SILVER MEN UNEASY.

No Vote on Silver Bill Until Tomorrow.

SEN. MITCHELL TALKS.

Shows Up the True Situation On the Subject.

DENVER, Jan. 30.—A special to the Times from Washington says a vote on the free coinage bill will probably not be reached in the senate today, notwithstanding Senator Jones gave notice that he will ask the senate to sit until the vote is taken, even though it is not taken all night. The vote will probably be reached tomorrow or Saturday. There is little doubt but the bill will pass the senate, though by a slim majority, probably not to exceed three, or at most five.

There are certain senators on both the Republican and Democratic sides who make propositions favorable to silver, who will fly the track when the test comes. These include Squire of Washington, McBride of Oregon, Thurston of Nebraska, Baker of Kansas, and Faulkner, Mills and Gordon, Democrats. The margin is so close as to render silver men uneasy.

MITCHELL ON SILVER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Mitchell, of Oregon, today addressed the senate on the bond bill. Mitchell said that the question presented was whether it was necessary to increase the bonded indebtedness to maintain the gold standard, or by a greater issue of silver, to restore it to its primary place as money of the constitution. Mitchell pointed out that our foreign indebtedness during the past 25 years had greatly increased. "There are in my judgment two remedies to be applied, viz: first, our shipping laws must be amended, our merchant marine must be encouraged and built up and we must become our own carriers. And, second, we must legislate to increase the value of our export commodities, so as to enable us to meet, reduce, and, if possible, wipe out the debt which today makes the people of this country virtually slaves to the money lenders of Great Britain. We must reduce our expenses, and instead of issuing new bonds, stop incurring obligations abroad, and increase, if possible, the value of our commodities, including silver, with which to meet this indebtedness."

As to the bond bill as it came from the house, he said, "I decline to give further authority to the secretary of the treasury to issue additional bonds in time of peace. I am unwilling under any plea of necessity, to aid the party to which I belong in doing that which as a party it has emphatically condemned in others."

Jackson Populist.

JACKSONVILLE, Jan. 30.—The Populists, who were successful at the last election, are divided upon the question of taxing railroad property in this county. Unless the division can be united, which now seems to be improbable, the Republicans will almost certainly carry the county. The conservative element in the Populist party has found it impossible to meet the unreasonable demands of the radicals and, should the nominations fall to give satisfaction to the latter, a disastrous bolt is by no means improbable.

Boat Railway Bill.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Senator Mitchell has introduced the following boat-railway bill:

"That there be, and hereby is, appropriated, out of any moneys in the treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $5000, in addition to the amount heretofore appropriated, for the construction and equipment of a boat-railway from the foot of The Dalles rapids to the head of Cello Falls, in Oregon; the same to be constructed under the direction of the secretary of war, in accordance with the plans and specifications of the engineer department of the United States; provided, that contracts may be entered into by the secretary of war for such materials and work as may be necessary to complete the present project of improvement of the Columbia river at that point by the construction of a boat-railway, as aforesaid, to be paid for as appropriations may from time to time be made by law, not exceeding in the aggregate $1,764,467, exclusive of the amount herein and heretofore appropriated."

If this measure goes through it will be a part of the river and harbor bill, as must all other measures looking to the improvement of waterways. Hermann in the house, and Mitchell, in the senate, have introduced bills, or proposed amendments to the river and harbor bill, covering all the improvements for Oregon.

It probably gives some prominence to the improvements to have them presented in this way, and calls the attention of congress more directly to the big projects on the Pacific coast. Mitchell's bill, however, will first go to the committee on transportation routes to the seaboard, where he is sure to work out a favorable report. This will give the project some standing in the senate.

The emperor, who was kept away by an important cabinet meeting, was represented by Adjutant Count von Passen. The empress and ex-empress were represented by high court officials. Prince Frederick Leopold, of Prussia, was present. Rev. Dr. Dickie's funeral address was a touching tribute to Americanism, and the sterling virtues of the deceased.

Keep the Rascals Out.

Nobody every expected Governor Lord to call an extraordinary session of the legislature, but he probably is misinformed as to the drift of public sentiment throughout the state. If the taxpayers of Oregon do not want an extraordinary session, it is because they distrust the legislature, and do not believe that it will do any more now to cut down expenses and diminish the burdens of taxation than it did last winter. This distrust is an evil omen for the next election—or for such members of the legislature as shall be candidates again.—Oregonian.

The people distrust the Scott-Simon gang. Unfortunately, Scott and Simon cannot be reached by the people.

Keep the rascals from Multnomah county at home Mr. Scott, and give us a legislature presided over in both houses by men who are not under their control, and we will guarantee you a session of the legislature that will keep its pledges.

