BENSONITES.

Adjourn Over to Monday.

They Had Heard What the Senate Had Done and Decided to Stay.

The gallery was a black mass of humanity. The corridors were jammed and the crowd surged up toward the speaker's stand. The sergeant-at-arms and doorkeeper were kept extremely busy keeping silence and order. The speaker did his best to keep order. The crowd was assembled to witness the last session of the Benson faction.

As predicted in THE JOURNAL Wednesday they adjourned over to Monday.

BENSON HOUSE—FRIDAY NIGHT.
Called to order at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Benson in chair.

Present: Benson, Bridges, Brown, Chapman, Conn, Crawford, David, Gratke, Gurdane, Hogue, Hope, Huntington, Jennings, Lake, Langell, Marsh, Merrill, Nosler, Palm, Rigby, Smith of Marion, Somers, Stanley, Thomas, Thompson, Veness, 26.

Somers reported for committee on mileage and per diem. Conditions had changed so they found it impractical to report at present. They were granted further time.

CRAWFORD RESOLUTION.

Huntington called up resolution to vacate 27 seats, and moved to amend. Conn seconded.

The amendment aimed to strike out the list of members whose seats were sought to be vacated.

Thomas: That would leave nothing but a lot of whereases to the resolution, would it not?

Hogue: He believed this amendment was a step backward, and a proposition to capitulate at the last hour of the last day; he was opposed to it.

Somers: The time had come when patience ceased to be a virtue. All had been done to induce the opposition to come in and organize. Not a member of this house but had appealed personally to them to come in. But they had rejected all overtures. He believed in putting this through. His conscience and his judgment told him he was right. The opposition has given evidence of guilty conduct by its absence.

Brown of Morrow, said this resolution was aimed at men who had dishonored the flag of our country. Should we grovel on our hands and knees before these people and say we have sinned in your sight and in the sight of your rulers. Each house was the judge of the qualifications of its members, and had the power to expel such members for failure to perform their duty. The opposition members were disqualified by their conduct and it was the duty of this house to say so.

We have got in such a position that we have got to show the people that we stand for American principles. My present opinion is to vote for the resolution.

Huntington in closing the debate said he had no objection to passing the "whereases" and resolutions, to inform the governor, or to call his attention to the matter. But we are here called upon to make a solemn finding of fact and to declare vacancies which we have no power to do, and on what evidence? That they had not even a report of a committee of this house. If a circuit judge refuses to sign a bill of exceptions a mandate must be had from a superior court to compel him to do so. If a man don't pay his debts we must make complaint to a court.

He could only be defaulted after he had notice according to legal process. No evidence was before this body to act upon, and this house was asked to find an ex-parte judgment.

Brown: What you seek to strike out is not the finding of fact, but the conclusion?

Huntington: The enumeration of the offices to be declared vacant.

Somers claimed that on January 23 the opposition had notice served upon them to come and show why they were not at fault. They are in default and have treated us with contempt. He denounced the course of the senate and the president of the senate in strong language.

Crawford wished to say one or two words and would then move an adjournment. He had received information that some of the parties sought to be vacated would come in and organize Monday he would move to adjourn to Monday at 11:30.

Huntington showed that the notice claimed to have been served on the opposition was not a legal notice.

Crawford's motion to adjourn was seconded. Lost.

Brown moved the previous question. Carried by 17 yeas to 9 nays.

Huntington's amendment was put to vote. Crawford said when his resolution was offered it was understood that there was to be no vote if the senate adjourned over. Lost yeas 6, nays 21.

Yeas: Conn, Crawford, David, Hogue, Huntington, Benson, 6.

Noes: Bridges, Brown, Chapman, Gratke, Gurdane, Hogue, Jennings, Lake, Palm, Rigby, Langell, Marsh, Merrill, Nosler, Smith of Marion, Somers, Stanley, Thomas, Thompson, Veness, Wagner, 21.

On the Crawford resolution the vote stood yeas 16, noes 11, as follows:

Yeas: Brown, Chapman, Gratke, Gurdane, Hogue, Jennings, Langell, Marsh, Merrill, Nosler, Rigby, Smith of Marion, Somers, Stanley, Thompson, Veness, 16.

Noes: Bridges, Conn, Crawford, David, Hope, Huntington, Lake, Palm, Thomas, Wagner, 10.

Not voting: Hudson, Mitchell, Vaughan, 3.

A motion to adjourn to 11:30 Monday was carried by same vote.

So the Benson house adjourned.

ASSEMBLIES.

Voting Blank Cartridges.

Mitchell Men Get Mad and Abuse Their Betters.

There was an immense crowd in the galleries and lobbies at 10:30 Friday night when the last Mitchell joint convention was to assemble. Johnson, Nosler and others hurried to and fro in conference with Chairman Brownell. It was decided, in advance, to head off a vote.

THE JOINT CONVENTION was called to order at 10:51 and roll-call showed the following present:

JOINT ROLL CALL.
Benson, Bridges, Brown, Brownell, Chapman, Conn, Crawford, David, Driver, Dufur, Gratke, Gowen, Gurdane, Harrison, Hogue, Hughes, Hope, Johnson, Jennings, Langell, Marsh, Merrill, Nosler, Patterson, Price, Palm, Rigby, Smith, Somers, Stanley, Thompson, Thomas, Taylor, Veness, Reed, Wagner—36.

As in the case of the Benson house, the adjournment of the senate over to Monday had worked a disturbance in their calculations, and new plans had been made. The rollcall was not got through without some speech-making.

THE TALKING.

Gurdane now said he was raised an American and he was 73 years old, and why he, elected as a Republican, who had been here for forty days, could not be permitted to vote for senator. Those men who were staying out were giving this state a reputation for disorder that would keep people from coming here in future to join our population.

