TARIFF OR MONEY WHICH?

Mr. Geer stated that ten minutes after Cleveland was elected, hard times set in.

The fact, is hard times began when Secretary Foster put the country on a gold basis, in 1891; by commencing to give creditors, of the government, the option to draw gold.

Mr. Geer should remember that while hard times began in 1891, the McKinley tariff remained in force until August 28, 1894, less than two years ago.

THE SOUND MONEY REPUDIATIONISTS.

Instead of calling supporters of Bryan Anarchists and Populists, the John Sherman "sound money" crowd, of Salem politicians, ought to pay their legitimate campaign bills.

THE JOURNAL knows of several such bills, that in the past have always been promptly paid by the chairman, of the Republican county central committee, but are now left unpaid.

In place of working the working-men of this city, these gentlemen so fond of clustering around the pie counter, should pay the bills they incurred in the last June campaign.

The way to be a sound money man is to pay your bills, gentlemen.

Silverton Bryan Club.

Silverton Appeal: The hall was crowded to the foot of the stairs and a number of people were unable to hear the speeches. On the platform were the speakers, and well to the front was a Statesman reporter who took a stenographic report of the speeches, though, so far as that paper's report of the meeting is concerned, its representative might as well have stayed at home, as it lied about Barkley's reception and fell short about 100 in reporting the size of the audience.

Lessons in Good Cooking.

Owen Meredith says in "Lucille": "We may live without poetry, music and art; we may live without conscience, and live without heart; we may live without friends; we may live without books; but civilized man cannot live without cooks."

And having had the good fortune to take while in Salt Lake a full course of lessons in good cooking from that celebrated cook Mrs. Emma P. Ewing, superintendent of the Chautauqua cooking school, who is an artist in that line, I gladly offer the information there acquired to the general public; knowing that if the directions are carefully followed many a frown can be driven away from the face of "civilized man" who the more civilized, the more he caters to his stomach, until finally his stomach rules him like a despot and he feels well or ill according to the food he has eaten, but more particularly in the manner in which it was cooked. How many of our housekeepers make good, sweet wholesome bread, bread without a taste of sourness or stickiness. Why, a hotel where they make bread and coffee a specialty will hardly need any advertising for one hears of it from one end of the country to the other. The French make the best bread in the world. Bread, with plenty of crisp brown crust. Bread, that is elastic and when you pull it apart with your fingers you can hear it tear. You cannot make pills with that bread and it is astonishing how much one can eat of it. Mrs. Ewing's bread was very fine. I meant to have commenced my lessons with bread making but have mislaid some of my notes temporarily, so we will commence with

BROILING.

A small gas cooking stove surrounded by a table covered with snowy linen and containing chicken, fish, steaks, and all sorts of culinary utensils, as well as a pleasant odor greeted the 300 ladies in Mrs. Ewing's cooking class as she explained how easy it was to broil things properly, when you know how. Mrs. Ewing divided the lesson into three parts, broiling over the open and hot coals, in the heated oven and on the griddle. She cooked in the most delicious way a fish, a chicken, and a T bone steak, the last named being perfect.

"Perfect broiling," said Mrs. Ewing, "is the instantaneous cooking or searing of the surface of the food." For a fine broiled steak, Mrs. Ewing procures one from an inch to an inch and a half thick and uses an ordinary toasting wire over a bed of red hot coals just near enough not to touch the fire. She counts ten and turns the steak over, continuing this process until the steak is done. None of the juice drips into the fire by this process and the seasoning is all done afterward; no juicy meats should be seasoned before cooking.

Steaks.

cooked on hot griddle or frying pan must be entirely without grease. Afterward melt butter on griddle; salt and pepper your steak, then pour the melted butter over it. Use great care in turning steak. Remember every drop of juice that you force out of steak toughens it.

Tripe.

was another feature of the examples of the day in broiling. "Do you know" asked our teacher, that tripe is well liked by most sensible men and that it is very cheap and highly nutritious? She then proceeded to treat the tripe very much as the fish had been treated; seasoning it with white pepper, salt, and melted butter, and the result was a delicious breakfast dish.

Corn Canning.

Jane brought up the last jar of sweet corn last Sunday. Yesterday—a week later—we had our first "mess" from the "old man's" corn patch noted last week.

