The Hon. George W. McBride Remembered.

A NEAT SURPRISE PERPETRATED.

By the Chairman of the House and Senate Ways and Means Committee.

Dagany Discharged.

Dagany, the saloonkeeper who kept his saloon open after 12 o'clock Saturday night March 16, was given a jury trial Saturday afternoon in police court before Justice of the Peace, Ed. N. Edes. The jury consisted of Frank F. Post, A. B. Smith, Geo. Anderson, E. S. Lamport, J. C. Johnson and J. B. Woodford. Prosecuting Atty. Condit appeared for the state, while Wm. K. Ober and W. J. D'Arcy defended Mr. Dagany. Policemen Wells, Latourette and Gamble testified in behalf of the state. Chief of Police Dilley said he had told Dagany to keep his saloon closed in his own behalf. One witness, Willard Herren, appeared for the defense. After the testimony of Mr. Willard had been given and a closing argument by the prosecuting attorney, the case went to the jury, which returned a verdict of acquittal in a short time.

FOR MEXICO.—Ex-State Printer and Mrs. F. C. Baker leave next Wednesday evening on the overland train for an extended tour of the south. The cities of Southern California, New Orleans and Florida and the City of Mexico will be visited. Also the famous battle grounds of the south will be taken in. Several months will be consumed in this tour of rest and recreation when Mr. and Mrs. Baker will return to their Oregon home probably better contented with it than ever before.

FIVE THOUSAND.—Copies of Saturday's JOURNAL to the extent of five thousand, with a write-up of Methodism in this state, are being sent to all the Methodist newspapers in the country, and to leading members of the church, free of charge to any one. This is one of the methods employed by the JOURNAL to give Salem a good name abroad. We have the best and cleanest city on the Pacific coast, and every citizen should take pride in heralding our educational, moral and commercial advantages to the world.

A GOOD BOY.—The teacher of one of the boys who was before police court for assault and battery, and discharged Saturday writes to his parents: "Mr. W. B. Buffum, I take pleasure in saying that Bertie has been a good boy ever since he entered my room. He always does his work well, holds a high rank in his class, is obedient, polite and kind. I depend on him and so far he has not failed me, but has been in every way an agreeable pupil."

FELL IN A FIT.—No, but he was in a perfect fit when arrayed in one of G. W. Johnson & Son's perfect fitting suits. It is hard to tell but that they are tailor made.

Plain and mixed pickles, sweet and sour and the famous Heins mustard chow-chow at J. A. Van Eaton's old reliable grocery.

The "Old Folk's Whist Club" meets this evening at the home of Judge and Mrs. J. J. Morphy.

Clark leads but never follows on good goods and low prices.

DEATH OF A PIONEER.

Funeral and Last Sad Rites Over Mrs. Martha Hellenbrand.

Mrs. Martha Hellenbrand, who died Saturday, was a native of Argyle, Me., and was one of a large family, all of whom lived to an old age. In the fall of 1858 they started for Oregon, via Cape Horn, in a clipper ship, the Golden Rocket. They were six months making the trip. The three children, Josephine Flora, Charles W. and John W., were then youngsters, but stood the trip well, landing in the wilds of Clackamas county, quite a change from the old Pine Tree State. The family endured all the hardships of pioneer days, and Josephine died the first year they were here.

Grandma Hellenbrand was a very dear member of the family, having had almost the constant care of Lottie and Charlie since childhood. She was a favorite with young and old and it was a source of satisfaction to all that her last hours were painless. Friday night she asked Miss Lottie to play and sing for her and she laughed and chatted with all the company. Last Wednesday night she had a slight stroke of paralysis, but knew the family and intimate friends to the last hour of her life, recognizing the voices of loved ones.

Her distinguishing traits were modesty, and she even regretted to be a burden in her last days. Wonderful evenness of temper and great kindness were her's. She had every attention in her dying hours, faithful and conscientious care from loved ones to the last. Her life closed like the ending of a long summer day. She sank to sleep as a child and amid the songs and music of earth she passed to the life beyond. Last Sunday she said: "I wonder where we will all be next Sunday?" She now knows and we know her knowledge will be pleasant.

THE FUNERAL was conducted at 2 p. m. at the rooms of the family in the new bank block by Rev. P. S. Knight, an old friend of the family. Mr. Knight conducted the funeral of the late Mrs. Hellenbrand's husband in 1871, married both Chas. and John Hellenbrand, and has officiated at the funeral of one of John Hellenbrand's children. Mrs. Hellenbrand was a member of his church and was a model woman in every relation of life, loving her family, neighbors and friends, according to the great commandment of the Master to love your neighbor as yourself. She was a member of the congregational church for all her life. Of twelve children, but two, the Hellenbrand brothers, survive. One son was killed in the war of the rebellion at Plymouth, N. C.

