"KICKERS."

Salem Wins Saturday's Football Game—Other Notes.

The football game Saturday afternoon between the second University team and Junior team from Chemawa was extremely interesting, but owing to the inclemency of the weather the game was witnessed by only a few Salemites. Both teams were quite evenly matched, as was evident from the playing. During the first half the Salem team scored one touch down, but failed to kick a goal, and when time was called for first half the score stood 4 to nothing in favor of Salem. At three different times in the second half, the Salem team had the pigskin within ten feet of their coveted goal, when they lost the ball. But the next time they sent Max Miller, the plucky full-back over the line, and scored another touch down and again failed to kick the goal; score 8 to 0. The Indian boys seemed to be aroused at this, and began to play hard. By a beautiful end play the "red-skins" in a run of about forty yards, scored a touch down and kicked a goal just as time was called. Score 8 to 6 in favor of Salem. The game was one of the fairest ever seen at Salem, neither team being disposed to adopt unfair methods in order to carry the day.

ON THANKSGIVING DAY.

The prospects are favorable to a pleasant Thanksgiving day this year and no doubt a large number of football admirers from Salem will take advantage of the excellent opportunity offered them for a pleasant river excursion and go to Newberg to witness the game between the Willamette University and Pacific college teams. A great many have signified their intention of going, and your name to the list and let's have a large delegation from Salem. An unusually reduced fare has been secured over one of the popular river steamboats.

"AN OREGON YOUTH."

Saturday's San Francisco Chronicle contains quite an article with regard to the great Thanksgiving game to be played between the Stanford and Berkeley teams. Besides the article regarding the game, from which the following extract is taken with reference to Chester G. Murphy, of this city, who will play quarter back on the Stanford team, the Chronicle contains a cut of the members, of the Stanford team, in which the resemblance of Murphy, though it is quite good, could be greatly improved.

"Murphy will play the kicking position and quarter back on line, bucking plays. He and Cotton will alternate at that position and full back. Murphy, an Oregon youth, is quite an improved player over the form shown in the early games here. He punts high and long, with accuracy. He passes well and runs the team cleverly. He also has developed wonderful ability on a free catch. It is a question, perhaps, if his kicks are always well timed, but he may be relied upon to try every point of the Berkeley line before he is convinced the giants before him may be held."

THAT CORVALLIS GAME.

Speaking of the intercollegiate football game held in Corvallis between the U. of O. team, of Eugene and the O. A. C. team of Corvallis, in which the former won with a score of 8 to 4, the Corvallis says:

"The Eugene boys put up a game considering the horrible weather, and while some of the team indulged in unnecessary slugging, there was less of it than is common in exciting football games. They are a gentlemanly lot of collegians. They are not responsible for the rank decisions of the officials, and it was only legitimate for them to take advantage of them."

U. OF O. VS. M. A. A. C.

On Thanksgiving day the U. of O. team of Eugene will give an exhibition game of football with the M. A. A. C. of Portland at the latter city. The Eugene boys will pass through Salem Wednesday afternoon. The game promises to be quite interesting.

Hawley was quite busy all day enrolling students. Several new students are entering the school at this season of the year.

BOATS.

Locks at Oregon City Opened Sunday.—Boat Movements.

This morning the river registered 12.3 feet above low water mark. The locks at Oregon City were opened Sunday afternoon and boats this morning resumed their regular run between Portland and upper river points. Agent G. M. Power, of the O. R. & N. Co. today removed into his office at the foot of Trade street and was repairing the damages done the office and dock by the recent high water. Agent M. P. Baldwin was also able to return to his office today. Steamer Ramona left for Portland this morning on schedule time. Steamer Altona will arrive up from Portland this evening, she being able to pass through the locks again since the "flood."

Steamer Elmore will arrive up from Portland this evening returning to the metropolis Tuesday morning. Steamer Modoc will leave Salem Tuesday evening for Harrisburg. She will run regularly between Salem and Harrisburg in place of the Gypsy which has been temporarily placed on the McMinnville-Portland route. Steamer Ruth will arrive up from the metropolis Tuesday evening returning down the river on the following morning.

The government snag boat Matholoma has left for points up the river and will begin active work in ridding the river of snags and other obstructions that interfere with the successful operation of the river steamers throughout the year. The O. C. & E. Co. has as yet adopted no schedule but their boat, Steamer Albany, goes and comes at the business of the company demands. Sunday she passed down the river for Portland.

BASEBALL.—The indoor baseball team of Salem's Y. M. C. A. has issued a challenge to the Albany team for an exhibition game. This invigorating indoor sport is being revived and many interesting games will undoubtedly be played in Salem during the winter months.

The Skull of a Mastodon.

Sunday afternoon E. H. Huffman observed in a shallow pool of water beneath the South Commercial street bridge, the skull of some large animal. With the assistance of two bystanders Mr. Huffman carried the skull from the creek to his livery stable near by. It strongly resembles the skull of a mastodon. Although the exterior parts are badly rotted away, enough remains to justify the conclusion that it is certainly the skull of that animal. Its upper surface measures 3x2 feet and the skull weighs about 150 pounds. As to its discovery there remains but one conclusion—that the recent high water unearthed it as it is highly improbable that the force of the current was sufficient to transport it from some point up the valley. Mr. Huffman will no doubt realize a handsome little sum for his find by disposing of it to some museum or collector of relics. While these skulls have been frequently found in the Willamette Valley one seldom compares with the one found in Salem yesterday, either in dimensions or in weight.

KATIE EMMETT IN TROUSERS.—Plays may come and plays may go, but "The Waifs of New York," like the brook, seems destined to run forever. It comes to us tonight at the Reed's Opera House better and brighter than ever. And, by the way, there does not seem to be any other soubrette that attempts this style of character. Whether it appears to be difficult or not it is hard to tell, but Miss Emmett seems to have the field to herself, and her popularity is well deserved, for a brighter and more pleasing person in trousers it would be hard to find.

A Fatal Wedding.

While the wedding bells were ringing, "Golden" Democrats were there. To the G. O. P. were married. Thinking "pie," would be their share. Telling tales of fond affection. All were acting well their parts. But when that "pie" is delivered there will be some broken hearts. Sad, very sad; but "Senorita" will not break the hearts of any.
