

The indications from McKinley's message are to the effect that the Republicans will attempt to take the money question out of politics, by the appointment of a commission to revise the currency system as it now stands, and suggest such changes as will produce a better system. But after all the findings of such a commission will have to be enacted by a congress and carried out by a president and therefore the whole subject will again become political, because it is only through political agitation that permanent results are reached in our country. The responsibility in a people's government cannot be delegated or done away with by any locus-pocus, nor can the people be prevented from passing upon the right or wrong of the matter from their own standpoint. It is not going to be possible to take the money question out of politics, much as that might be desired, any more than it will be possible to take the tariff out of the field of discussion. And why is it not better that the political activities of the people be engrossed with revenue and finance problems, or rather with political economy, than with questions like socialism, or religion? Political economy controversies may hurt business or injure credit, but no one will be burned at the stake so long as we wrangle over protection and silver or free trade and gold standard. For seventy millions of people to keep from trying to divide up one another's property or from trying one another for conscience sake in a court of inquisition, is a great thing after all. It is also a great thing to settle all questions at the polls and in public meeting instead of marching in armies against one another. We shall dislike very much to see the currency and the tariff cease to be food for campaign thought, because we fear the trend of the public mind would be toward problems that could with less safety be left to political agitation. So when you declare in your heart that the country might prosper if finance and the tariff were not subject to a biennial ripping-up, console yourself with the thought that worse evils might befall the country. For instance, who would not think with horror of the possibilities of an anti-secret society campaign.

Governor Lord who helped to make the campaign for McKinley in Oregon is going to appoint a senator to the Mitchell vacancy and he is going to see to it that the senator he appoints is in harmony with the administration. He is not going to ask Mark Hanna who to appoint nor anyone else. But as a careful and prudent party man he is going to see that the senator is in harmony with the main features of the party policy he is to represent. Now a man who would make the single gold standard or bimetallicism either the foremost plank in his platform would not fill the bill. That is a ticklish question with the occupant of the white house himself. McKinley and his advisors are trying to hedge and defer the money question for a more convenient season until they can restore the revenues along the tariff route and an additional tax on beer and spirits. They will find the tariff a hard nut to crack but crack it they must. In fact McKinley has his laws already set on the nut and his hand under his law to help the cracking process. The tariff is the big hard question before the Republicans. The facts face them that under the Wilson tariff we have an increasing export trade and the trusts are not enjoying the best of health. A tariff that would check foreign trade and stiffen the backbone of the trusts might produce less revenue. Senator Kyle declared when elected he was for too silver but would help enact a moderate tariff law. Turner, of Washington, said he would not abandon his tariff views but he would not help enact a tariff that would produce a six million dollar campaign fund. There will be as hard a fight on the part of the trusts and syndicates over the tariff bill at the special session as there was over the Wilson-Gorman bill. The presence of an able, moderate protection Republican from Oregon may be the salvation of the party and the country from the Republican standpoint. Born and bred a Republican we can see the importance and necessity of this as Democrats and Populists perhaps will not see it. And we do not hesitate to express the hope that Governor Lord will find a man to fill the bill. To our mind Mr. Turner, of Washington has taken a position that is truly representative of the northwest and the nation.

The procession of Cleveland and McKinley from the capital to the white house was one continued ovation and a great many horses were frightened; that is a true picture of the inauguration. The ovation was the tribute of the salaried class to the head fountain of their existence—the power to dispense office. That salaried class is one of the greatest evils of the time. In all these years of distress and falling prices but one class has held its head proudly aloft and its incomes have suffered no diminution. Congress after congress passes billion dollar marks, while Senator Chandler tells the senate of the United States that the total valuation of property has shrunk from sixty-five billions in 1890 to about forty-nine billions in 1896, and yet our debts he says are sixteen billions—a very low estimate—and they have not shrunk a farthing. In all this time not a salary at Washington has been reduced but office-holding class have become more and more the dictators of the politics and the legislation and the administration of the country. Not alone at Washington but in the States. Where is the state that has not a ring of politicians that seek to dictate nominations of state officials and legislators who shall oppose reductions? Where is the county or city that has not its select coterie of managers who perpetuate themselves at the expense of the taxpayer and to prevent adjustment of their fees and salaries to meet the urgent poverty of the taxpaying classes? In addition to the resident salaried class there were the majors and colonels from all over the nation who could get a railroad pass and cheer for honest Bill McKinley who is not a politician but whose magic tariff touch is to turn all into golden prosperity. His hand is to touch the button that will convert hard times into a continual picnic of industrial activity and two employers are to be found chasing the laborer where one stood back and shook his head before. The black smoke is to roll from every furnace day and night. All the idle money is to come out of the banks and start new factories. Dividends are to grow on the trees and the farmers are to get double prices for their wool and wheat. Is it any wonder the horses were frightened?

