evident, as dozens of seals poked their heads up, some remaining basking on the water, while others clambered up on the ledge of rock, charmed almost to unconsciousness by the music. Steering the boat to the shore, the musician alighted the while keeping up the plaintive air, one of the men jumped out. He carried with him a huge club and a long sharp knife. Nobody's guessing to whom some of the seals were lying on the rocks listening intently to the music, he dealt one of them a terrible blow on the head with the club, stunning it, and then made short work of the poor animal with his knife. In the same manner we secured 11 fine seals before night."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Brush That Bites Do Hurt.

An antidotal brush, says Cassell's Family Magazine, has just been patented the use of which does away with any necessity for sprinkling floors with water, tea leaves, sand or any other medium for preventing the rising of dust during the sweeping of uncarpeted floors. The brush itself is circular in shape and is surrounded by a metal reservoir in which is carried a disinfecting fluid, "sterodine" by name. In the ordinary way the brush is used right, but if the dust begins to rise the pressing of a peg in the handle allows the liquid to revolve and at the same time charge it with the fluid.

Rheumatism and Scrofula

P.P.P. purifies the blood, builds up the weak and debilitated, gives strength to weakened nerves, expels diseases, gives the patient health and happiness where sickness, gloomy feelings and loss of hope prevail.

For primary, secondary and tertiary syphilis, for blood poisoning, mercurial poison, malaria, dyspepsia, and in all blood and skin diseases, like blotches, pimples, old chronic ulcers, tetter, scald head, boils, eruptions, eczema—we may say without fear of contradiction that P.P.P. is the best blood purifier in the world, and makes positive, speedy and permanent cures in all cases.

Ladies whose systems are poisoned and whose blood is in an impure condition, due to menstrual irregularities, are particularly benefited by the wonderful tonic and blood cleansing properties of P.P.P. Prickly Ach, Poke Root and Potassium.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Aug. 14th, 1893.

I can speak in the highest terms of your medicine from my own personal knowledge. I was afflicted with heart disease, pleurisy and rheumatism for 25 years. I was treated by the very best physicians and spent hundreds of dollars, tried every known remedy without success. I have only taken one bottle of your P.P.P., and can cheerfully say it has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I can recommend your medicine to all sufferers of the above diseases.

FORCED TO TAKE A TITLE

Its Acquisition Forbidden by Law.

CONTRARY TO THE CONSTITUTION.

How It Has Been Fastened on a Newspaper.

The Constitution of the United States forbids the acquisition of titles.

In the far west not much respect is paid to titles. Nearly every man is a "Colonel" or an "Honorable."

It is so little thought of that many men prefer to be called plain John Smith, Til Ford, Jo Simon.

But titles are sometimes conferred by accident, and become a really good handle to catch hold of. In that case the people catch on and use the handle right freely and properly.

A CURIOUS CASE.

A stack of letters is received at this office in every mail and while many of them are printed in large letters "The One Cent Daily, Salem Oregon," a great many are written and there is a great variety of ways of writing it. Here are some of the forms:

"1 ct. D., Salem, Or."
"1ct. DAILY, Salem, Or."
"ONE CENT DAILY, Salem, Or."
"THE ONE CENT DAILY, Salem, Or."
"THE ONE CENT DAILY JOURNAL, Salem, Or."
"THE GREAT ONE CENT DAILY JOURNAL, Salem, Or."
"THE HONORABLE ONE CENT DAILY JOURNAL, Salem, Or."

That's a queer title for a newspaper to get isn't it? About the last on earth, anyone would think of!

"THE HONORABLE!"

Just think that over, what it means in connection with journalism.

Honorable with itself.
Honorable with the people.
Honorable with its readers.
Honorable in its politics.
Honorable with its contemporaries.
Honorable in all its dealings.
Honorable towards other communities.
Honorable towards every human being.

That's what a newspaper should be.

Perhaps?
Perhaps what?
Perhaps this is all a lie.
Maybe it is.

But the people keep on addressing their letters

HON. ONE CENT DAILY, Salem, Or.

In every mail come orders with the money. It is true the amounts are small. But they aggregate enough to pay our paper bills, to pay Mrs. Jones her rent, to pay our employes, to pay the Water Company for power to run our press, to pay the Electric Light Co. for lights in the office, to pay for ink, to pay the cabbage head editor who worries the Statesman and Oregonian so. We don't know what would become of them if we had real live editors like they've got, instead of just a common dutch cabbage head.

But the orders keep coming for THE ONE CENT DAILY.

25 cents in silver for a month.
50 cents in silver for two months.
$1.00 in silver for 121 days. (Do not send stamps).

We can't stop them sending in the orders.

But we can and do stop THE ONE CENT DAILY when you time is out. No papers sent but what you pay for.
