WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

Personal and Political Gossip About Public Men and Women of Oregon.

Harvey Scott, of the Oregonian, may yet have a chance to fight Great Britain. Chances are, if war broke out, he would start across the continent on a mule, as he and another distinguished statesman are said to have done, when the war broke out in 1860.

Rev. Roland D. Grant in his lecture at Salem took pains to declare that he was not a member of the A. P. A. organization or lecturing in its behalf. His position has been mistated by the Portland press and even the Catholic Sentinel has been deceived.

* * *

It is not generally known' but the United Presbyterian church is the most pronounced against secret societies of any of the Evangelical denomination and stand on the same platform with the Catholics on that question. It was a funny mistake to get H. F. Wallace among the A. P. A organizers and this department makes the correction and without prejudice.

"I've been trying to grow poor for two years and I don't believe I can make it," said Attorney Geo. G. Bingham to another lawer.

"You are the only man who has not been able to be gratified in that direction," said the thin lawyer.

Mr. Bingham was not talking about his purse, but his avoirdupois.

"Without Prejudice" was mistaken in listing H. F. Wallace among the A P. A. organizers. Hugh F. Wallace D. D., is a Portland minister of the United Presbyterian church, just a plain, quiet preacher and not a pulpit sensationalist. He is a brother of J. M. Wallace of Salem and is interested in the water works and a trustee of the Wallace estate. The Portland preacher by name of Wallace, who is after the gamblers, and discusses Catholicism from his pulpit, is Rev. George P. Wallace.

Mr. Bingham says the supreme court is a year behind in its work and that appeals are piling up to the detriment of litigants and disgust of counsel. Mr. Bingham says that a law should be passed limiting appeals to sums involving $250 or over, as at present an appeal can be taken to the supreme court in any sum. In place of electing more judges there should be less litigation on appeals. In England there is a law allowing parties to a suit, by agreeing thereto, to submit its adjudication to the trial judge. Then there is got rid of the too frequent temptation to appeal under the sting of defeat.

Mr. Leo Willis, of Salem, is a Democrat of lifelong standing and an intelligent business man. He has recently written a private letter to his brother-in-law, Senator Morgan of Alabama, telling him if he could see his way to cast a vote for the restoration of a duty on wool he hoped he would do it, as free wool had proven a failure in the West. Mr. Willis regards the placing of wool on the free list as one of the most serious mistakes of the Democratic party and one that will go far toward driving Democrats out of the Democratic party. He also consider that Mr. McKinley, of Ohio, is the logical candidate of the Republican party and it would not take much to induce Mr. Willis and hosts of Democrats like him to vote for McKinley in preference to a Democrat who favors free wool.

Rev. Roland D. Grant attacked the State university for teaching evolution, and saying that "evolutionism was as much a creed as Presbyterianism." He also said the state ought not to furnish money to teach any sort of a creed. The Eugene Register takes him to task for making "insulting and insinuating remarks regarding some of Eugene's most honest citizens," and because "some of them were used as the butt of his insinuating and insulting jokes." It is to be hoped Dr. Grant did not make fun of Prof. McElroy of the chair of ethics He is religious enough man for anybody. A prominent Salem Baptist tells me that Rev. Grant was requested not to assail the Catholic church in his lecture here and it was understood that he would not do so and his attack on the archbishop at the close of his lecture was a surprise to all of them. Salem Baptists and Catholics are quite friendly.

Cy. Benjamin in the Roseburg Plaindealer has this:

Hermann's enemies try to make political capital out of his telegram to Senator Alley of Lane county and for that purpose quote: "Any promises made by my friends will be redeemed by me." The object of these strictures is to insinuate that Mr. Hermann had promised to do something improper—some bad thing. Now until these ghouls can show that Mr. Hermann made such a promise there is nothing derogatory in his telegram. We all, Democrats, Republicans, Populists and private citizens have confidence in our friends.

