THE VALUE OF SILVER.

Earl Lis Hung Chang says under free coinage the silver in a dollar would be worth more than at present if we elect a silver president. The learned Chinaman don't say how much. Of course, he don't know as much about money as some of the American dead beat politicians who say it would be worth only 53 cents. He is only worth a few hundred millions. He says silver would go up.

Of course, the politician whose brain is so befuddled that he can't see any monetary virtue in anything but British money or national banks, will deny even the authority of Li Hung Chang, who was General Grant's friend and is supporting McKinley. THE JOURNAL is confident that under free coinage the silver legal tender dollar would never go below 100 cents in purchasing and debt paying power. But you might as well sing psalms to a dead mule as tell a goldbug that.

We would like our goldbug friends to comprehend this fact: In proportion as silver would go up other products would go up and gold would come down. The restoration of silver to its full monetary power would take just that much appreciation out of gold.

Silver would be dearer in China and China buys silver every year and sells silver bullion as at present, the Englishman would have to pay $10, or $12 or $16 for 100 pounds of cotton and through the war firm in that helief American cotton would bring that price in Liverpool, instead of $8 per find that neither we or our wives rank Sores, cheap silver bullion is now used by Europe to buy cotton, wheat, rye, wool, hides and other staple products in silver standard countries, and that any rise in the price of silver, as Li Hung Chang says would take place if we elect a silver president, would knock the whole goldbug contention into a cocked hat. What does the goldbug care for the farmer anyhow except to get a high rate of interest?
