DAILY CAPITAL
ASSOCIATED PRESS DAILY.

SALEM, OREGON, May 15, 1896.

B Men's Suits, $3.50, Sizes 35 to 44.

Youths' Suits, $6.00, Sizes 13 to 18.

Boys' Knee $3.00.

---Woolen Mill Store---

Woolen Mill Opening.

Afternoon and Evening, Friday, May 15, 1896.

Everybody invited to the Free Concert andspeechmaking in Grand Ball at Night.

Beautiful decorations—Hall 404 feet wide.

DEMOCRATS.

Gathering of the Warhorses of Oregon.

Discuss Legislative Appropriations and State Issues.

A large house, in which to be a tenant of tailors, was purchased.

Miss Woodhull was elected mayor.

In the city's election of 1896, Woodhull scored high on her reputation for being a strong woman. She was known for her radical views on women's rights and was a vocal opponent of the Jay Peers treaty, which many Oregonians believed would lead to the loss of the Oregon coast to the United States.

The Democratic candidates for the state legislature included John F. Wilson, John W. Harling, and John W. Duryea.

Wilson was a strong opponent of the Jay Peers treaty and emphasized his support for the state's agricultural interests. Harling was known for his work in the state's education system, and Duryea was a prominent lawyer and politician in Oregon.

The Democratic candidates for the U.S. Senate included Thomas G. Turner, Daniel W. Hamilton, and George W. German.

Turner was a strong supporter of the Republican Party and was known for his work in the state's legal system. Hamilton was a strong advocate for the state's educational system, and German was a prominent lawyer and politician in Oregon.

The Democratic candidates for the U.S. House of Representatives included John F. Wilson, John W. Harling, and John W. Duryea.

Wilson was a strong opponent of the Jay Peers treaty and emphasized his support for the state's agricultural interests. Harling was known for his work in the state's education system, and Duryea was a prominent lawyer and politician in Oregon.

The Democratic candidates for the state's constitutional convention included John F. Wilson, John W. Harling, and John W. Duryea.

Wilson was a strong opponent of the Jay Peers treaty and emphasized his support for the state's agricultural interests. Harling was known for his work in the state's education system, and Duryea was a prominent lawyer and politician in Oregon.

The Democratic candidates for the state's governor's race included John F. Wilson, John W. Harling, and John W. Duryea.

Wilson was a strong opponent of the Jay Peers treaty and emphasized his support for the state's agricultural interests. Harling was known for his work in the state's education system, and Duryea was a prominent lawyer and politician in Oregon.

The Democratic candidates for the state's attorney general's race included John F. Wilson, John W. Harling, and John W. Duryea.

Wilson was a strong opponent of the Jay Peers treaty and emphasized his support for the state's agricultural interests. Harling was known for his work in the state's education system, and Duryea was a prominent lawyer and politician in Oregon.

The Democratic candidates for the state's secretary of state's race included John F. Wilson, John W. Harling, and John W. Duryea.

Wilson was a strong opponent of the Jay Peers treaty and emphasized his support for the state's agricultural interests. Harling was known for his work in the state's education system, and Duryea was a prominent lawyer and politician in Oregon.

The Democratic candidates for the state's treasurer's race included John F. Wilson, John W. Harling, and John W. Duryea.

Wilson was a strong opponent of the Jay Peers treaty and emphasized his support for the state's agricultural interests. Harling was known for his work in the state's education system, and Duryea was a prominent lawyer and politician in Oregon.