If this had been written before we had our first mess fresh from the patch, I am not sure but we would have voted that in the jar was just as good as the day it was put up a year ago. It is certain that it was every way better than corn plucked and unused for two days.

Here is the way it was put up; I wrote down the words while Jane did the talking.

"Well, you want to take the corn when in best condition for roasting ears, then cut it from the cob being careful to preserve all the 'milk' of the corn; pack in glass jars—quarts are best for family use—as solid as possible; I think we used the potato masher to tamp it in the jar; anyway care should be taken to pack it as tight as possible and not break the jar. Be careful and have equal proportion of the milk of the corn in each jar.

The jars are then set in cold water up to within an inch of the top; lay the lids on and bring the water to a boiling heat and boil five hours; then put the rubbers on and screw the covers down tight; then, after watching awhile to be sure all are right, wrap papers around each jar to exclude the light and store in a cool dark place."

After the thrilling experience of dispensing with the knife and fork while eating the freshly plucked corn and instead of using the teeth—much like a pig would do—I am ready to vote against the canned corn so long as an ear remains accessible from the patch and will reserve my praise for such when I cannot get the fresh.

Suicide at Corvallis.

Albany Herald, Aug. 16: Seymour Meyers, of this city, who returned from Corvallis last evening, states that yesterday afternoon "Billy Williams, a well known engineer of Corvallis, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a revolver.

During the afternoon Williams walked into Hodes' store and bought a 32-calibre revolver, and also purchased some cartridges. He paid for the weapon and started out of the store. The proprietor had hardly replaced the box upon the shelf when he heard a shot fired at the front door. Williams had deliberately placed the weapon to his temple and pulled the trigger. When Mr. Meyer left Corvallis at 4 o'clock Williams was still alive, but his life-blood was slowly ebbing from an ugly hole in his temple, and it was thought he could not possibly recover.

Williams was for many years an engineer in the employ of the old Oregon Pacific railroad, and for some time worked in Fisher's flouring mill in Corvallis. More recently he has conducted a little repair shop near the ferry. He had been in poor health and was in straightened circumstances, which are supposed to have been the cause of his rash act. He was about 60 years old and had no family.

Left For Africa.

Eugene Guard, Aug. 17: Bishop Mills left today for Africa. The bishop will spend a few weeks in the central states, then on October 10th will leave New York for Liverpool and will go from there to Free Town, West Africa. He will spend about three months in that region inspecting and establishing missions. He will return then to Germany where he will spend several months during which time he will visit the Universities of Halle, Jena, Berlin, Leipzig, after which he will visit the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge in England, to learn the latest word on sociology. He hopes to return to this country by the first of next June.

Pioneer Dead.

Eugene Guard, Aug. 15.—Martin Obersinner died at his home six miles west of Eugene, Friday, August 14th, '96, aged 70 years and 9 months. Funeral will take place from the late residence to the Catholic cemetery, Sunday, August 16th. Mass will be held at the Catholic church at 10:30 a. m. Death resulted from a fall from a wagon.

Health—strength carry us through dangers and make us safe in the presence of peril. Disease germs do no harm in a healthy body. A germ is not a big thing, and it is only physical weakness that makes it dangerous. A perfectly strong man with rich, pure blood, has nothing to fear from germs. He may breathe the bacilli of consumption with impunity. Nature is constantly working to throw off any impurities that may come into the body, but if there is a weak spot where the germs may find an entrance to the tissues, then the trouble begins. Disease germs propagate with lightning-like rapidity. Once in the blood, they quickly fill the whole body. The only way to get rid of them is to kill them. This is what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is for. It purifies the blood. That means that it kills the germs, but that is only part of what it does. It assists in the digestion of food and puts the digestive organs in a perfect condition. It stimulates the secretion of digestive fluids, so promoting healthy food and puts the whole body full of healthy red corpuscles. It purifies and enriches every drop of blood in the whole body and so supplies the tissues with the food they need. It builds up strong, healthy flesh and puts the whole body into a disease-resisting state.

Nine-tenths of all human ailments come from the same cause—impurity in the blood. Take almost any disease you please and trace the cause of it—you will find it in the blood. Purify and enrich the blood and you remove the cause, and so you cure the disease inevitably and infallibly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all diseases depending upon poor, impoverished, thin, impure blood.
