PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Discusses Foreign Affairs and Finance.

ADVOCATES MONROE DOCTRINE.

He Wants Retaliatory Measures Against Germany.

AND NEUTRALITY TOWARD CUBA.

Our Government Will Not Interfere With Turkey.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The president today nominated Rufus W. Peckham, of New York, to be associate justice of the United States supreme court, to succeed the late Howell E. Jackson, of Tennessee. He also nominated Richard Olney to be secretary of state and Judson Harman attorney general.

IN THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The senate galleries were again well filled but there was not the struggle for places incident to the opening. After reading the president's message was completed, Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, was the first to secure the recognition of the chair for the introduction of bills and resolutions. He sent the desk a joint resolution forcibly approving the principles of the Monroe doctrine.

The senate in executive session today confirmed the nomination of Richard Olney as secretary of state, and Judson Harman as attorney-general, and at 5 o'clock adjourned until tomorrow, shutting off a debate from several senators primed with speeches on Cuba and Venezuela. Stewart introduced the usual free coinage bill.

IN THE HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Representative Livingston, of Georgia, has prepared resolutions providing for a joint committee to investigate the facts on the Nicaragua case and has recommended proper action to vindicate and preserve the dignity and rights of the United States in its premises.

THE MESSAGE RECEIVED.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—When the house met at noon today, Rev. H. F. Condon, new chaplain, blind Universalist preacher, from Port Huron, Michigan, delivered the invocation. Payne, Republican, of New York, chairman of committee, appointed to wait upon the president, reported that Mr. Cleveland sent his respectful salutations to congress and would communicate in writing. Immediately thereafter, Mr. Pruden, the president's executive clerk, appeared with the message, which the clerk read. The members listened, some intently but all respectfully, to the words of the chief executive.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

President Cleveland's message to congress deals with two subjects, foreign relations and local financial conditions. He says:

TWO SUBJECTS.

"The present assemblage of the legislative branch of our government occurs at a time when the interests of our people and the needs of the country give a special prominence to the conditions of our foreign relations and the exigencies of our national finances. I therefore, deem it my executive duty adequately performed at this time by presenting to congress the important phases of our situation as related to our interestedness with foreign nations and a statement of the financial problem which confront us."

President Cleveland notes the opening of the free wool market in the Argentine Republic and also that the boundary differences between that nation and Brazil have been settled by arbitration in which this country acted as arbitrator. The resumption of specie payment by Chile is regarded as evincing the ascendancy of sound financial principles in that republic.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR.

The close of the Chinese war has developed a domestic condition in the Chinese empire which has called for prompt attention. Owing to the manifestation of the aversion of the Chinese to foreign ways and undertakings, mob attacks on foreign missions causing much loss of life and property have been the result. Although but one American suffered, it is plainly the part of this government to take prompt action and a special American commission has gone overland from Tien Tsin to demonstrate the readiness of our government to check similar outbreaks.

THE WALLER CASE.

The cordial relations with France have been undisturbed with the exception of a full explanation of the treatment of John L. Waller, formerly United States consul at Tamatave, Madagascar, remains to be furnished. Mr. Waller remained in Madagascar after his term of office had expired, having procured business concessions of value and upon the declaration of martial law by the French, he was arrested upon various charges, tried and convicted by a military tribunal and sentenced to two years in prison. This government requested the records of that tribunal. The record of the court proceedings and charges have been procured but the evidence is still missing. Meanwhile, it appears Mr. Waller's confinement was not onerous.

PARIS EXPOSITION.

The president recommends the acceptance of the French invitation to participate in the Paris exposition of 1900. He especially commends the recent resolution of the French chambers favoring a permanent treaty of arbitration between the two countries.

PLEA FOR FREE TRADE.

The close rivalries of competing industry and under the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal de-

Destructive Fire.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 3.—A fire in the heart of the wholesale district destroyed property valued at half a million. The northwest quarter of the block, bounded by Merion, Maryland, Georgia and Illinois streets was laid in ruins.

Seven or eight great business establishments are burned out. The following firms are burned out: Schulz & Co. wholesale grocers; Ward Bros. drug-gists; Fairbanks & Morse, scales; Eckhouse Bros., liquors; Hildebrand Hardware company.

The buildings were all brick, three and four stories in height. Several firemen were carried down by the falling walls. It is believed two, who have been taken to the hospital, will die.

Burned to Death.

SEATTLE, Dec. 3.—As a result of a small fire at the new Washington state university in this city at noon, Harry C. Ashenfelter, of Spokane, a contractor on the university buildings was burned, his body being completely incinerated. A workman named Frank Galleger was severely burned about the hands and arms. They were tarring the inside of a big water tank, when the tar caught fire. A ladder broke and Ashenfelter fell into the flames.

Hot Words.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 3.—It is reported this afternoon that after a meeting of the ambassadors, Sir Philip Currie, British ambassador, notified the Turkish government that if the Tirmans were not granted by Saturday, a British gun boat would be sent through the Straits of the Dardanelles without the sultan's permission to act as extra guard ship in the Bosphorus for the protection of the British embassy.