The main point to the above is that Mr. Hermann was not half way or indifferent about the senatorial contest. He was among the candidates against Mr. Dolph and made no bones about it. He was flat-footed and whole-hearted in the matter and refused to use his influence for the old Portland ring. Many people will admire Mr. Hermann for not being two-faced as so many were.

Some of the newspapers are criticising our delegation in congress for introducing a great many bills for pensions, state claims and public buildings. I fear they are not considering the matter without prejudice. Appropriations are about all that Oregon can get out of congress. We are too far off to get any clerkships there, or appointments on commissions or such like. We can get appropriations and pension bills and relief bills, and public buildings why not get them? We won't get the presidency in Oregon. What do these editors want the Oregon delegation to do? Air abstract theories and come home with an empty sack for their constituents. We are not such fools as to think Oregon should not get her share in the general billion dollar swag and division of plums that it has come to be the main business of congress to make. The people should not censure their delegation in congress for trying to get a mouthful for Oregon while states in the East get a meal. Several million dollars put in circulation for pensions, Indian war claims, river and harbor improvements, coast defences et cetera will do more to give our people prosperity and develop Oregon than all the beautiful theories in the world. Of course, senators and congressmen should look after the interest of the nation, but home first is a good motto. The people will not eject anything they may get for Oregon. Salem is now about the only capital city in the Union that has not a public building built by the federal government. The bill for one has repeatedly passed the senate and why not now have it as we have a perfectly harmonious working delegation? By all means let it come, and Senator McBride shall have all the credit, unless Salem should get a congressman to help him out before it finally passes.

* * *

Senators Mitchell and McBride are at Washington making friends for Oregon and Oregon interests. They are cultivating the social side of life rather than posing as statesmen or making long speeches or attacking the president. "Without Prejudice" believes that thus they are serving their constituents in the best manner possible.

The dispatches to the Oregonian got up by its own reporter tell this:

The dinner which Senator Mitchell gave to his colleague, Senator McBride, was one of the most enjoyable occasions of its kind that has ever taken place in Washington. The senators and others who were present are still talking about it. Senator Mitchell was congratulated by those who attended upon the success of his dinner, while Senator McBride was congratulated upon being so auspiciously introduced to his future fellow senators.

Besides being a magnificent spread upon a beautiful table, the assembled company was in the vein to enjoy everything and each contributed his share to the pleasure of the evening. Senator Mitchell paid a glowing tribute to Senator McBride and detailed his career since he had known him, which covered a period of 25 years.

Senator McBride, in response, said that he could hardly express his pleasure at meeting his fellow senators, and remarked that he was under some embarrassment on account of the too generous praise which Senator Mitchell had bestowed upon him.

While detailing the political career of Senator McBride, Mitchell told about the successful run he had made for secretary of state, and also mentioned the fact that Mr. Hermann had also been elected by a large majority. This brought up Mr. Hermann at the conclusion of McBride's remarks. Mr. Hermann began by endorsing everything Mitchell had said of McBride, and then he went on to express his great pleasure and was expatitiang uponthe joy he felt when the news was flashed over the wires that McBride had been elected. At this time some of the members of the house began to roar with laughter, some of them declaring that Hermann had been laying awake nights with his ear close to the ground, expecting that he would be called to the place himself. This rather broke up the representative's speech.

From that time on until the close of the dinner the mirth and jest went from senator to representive and back. Senator Burrows paying his compliments to Senator McBride said that he congratulated him upon having such an introduction to the senators. He had accomplished something that night that would not occur again during his term of six years for never again would he have an audience of so many senators who would listen to his speeches, but when he hereafter talked to the senate it would be to empty benches. This was one of the appreciated jokes, for nearly every senator present had talked when no one on earth was listening.

When a person is losing flesh and wasting away there is cause for alarm. Nothing so worries a physician. Consumptives would never die if they could regain their usual weight. In fact there would be no consumption if there were no wasting of the system.

The cause of of this loss of flesh is a failure to properly digest the food eaten. Nine-tenths of all our diseases date back to some derangement of the stomach.