Nosler said in one hour from now the 19th general assembly would be at an end. He would not use harsh language, but he had stayed here forty days, and the opposition expected them to surrender. But they would never surrender. He eulogized the two Democrats who were sitting with them. He believed when the opposition found them immovable the opposition would come to their senses. He for one was determined to stay here all summer.

Brown of Morrow, when his name was called arose and referred to the Mitchell letter as published in THE JOURNAL Friday evening. He considered that if the letter was authentic then no opponent of Senator Mitchell had a right to remain out of this assembly. He simply wished to be recorded as one of the men who respected the principles of Americanism and of the flag that waved over this building. The goddess of liberty would bow her head in shame if this body failed to meet from day to day. He trusted all who remained outside would now come in and participate in these proceedings.

Reed asked if Brown had not voted to expel the 27 members he was now asking to come in? The rollcall was closed by a speech from Mr. Brownell.

JOURNAL "X" RAYS.

Directed Upon the Oregon Legislature and Lobby.

We are all fighting for Americanism—and a postoffice.

Yesterday was a complete Waterloo—for the Mitchellites.

Gratke never fails to attend the Mitchellized Republican caucus.

It seems there are two kinds of Methodism: Dr. Driver's and the other sort.

And sixteen members solemnly declared the seats of twenty-seven members vacant.

Bob to George C. B.: "I'm running the reform school boys and can't, but you just give 'em hell."

Col. Bob Hendricks was on the floor of the joint assembly directing the Mitchell forces in person Friday night.

A member, from Lane, says what takes the Palm: "There are too damn many constitutional lawyers in our crowd."

It was purely an accident that all four of the speakers last night waved the flag and proclaimed their Americanism!

When Brownell announced a "Republican" conference the other day it was noticeable that Nosler was a participant.

Bob Hendricks to Brownell: "I dare n't abuse Lord or Kincaid in my paper, but you make a hot speech and I will endorse it."

A Frenchman says that America has sixty million people "mostly colonels." If he had come to Oregon he would have made it unanimous.

Senator Reed punctured Brown's second oratorical flight, by one of those blunt questions that he always seems to stumble upon entirely by accident.

Nosler declared that in one hour the nineteenth general assembly would be a thing of the past and then voted to adjourn until Monday at 11:30.

It is a pity a telegram from Horr and credentials from the A. P. A. can't give Mitchell a seat in the next senate. "Tis pity; but pity 'tis, 'tis true."

The Statesman records that Brownell "talked eloquently." But it was only after he had sent a page with a note to Postmaster Nosler to call upon "the president for a few remarks."

The Mitchell "let-himself-down-easy" circular was printed at the Statesman office for private circulation only. The public found it in THE JOURNAL.

Great Scott! Nosler and Brownell posing as the representatives of the whole Republican party of Oregon. That's what they said they were doing, and they are truthful men.

The sweetest sound on earth is said to be the swan's death song. Mitchell never sang so sweetly as he does in that farewell address to the Republican party which was delivered in a hearse.

A man imported from Kansas between two days and supported by Mitchell contributions ever since, when he wasn't striking Dolph for a loan, is a pretty bird to jump onto men like Scott, Lord, and Kincaid who pay their own bills.

Senator Mitchell, now honestly, don't you think it takes the barefaced impudence of a hard-boiled criminal to keep up such a proceeding as the Benson house, in the hope of retaining a seat in the United States senate, when according to its own theory it has expired by limitation? Come, fess up.

In the Davis house those responding to the roll call Friday were: Bayer, Bilyeu, two Davises, Dustin, Emery, Hill, Hewser, Lee, Ogle, Povey, Riddle, Schmidlein, J. S. Smith and Yeakum, 15. These members can attend and do attend whenever there is or can be a lawful session of the house.

Senator Brownell at beginning of the session wrote Secretary of State Kincaid asking for an important appointment at the state house, declaring his unbounded admiration for Kincaid. In his Friday night speech he showed his gratitude as only Brownell can.

As Col. Chas. Knowles, head push of the Mitchell push remarked last night "I would not go through again what I have gone through for the last thirty days to become president." His industry has consisted in having Mitchell meal tickets punched, smoking Mitchell cigars and drinking Mitchell cocktails.

Brownell helped kill the Republican party in Kansas before he came to Oregon. He is doing much toward accomplishing the same result here. He and his associates by their "methods" have turned Clackamas county, and by allowing him to pose as the representative of the whole party, as he did last evening, he will turn the entire state.

Poor Nosler? He has only a ghost of a claim to a seat in the house. After going back on the Populists who elected him, he is now met with the denial to sign his postoffice petition by the Republicans. The Republicans have made a fool of him. Ikey Patterson, the Marion county boss, refused point blank to sign Nosler's petition.

GAME.

The Joint Convention Routine.

Only Thirty-one Answer Rollcall—Others Accounted for.

Many members have gone to Portland to spend the Sunday and there is a general impression that there will be an organization Monday.

IN DAVIS HOUSE.

In the original Davis house Bilyeu, of Lane, created a diversion by calling attention to the action of the Benson house in seeking to declare their seats vacant. He wanted to know if this made their railroad passes unconstitutional. The chair would not decide the question. Bilyeu then asked the chair to give an opinion on the Benson house. Speaker Davis replied that it stood on the same relation as a third house.

After some further facetious passages, the house adjourned till 9:30 Sunday as has been its custom.

JOINT CONVENTION.

Twenty-two representatives and nine senators answered to rollcall at Saturday's joint convention.

A letter was read from Representative Merrill, and the president stated that the other absentees were fully accounted for to make up the 39.

The usual motions to dispense with reading the journal, and adjournment over to Monday at noon, were passed.

The chair announced a conference on Monday at 1 o'clock at room three in the state house.
