In the Hop World. This is the busy season for hop buyers and as a result each passenger train contains a liberal sprinkling of these men while hundreds travel overland in search of hops. They even attend political meetings which are largely attended by hop growers and their many contracts are found.

J. A. Morrison, as representative of the Pacific Hop Co., went to Albany and Lebanon this morning to receive 150 bales which were contracted for. Eight cents is now being paid for a choice product while it is reported that 81 cents was yesterday offered in Dallas. The present demand for hops and the advance in price thereof is accounted for first, by the shortage in England's crop this year; second, by Oregon's superior product, which commands a ready sale at a good price in the foreign market.

It is generally acknowledged that growers who failed to harvest this year's crop, will regret such action since it is probable the price may yet advance. ANOTHER PIONEER'S DEATH.—Thos. Holt, an Oregon pioneer of 1847, died at the home of T. J. Butler, of Albany. He was born in Lancashire City, England, on April 5, 1815. For many years after coming to Oregon he lived near Jefferson, and built up a good reputation as a citizen and neighbor; Arthur Holt the well known butcher of Albany, is a son of the deceased.

Goodale, the Coburg lumberman, returned home this morning after a short business visit in Salem. Mr. Goodale reports business as being quite rushing. An order has been received recently from Marysville, Cal., for 1,000,000 feet of lumber to use in the mines and in constructing homes for the miners. The mill is being run with a full force that the order may be filled as soon as possible.

The order is being filled at the rate of two car loads daily. Custom coming from such a distance certainly speaks well for the Coburg mills, whose reputation for furnishing the best of lumber is widely known.