A picture of the deceased was taken by Cherrington, the artist, and she looked very natural. Her face was one of remarkable strength, and although almost 84 years of age, was a well preserved woman and in full possession of all her mental faculties. For a few years her eyes had grown dim, but she never became blind. For the past 18 years she has made her home with the family of her son, Chas. Hellenbrand, the Salem restaurateur. Mrs. Hellenbrand was known all over Western Oregon, the family having resided at Portland, Milwaukie, Eagle Creek and Salem, for 25 years. With her husband, Chas. Hellenbrand, Sr., she kept the Franklin House at Portland.

Her brother, Phillip Forster, was one of the first farmers in the state, a supply depot for immigrants in Clackamas county, one of the first evidences of civilization to the tracts that came overland and entered the valley. He died about ten years ago at an old age. The remains of Mrs. Hellenbrand were laid at rest beside the remains of her husband in Rural cemetery, attended by a large concourse of friends in carriages and on the electric cars. Thus passed away one of the pioneer women of Oregon, whose death will be mourned and noted by thousands in all parts of the state.

The casket was completely covered with beautiful floral tributes. A song service was rendered by a quartet consisting of Messrs. Kaudret, Steiner, Ross and Ford.

Salem is a live town. What is known on Chicago board of trade as a bucket-shop is in successful operation. Hourly quotations are received by telegraph and this most fascinating form of commercial speculation has a growing circle of devotees in our thriving city.

When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Mrs., she clung to Castoria. When she had children, she gave them Castoria.

You Don't Have to Swear Off, says the St. Louis Journal of Agriculture in an editorial about No. 10, the famous tobacco hand-cure. "We know of many cases cured by No. 10. One, a prominent St. Louis architect, smoked and chewed for twenty years; two boxes cured him so that even the smell of tobacco makes him sick. No. 10 is sold and guaranteed by D. J. Fry. No cure no pay. Book free, stating the only Co., New York or Chicago."

KILLED BY ELECTRICITY

Horrible Death of a Petaluma Capitalist.

HE DIED FORTY FEET IN THE AIR

Touched a Live Wire From the Top of an Electric Pole.

The San Francisco Examiner has the following special from Petaluma, March 21: William S. Pierce, the proprietor and manager of the Petaluma Electric Light and Power company, proprietor and president of the Pierce Telephone company, ex-president of the Dairymen's Union of California and one of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens and land owners in Sonoma and Marin counties, was instantly killed on Main street at 6 o'clock this evening before hundreds of panic-stricken citizens, and in the midst of a terrible wind and rain storm. Although a wealthy man, Mr. Pierce personally supervised his business, and during the entire afternoon had been driving around with his assistant looking after the wires in the city. At ten minutes before 6 he arrived at the last pole which was to be inspected—a tall mast which stands in the Plaza on Main street in front of the Cosmopolitan hotel. His assistant, Will Coddling, climbed the pole and had proceeded but a short distance when he received a slight shock from a guy wire, which showed that the pole was charged with a "ground," owing to the rain. He was frightened and at once descended, and as Mr. Pierce had remained in the buggy, told Coddling to hold the horse, saying it as he would go up.

"No," said Coddling, "here's a 'ground' and you'll get a shock." Pierce shook his head and started up the pole. He reached the first cross-pole, forty feet above the ground, and sat on this, with one leg on each side of the main pole, and then touched several wires in rapid succession. As he touched the fatal wire a flame shot from his hand and he fell back, his head and arms dangling from one side of the pole and his feet on the other. A cry of horror arose, and several men frantic with excitement, started up the pole, but were prevailed upon to descend. An attempt was made to telephone to the station to get off the current, but the wires were down. A hook and ladder truck was procured from a neighboring engine house, and after a hard task the body was lowered to the ground by Louis Mego and Charles Dillon, assisted by the firemen.

Mr. Pierce had received a shock between 5,000 and 7,000 volts during the time he was on the wire. He was carried into the Cosmopolitan hotel and later removed to the family residence on D. street. His mother, to whom the news had been broken, was almost frantic with grief.

The deceased was a native of Petaluma and was 25 years of age. He was heavily interested in a number of important business enterprises, aside from the management of the large estate of his father, Abraham Pierce, who died about twenty years ago. He was the principal owner of the electric light system of Petaluma, and was sole owner of the Pierce Telephone system, now in every successful operation in Petaluma. He was president of the dairymen's Union of San Francisco during the term preceding the present one, and was actively interested in several other business enterprises. He was the owner of the famous Pierce dairy ranch, the finest ranch in the state, and with his stepmother's interest, the estate is estimated to be worth a quarter of a million.

Mr. Pierce is a relative of Mrs. Frank Hughes of Salem.

LIVERINE.—W. D. Motie, of the Anchor S. Chemical company, of Lebanon, Oregon, has been in the city the past week introducing their remedy "Liverine," which is meeting with good success as an Oregon enterprise.
