INDOOR BASEBALL.

The indoor game of baseball at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Saturday evening, was by far the most interesting one that has taken place this winter. It resulted in a victory for the Yellows, the score being 6 to 5. Some very good individual playing by Captain Babcock, of the Reds, and Captain Olinger of the Yellows, and also by Wm. and Joe Evans, were the features of the game. Max Miller umpired the game with his usual impartial rollings. These games will be repeated at intervals during the winter. C. J. Atwood has succeeded Wm. Babcock as captain of the Reds.

Webbling Sisters.

In a unique entertainment at Reeds Opera house Wednesday night, popular prices, 25 and 50 cents.

The Seattle papers speak very highly of these talented ladies. An entertainment that had the charm of novelty was that given by the Misses Webbling who are three charming, bright, attractive English ladies, and have totally shaken off the mannerisms and affectations of the professional stage. Their entertainment is none the less artistic for the absence of this quality. Their sketches and specialties are rendered with exquisite grace and skill, and have a novelty and freshness that is all their own.

SPECIALS.

Police Are Still on Duty

But Some of the Men Repudiate the Whole Transaction.

The appointment of ten Salem special police, a squad of whom were detailed to surround the speaker's desk, the closing days of last week, has created great excitement in this city and all over the state. It now appears that they acted at the state house under direction of a Portland slinger named McGinnis.

The Benson faction have entirely backed down on their proposition to take possession of the speaker's chair by force.

Thursday evening they were appointed special police to keep down housebreaking, but at 11 o'clock on Thursday night they were released from duty and told to report at the state house at 7 a. m. Friday. In the meantime they were armed with appointments by the Rump Speaker Benson as deputy sergeants-at-arms of the house of representatives.

Some of the men say they never expected to be put in the service of the state, and were not prepared for any such duty, but are averse to doing any such political service. A number declare that they would never interfere with the Davis organization. Mr. Charlton, one of the ten specials, says he was asked to serve because he had seen service on the police force in other places, that he was never near the state house, but sympathizes with the efforts of the silver men to get control of the organization; that he is a silver man and told the authorities so when he was appointed. He and others want it distinctly understood that they took no part in what was done at the state house and have no sympathy with it.

In regard to the pay of the men who did go to the state house to help the Benson faction take forcible possession of the house of representatives, some of them say they expect pay from the state, and some say their pay is guaranteed by private parties. Others of them say they will be paid both by the city and the state. One thing is certain, that as the ten were sworn in as special city police, the city will have a bill to pay.

TAX.

A Levy of Six Mills Voted

For the Support of Our Excellent Public Schools.

Nearly one hundred tax payers and legal voters of school district No. 24, met in the opera house Saturday evening for the purpose of levying the annual school tax besides ascertaining the proper course to pursue with regard to the further engagement of the Polytechnic school building of North Salem for school purposes.

The annual report of the school board, published in these columns Thursday evening, recommending that a tax of six mills be levied on all taxable property within the district, was read by Clerk Bozorth. Immediately following the reading of the report, a motion was made and promptly seconded that a six mill tax be levied. The question was placed before the party of taxpayers and was unanimously carried. The matter of further engagement of the Polytechnic school building was the next topic that demanded consideration at the hands of the taxpayers.

Mr. C. B. Moores and Mr. Presnell presented the claim of the residents of Highland to the further rental of the building for school purposes while Messrs. J. H. Albert, Dr. L. L. Rowland, Dr. W. S. Mott, D. J. Fry, P. H. D'Arcy, Eugene Willis and Adam Ohmart were disposed to differ with regard to the advisability of further engaging the building referred to. However the question was put and as a result of the vote, the directors were authorized to rent the Polytechnic building for another year. Adjournment was then taken.

A CARELESS PRACTICE.—Saturday forenoon a number of small boys found a human hand near the railroad track near the intersection of Twelfth and Chemeketa streets. How it came there could not be determined, but, judging from its appearance one would naturally suppose it originally came from the dissecting rooms of the medical department of Willamette university. It seems as though some attempt should at least be made by the medical department to prevent any more such occurrences.

BURNS.

The Scotch Poet's Birthday.

Celebrated by the South Salem Reading Club.

About forty members of the South Salem reading circle assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jory on South Commercial street Saturday evening in honor of the birthday of Robert Burns, which occurred January 25, 1759.

Following program of special topics had been assigned, and the members responded with short papers or talks, followed by discussion. At the close each member responded with a favorite quotation from the poet.

THE PROGRAM.

Biography of Burns..... C. R. Welch

Contemporary History..... Mrs. Hall

Social Conditions in Scotland at His time..... John R. Bayne

Traits of the Scotch People..... Mrs. McPherson Lee

Contemporary Literary Men..... Frances M. Brown

Jeanne Armour Burns..... Mrs. Mourner

Burns at Edinburgh..... Mrs. Morrison

Burns as a Poet..... Mrs. Stockman

Burns and the Church of His time..... Mrs. V. W. Ohmart

Carlisle's Estimate of Burns..... O. Hall

His Three Sweetest Songs..... Mrs. C. T. Bruce

Burns as a Letter Writer..... Miss Anna Judson

His Opinion of Aristocrats..... John L. Brown

The Admiration of Burns by Subsequent Generations..... E. O'Flynn

Fashions of Dress at His Time..... Mrs. M. B. Nichols

His Social Life..... J. Macy

A showing of hands disclosed the fact that nearly one-half the members were Scotch or had Scotch blood in their veins. In the absence of President J. O. Hall, Lawyer John M. Bayne, a Scotsman born, presided. The evening was closed by singing of "Auld Lang Syne," led by C. W. Scriber, who also favored the club with a song in Spanish, which for good reasons the reporter does not transcribe. Some of the papers read could not be easily surpassed in point of ability at any college in Oregon.

The club meets next Saturday evening with Mrs. Piper. Special topic: Wendell Phillips.

PIANO PEDAGOGY.—Enil L. Winkler will give a conversation on Piano Pedagogy every Saturday at 19 a. m. at his studio in College of Music Building. Admission moderate.
