

They All Come Back

"There are fads in medicine as well as in other things," said a busy doctor, "but the most remarkable thing about Hood's Sarsaparilla is that customers who try other remedies all come back to Hood's, and this is why the enormous sales of this great medicine keep up and continue the whole year round, steady as a clock."

"Why is it?" "O, simply because Hood's Sarsaparilla has more real curative merit than any medicine I ever sold. This is of daily occurrence in almost every drug store. Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured more sickness, and made more happiness through restoration to health than any other medicine."

MEXICAN BUBBLE EXPLODED.

Editor Sacramento Bee—Sir: If we throw our mints open to the free coinage of silver, what is to prevent a man who owes $500 in the United States from going to Mexico with $500 buying silver bullion, taking it to the United States mint, having it coined in 1000 silver dollars, paying his debt and making $500 by the transaction? This is one of the questions the advocates of silver are expected to answer. The answer is simple enough: When our mints are thrown open to the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, no man will be able to purchase an ounce of silver in Mexico or anywhere else for 65 cents. The moment our mints are thrown open to silver at 16 to 1 the mint price of silver in the United States will be $1.29 an ounce. That will be the market price of silver bullion in New York. The wires are put in motion and it becomes the price in Mexico, London, Paris, Berlin, India and all over the world. It will be a little higher in London, for England will purchase her bullion here or in Mexico, and the cost of transportation, a mere trifle, will be added. The rupee will then cost England twice as much as it does now—that is, a given quantity of gold will purchase only half the quantity of silver it does now, and the rupee will pay for only the same quantity of wheat in India that it did before. Therefore, measured by the gold standard, a bushel of wheat will cost twice as much in Liverpool as it does today, and if in Liverpool then in New York, Chicago and other markets; for the Liverpool market governs the price of breadstuffs the world over.

But why cannot silver be purchased in Mexico for 95 cents an ounce, after the free coinage of silver the same as before? Simply because no one but a supernatural idiot would sell silver bullion in Mexico or anywhere else for 95 cents an ounce when he can send it to our mint and have it coined into standard silver dollars at 16 to 1, and with the dollars thus coined he can purchase and pay for any commodity in the United States at the current market price. That would be equivalent to $1.29 an ounce for silver bullion. This being the case, no one having a particle of grey matter in his cerebrum could be guilty of anything so idiotic and unbusinesslike as selling silver bullion at 65 cents an ounce. Common sense, then, to say nothing of business tact, would prove an insuperable barrier to the purchase of silver for less than $1.29. The more silver the better for the people, for they would be more plentiful, business more profitable, employment more readily obtained, and prices would be lower for every commodity the people of our country has to sell. Getting more money for their products, farmers would be better able to pay their debts, they would soon be prosperous again, and it goes without saying that when farmers are prosperous, when they get higher prices for their crops, the whole country is prosperous and every industry flourishes.

There are tables showing the aggregate number of bushels of wheat, corn, oats, rye, potatoes, etc. and bales of cotton sold annually in this country, and I cannot put my finger on them now, but I would give them, but the increased prices resulting from wheat and cotton would put nearly $100,000,000 into the pockets of our people every year. This would make what is called good times. The demonetization of silver would have the opposite effect that its demonetization had. It would increase, perhaps double, the price of commodities. Its demonetization cut prices in two. The following will illustrate the effect upon the farmer: Before prices fell a farmer borrows $1000 to be paid in 1896 with 1000 bushels of wheat. He delivers the wheat at the stipulated time. It is of good quality and contains just as much nutriment and will make as many barrels of flour and loaves of bread as 1000 bushels of good wheat would twenty years ago. The debt is canceled without loss to either party.

Another farmer borrows $1,000 to be paid in 1896 in gold coin. He probably received greenbacks, or perhaps part greenbacks, part silver and part gold. It made no difference to him, for at that time one dollar was just as good as another. Soon after silver is demonetized; it is no longer a legal tender. The world's stock of metallic money is decreased one-half. Gold has to do all the work previously done by both gold and silver. It is therefore in greater demand. Its purchasing power is increased, or, to put it in another way, its own price is raised in obedience to the law of supply and demand. When he borrowed the money, a bushel of wheat would buy or exchange for one dollar in gold. In 1896, when the debt has to be paid, a bushel of wheat will only purchase 50 cents of gold. To buy one dollar in gold coin he has to sell two bushels of wheat, for one dollar in gold coin will exchange for two bushels of wheat. But he owes $1,000 in gold. To get it he must exchange 2,000 bushels of wheat for it, so that his loan of like amount costs him double what his neighbor had to pay. Why? Simply because silver was demonetized, because the volume of the circulating medium was decreased one-half, and its purchasing power correspondingly increased. That was the reason silver was demonetized. It was done in the interest of the creditor's class, nations as well as individuals. It was for that purpose—to rob the producer, the laborer, the debtor and unjustly increase the profits of the creditor class—that silver was demonetized. If it had any other purpose it has never been discovered. The mint laws were all right. They required no revision. They had served the nation for nearly one hundred years, but they were not as favorable to Shylocks as the latter could wish; hence they were revised and under cover of their revision the crime of the century was committed. If anything can be offered in mitigation of that crime its friends and enemies alike would be glad to hear it.

RUIN AND MISERY

WHAT WILL BECOME OF THE YOUNG MEN OF THE DAY?

Cigarette smoking is one of the evils which is increasing among the young men of our day. It is an age of nervousness; nervous excitement, nervous weakness and debility is the growing malady of the day. Minds are over-burdened in school, the pleasures of social life follow business worry; intemperance, sexual excesses or abuses over excite the already feeble nerves and result in exhausting diseases or drains upon the nervous system.

It is a drug and a handicap to every young man to be a sufferer from nervous debility or weakness, low spirits, irritable temper, impaired memory, loss of will-power, and the thousand and one derangements of mind and body that result from pernicious habits often contracted through ignorance of nature's laws. The wreck of constitution, weakened vitality and manly power, following such habits would be a sorry ending to life in this splendid age of learning and labor. It will fast become an age of emaciated brains and shattered nerves unless our young men know themselves.

To reach, re-claim and restore such unfortunate to health and happiness, is the aim of the publishers of a book of 1000 pages, profusely illustrated, written in plain language, on the nature, symptoms and curability, by home-treatment, of such diseases. This book will be sent FREE on receipt of twenty-one (21) cents in stamps, for postage and wrapping only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 563 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

For more than a quarter of a century physicians connected with this widely celebrated Institution have made the treatment of the diseases hinted at above their specialty. Thousands have consulted them by letter and received advice and medicine which have resulted in permanent cures.

Sufferers from premature old age, or loss of power, will find much of interest in the book above mentioned.
