PICNIC SOCIAL.

The young ladies of the Presbyterian church will give a picnic social at the church parlors Tuesday evening, to which about one hundred have been invited. A novel feature of the affair is that no chairs will be used, the participants seating themselves in true picnic fashion upon the floor. To heighten the effect of a picnic, shrubbery will be placed about the rooms, and baskets of lunch will figure prominently.

At the 4 o'clock men's meeting Sunday Rev. J. P. Farmer discussed the need for the existence of and the legitimate work of the Y. M. C. A. He said there was a prevailing impression of too much aristocracy in the churches. There was a place set apart in the back part of the churches for the poor, and the Y. M. C. A. was needed to step in the breach and with NOT TO CALL A SESSION. its doors open at all times and its stoves warm and reading rooms lighted up and free for all, gave a come at all hours of the week, when the churches were closed. He spoke of sensationalism and the fact of too much diversion among the churches. Too many churches resorted to entertainments to replenish their funds M. C. A. should be such an institution for unification and the churches should encourage and support the Y. M. C. A.

as a means to this end. Rev. Farmer's address was listefled to by a large audience to the end and produced a favorable impression.