The Shaker Digestive Cordial will stop this wasting of the body. It acts by causing the food we eat to be digested so as to do good, for undigested food does more harm than good. The Cordial contains food already digested and a digester of foods as well.

River Notes.

The Eugene came down from Corvallis last night with about ninety-five passengers, most of them students of the agricultural college, homeward bound. She left here at 6:30 this morning for Portland with a few students from the college here.

The Ramona came up from Portland last night, and returned this morning.

The river stands at 15.5 above low water mark today, and is not raising to speak of.

Thursday night as Captain Raabe, of the Eugene, passed the mouth of the Santiam, which was then two feet higher than the Willamette, the force of the rise was so great the water of the former stream was forced up the Willamette quite a distance.

ALEXANDER W. TERRELL, MINISTER TO TURKEY.

Minister Terrell, who is doing all he can to protect Americans in Turkey, is a native of Virginia and an adopted son of Texas. He is 69 years old and is rich and cultured. He owns a ranch of 8,000 acres near Austin, Texas. Thirty years ago he wrote a poem eulogizing J. Wilkes Booth.

THE NEW WOOLEN MILL.

How the Bids Will Be Taken—Plans for Machinery.

The plans for construction of the new Thos. Kay woolen mills are now completed at Architect Pugh's office and bids are to be let at 1 o'clock, Saturday December 28th.

The foundation on all these plans is to be of concrete cement, and stone walls of three feet thickness. This will be let on a separate contract. For the superstructure there will be two kinds of material used, brick or lumber.

Three kinds of bids will be received:

1st. On the plan according to details and specifications and the contractor furnishing all material for a two story and a half, and part three story brick.

2d. On same plan and details, all frame on stone foundation.

3d. Either of above plans and company find all materials. Mr. Kay has had a good deal of experience in building mills and while he prefers to let it to a competent contractor, he is prepared to buy the materials and put it up himself.

WORSTED WORKS.

These have been decided upon and will make a market for coarse long wool and mohair and will be an additional industry. Mr. Kay's heart is set on this business and, he is very enthusiastic about it. But first he will push the building. The annual meeting of the company will be held in January.

Mr. Kay has been at Portland and found what the rates of duty and freight are on machinery from Liverpool. In January, when the work on the building is well under way, Mr. Kay and his son will go East to buy machinery for the new woolen mill and worsted works. If they cannot get what they want in the newest and best machinery they will go to Liverpool and buy it.

The editor of the Post is afraid Senator McBride will get a $100 000 public buildings bill through for Salem. Not much danger, Governor. Besides, Grover would veto it.

The Post has an article claiming an alarming increase of insanity. Isn't the Post also claiming an increase of circulation? That explains it all.

GOES RIGHT ON.

Some talk has been going on of late concerning the closing out of the Salem Woolen Mill store, but those in authority inform us the store will be continued right on as in the past. The management have decided to have a grand clearance sale to continue until January 11, '96.

Clothing and furnishing goods will be sold at prices that were never before heard of in the Willamette valley. Don't let such an opportunity to get good all wool goods go by without investigating. 17 tf

Let The Whole World Know The Good Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Does

HEART DISEASE, has its victim at a disadvantage. Always taught that heart disease is incurable, when the symptoms become well defined, the patient becomes alarmed and a nervous panic takes place. But when a sure remedy is found and a cure effected, after years of suffering, there is great rejoicing and desire to "let the whole world know." Mrs. Laura Wineinger, of Selkirk, Kansas, writes: "I desire to let the whole world know what Dr. Miles' Heart Cure has done for me. For ten years I had pain in my heart, shortness of breath, palpitation, pain in my left side, oppressed feeling in my chest, weak and hungry spells, bad dreams, could not lie on either side, was numb and suffered terribly. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and before I finished the second bottle I felt its good effects, I feel now that I am fully recovered, and that Dr. Miles' Heart Cure saved my life."