A SUCCESSFUL EFFORT

At Raising the Salem Woolen Mill Subsidy.

AT LEAST $15,000 IS IN SIGHT.

Stock Subscriptions from $100 to $200 Taken.

The meeting at Reed's opera house to raise the woolen mill stock subscription of $25,000 was a success in point of attendance, enthusiasm, and as a result of its labors at least $15,000 of the sum required is subscribed or "in sight."

The committee rather emphasized the importance of a large number of small stock holders taking shares of stock, in preference to cash donations. It was a stormy day and a most disagreeable night out, but local patriotism was equal to the occasion, and when Chairman McCormack of the subsidy committee called to order the large house was well filled.

The occasion was graced by the presence of a number of Salem ladies who took an evident interest in all the proceedings. Tom Kay was introduced in fitting and eulogistic words by the chairman, and he told the story of his woolen mill operations as a laborer and proprietor for 40 years, "from the beginning to the end," often interrupted by applause. He got the crowd well worked up and his candid statement about the profits of the business was well received. He need not have made the showing he did, which was very convincing, because every man, woman and child knows that he never took a dollar dishonestly or wronged a man of a cent. As an alderman of the city Tom Kay has never disclosed the least desire to enrich himself out of public affairs or at the expense of others.

J. M. Wallace, president of the water company, made an earnest talk from a business standpoint. He closed by saying that he would take $1,000 stock and that a young man whose name he could not give would take $500. E. Hofer spoke on behalf of the committee, and Geo. G. Bingham gave a good talk. Then the chairman asked for stock subscriptions. J. J. Dalrymple started the ball with $1,000 stock. The boys felt like yelling, "what's the matter with Jim Dalrymple?" The response of the crowd would have been "J. J. D. is all right!"

Mr. Wallace reconsidered his subscription and increased it to $1,250. Mr. Dalrymple immediately walked up and put his name down for $500 more, making his subscription $1,500. He rather expected Wallace would see him, when he would no doubt have put his up to $2,000. But for his means Mr. Wallace had made a very liberal subscription. If all Salem men would give in proportion to their ability, as Mr. Wallace has given, Salem could build five such woolen mills. The crowd again cheered Mr. Dalrymple and thoroughly appreciated his effort at starting the ball rolling at a good figure, and his clearly expressed intention of stimulating the labors of the committee to successful results. It had the happy result of swelling the list with subscriptions to nearly the $5,000 mark.

Here there was a pause and the chairman employed the opportunity to tell a story at the expense of "Old Tom Kay" which brought a laugh. But the whole meeting was of a serious business character and there was no disposition to indulge in fun and humor. A dispatch was read from Walter L. Toose, of Woodburn, announcing that he will take $250 stock. This received a round of applause that was heartfelt.

WORSTED AND MOHAIR WORKS.

The really important part of Mr. Kay's remarks lay in a very slight allusion to worsted and mohair works. The possibility of that line of manufactures being started here, as a result of rebuilding the Salem Woolen Mills, should stimulate every one capable of rendering assistance to taking stock. A lady who takes a deep interest in this enterprise hands us the following:

It is said that England manufactures mohair goods more successfully than any other country, for the simple reason that the climate of that country contains greater moisture, and the yarn of which the mohair goods are woven can be spun successfully only in a damp atmosphere. The yarn used

A PRACTICAL MAN.

The labors of the subsidy committee are appealing to the practical men of the town. Mr. Waldemar Nelson, the Salem dyer, took $300 stock. He is a practical woolen mill man and has worked in woolen mills in England, some of the largest in the world. He says he knows that stock in this mill will pay and he would not be afraid to put in $5000 if he could spare it from his business.

The committee held another meeting yesterday and will push the work of raising the subscription of the stock to the $25,000. The work has progressed well so far and should not be dropped now. We feel confident it will not be. Every man who has taken stock should become a committee of one to enlist others. The work is well over half done, but the last half is always harder than the first. Push the work, must be the motto of all interested in the welfare of Salem.

THE VOLUNTEERS LAST NIGHT.

Following signed the stock roll last night: J. M. Wallace, J. J. Dalrymple, J. B. Tuttle, W. G. Westcott, Waldemar Nelson, J. E. Baker, Dugan Bros., Salem Iron Works, G. S. Downing, D. J. Cooper, Patton Bros., L. S. Winters, Krause Bros., (more if necessary,) J. M. Long, W. S. Dunnway, N. J. Haas, Jacob Vogt, W. L. Touze, Hofer Bros.

Subscription blanks are being printed and will be circulated by the committee this afternoon.

Narrow Escape.

PORTLAND, Dec. 3.—The O. B. & N. steamer, Elmora, which plys on the upper Willamette, had a narrow escape from total destruction last night. She was blown on the rocks a few miles above Oregon City, but was gotten off this morning, with light damage.