Chase Stock Company.

The company was met by an unusually full house last night, and the play, "The Shadows of a Great City" was very meritorious, several of the actors surpassing the rendition of former roles. The play tonight will be "Uncle's Darling," repeated by request, and is for the benefit of the Salem hospital. The company evince their generosity and the people should do likewise by general attendance. Prizes will be given as usual. The vote for the handsomest lady gave the opera glasses to Miss Ida Childers, who received 71 votes. Miss Lottie Hellenbrand received 57. Miss Mary Chatfield 32 and Miss Georgia Whittier 29. The prize received by the homeliest man proved to be a small live pig, and was gratefully (?) accepted by Wm. Klingler, an insurance man, who made a neat speech of thanks. Jos. Aiken and E. H. Flagg occupied third and fourth places on the list. Those drawing prizes were Mrs. W. Buck, Willie Sheridan, Chauncey Bishop, Freda Freese, Max Miller, Joe Haines, Walter Davis, Miss Pearl Skiff, Ed. Payne, Chas. Hellenbrand, jr., the latter getting the gold watch. Those whose names were called but were not present, and the number of the prize for which they were called, are as follows: Arthur Dabney, 2; Maud Flagg, 3; M. L. McHaffin, 4; Richard Smith, 5; F. W. Power, 6; Sam Foster, 6; Dr. Vogel, 9; John Ford, 9; W. V. Skinner, 10. On Saturday afternoon toys will be given to each and every child attending the performance.

City Hall Talk.

According to the Statesman, the contractors are going ahead and complete the city hall. They have ordered the twisted iron, cement and gravel for the floors, and the material will soon be here. Unless the council takes some action, there will be no cessation until the work is completed. There was no economy in building it. There is no economy in occupying it after it is built. It will increase the expenses of the city $300 a month, interest and all to finish it. But it seems it cannot be stopped without a lawsuit. The city could not stop it without paying contractors a big price to throw up the contract—at least $5000. It is a very unfortunate state of affairs, that the city must, at this time, be run $20,000 to $30,000 in debt still farther.

NO SPECIAL SESSION.

Governor Lord Says the People Do Not Demand It.

VICTORY FOR THE PEOPLE.

Oregon's Executive Says It Would Be Unprofitable.

There will be no special session of the legislature. Governor Lord gives to the press the following authoritative statement on the question:

"There will be no extra session. There is no public sentiment asking for it, nor have I any assurances. If I should call one, that its results would justify the expense. I have received numerous letters from taxpayers and influential citizens throughout the state, and, barring two exceptions, the sentiments expressed in such letters are averse to an extra session. I have also talked with several members of the legislature, and received letters from some others, and, with one exception, they are all opposed to an extra session, or believe that it would not be productive of any good. I am in receipt of some thirty papers from different portions of the state, and they also with the exception of the Oregonian and Telegram and two others, express views against an extra session. Taking these views as representative of the public thought in their different localities, they indicate that there is no public sentiment asking for an extra session, nor do they afford any assurance that the results of a session would justify its cost. Under such circumstances, it would be neither wise nor profitable to call an extra session, nor shall I call one."

The above declaration is a distinct victory for the people. The only call came from the ringsters at Portland. The prime mover was a mere corporation stalking-horse politician who on the ways and means committee of the last legislature helped load up the bill with all sorts of improper and questionable items, and entered a combine to prevent the bill being reported to the house for debate and revision as had been demanded by the governor and the house.

There was for a time danger of this element headed by Bancroft forcing a special session. But when Bancroft's corporation bosses saw that a special session would result in an uprising of the people to demand real reform measures they pulled him off and dropped the subject like a live coal. Fifty thousand Oregon citizens would have come to Salem to see that such a special session was not a mere political farce, or else deal with the sham reformers as they would deserve if they again assembled on pretense of relieving the people and proceeded as they did last winter to relieve them only of their hard cash.

Governor Lord drew the line on the Portland gang and their camp-followers over the state just right. He said, I will not call a special session unless the people demand it. They soon learned that if a people's special session were held it would go hard with them. This leaves the fight for reform measures in the hands of the people. They have the task before them of electing a legislature of the right sort.

OREGON HANGINGS.—Several are to take place Friday early and full reports will be found in Friday's JOURNAL. Letters and telegrams poured in on Governor Lord all day for reprieves, but at the hour of going to press there had been no interruption with the course of justice, nor were there any indications of a likelihood of executive clemency being displayed. Sheriff Knight has invitations to several executions. Sheriff Sears will assist Sheriff McFeron at Albany and a JOURNAL reporter will be present at the execution.