MCKINLEY'S INAUGURAL.
emphasizes the advantages of incalculating ever a great love for law and order in the future. Immunity should be granted to none who violate the laws, whether individuals, corporations or communities, and as the constitution imposes upon the president the duty of both its own execution and of the statutes enacted in pursuance of its provisions, I shall endeavor to carry them into effect.

TRUSTS AND MONOPOLIES.
"The declaration of the party now restored to power has been in the past opposed to all combinations of capital, organized in trusts or otherwise, to control arbitrarily the conditions of trade among our citizens, and it has supported such legislation, as well as to prevent the execution of all schemes to oppress the people by undue charges on their supplies or by unjust rates for the transportation of their products to market. This purpose will steadily be pursued, both by the enforcement of the law now in existence, and the recommendation and support of such new statutes as may be necessary to carry it into effect.

IMMIGRATION LAWS.
"Our naturalization and immigration laws should be further improved to the constant promotion of a safer, a better and higher citizenship. A grave peril to the republic would be a citizenship too ignorant to understand or too vicious to appreciate the great value and benefit of our legislation and laws, and against all who come here to make war upon them our gates must be promptly and tightly closed. Nor must we be unmindful of the need of improvement among our own citizens, but with the zeal of our forefathers encourage the spread of knowledge and free education. Illiteracy must be banished from the land if we shall attain that high destiny as the foremost of the enlightened nations of the world, which, under providence, we ought to achieve.

THE MERCHANT MARINE.
"Congress should give prompt attention to the restoration of our American merchant marine, once the pride of the seas in all the great ocean highways of commerce. To my mind few more important subjects so imperatively demand its intelligent consideration. The United States has progressed with marvelous rapidity in every field of enterprise and endeavor until we have become foremost in nearly all the great lines of inland trade, commerce and industry. Yet while this is true, our American merchant marine has been steadily declining, until now it is in percentage and tonnage lower than the number of vessels employed than it was prior to the civil war.

"Commendable progress has been made of late years in the upbuilding of the navy, but we must supplement these efforts by providing as a proper consort for it, a merchant marine amply sufficient for our own carrying trade to foreign countries. The question one that appeals both to our business necessities and the patriotic aspirations of a great people.

FOREIGN RELATIONS.
"It has been the policy of the United States since the foundation of the government to cultivate relations of peace and amity with all the nations of the world, and this accords with my conception of our duty now. We have cherished the policy of non-interference with the affairs of foreign governments, wisely inaugurated by Washington, keeping ourselves from entanglement either as allies or foes content to leave undisturbed with them the settlement of their own domestic concerns. It will be our aim to pursue a firm and dignified foreign policy, which shall be just, impartial ever watchful of our national honor, and always insisting upon the enforcement of the lawful rights of American citizens everywhere.

"Our diplomacy should seek nothing more and accept nothing less than is due us. We want no wars of conquest; we must avoid the temptation of territorial aggression. War should never be entered upon until every agency of peace has failed. Peace is preferable to war in every contingency.

THE ARBITRATION TREATY.
"Arbitration is the true method of settlement of international as well as local or individual difference. It was recognized as the best means of adjustment of differences between employers and employes by the 49th congress in 1886, and its application was extended to our diplomatic relations by the unanimous conference of the senate and house of the 51st congress in 1890. The latter was accepted as a basis of negotiations with us by the British house of commons in 1893, and upon our invitation, a treaty of arbitration between Great Britain and the United States was signed in January last. Since the treaty is clearly the result of our own initiative, since it has been recognized as the leading feature of our foreign policy, throughout our international history, the adjustment of difficulties by judicial methods rather than by force of arms, and since it presents to the world the glorious example of reason and peace, not passion and war, controlling the relations between two of the greatest nations of the world, an example certain to be followed by others, I respectfully urge the early action of the senate thereon, not merely as a matter of policy, but as a duty to mankind. The importance and moral influence of the ratification of such a treaty can hardly be overestimated in the cause of advancing civilization. It may well engage the best thought of statesmen, and people of every country cannot but consider it fortunate that it was reserved for the United States to take the leadership in so grand a work.

EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS.
"It has been the uniform practice of each president to avoid as far as possible the convening of congress in extra session. It is an example which under ordinary circumstances and in the absence of public necessity, is not to be commended, but a failure to convene the representatives of the people in extra session when it involves a neglect of public duty places the responsibility of such neglect upon the executive.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.
"Reforms in the civil service must go on, but the change should be real and genuine, not perfunctory or prompted by a zeal in behalf of any party, simply because it happens to be in power. As a member of congress I voted and spoke in favor of the present law, and I shall attempt its enforcement in the spirit in which it was enacted. The purpose in view was to secure the most efficient service of the best men who would accept appointment under the government, retaining faithful and devoted persons in office, but shielding none under the authority of any rule or custom who are inefficient, incompetent or unworthy. The best interests of the country demand this and the people heartily approve the law wherever and whenever it has been thus administered.

"The condition of the public treasury, as has been indicated, demands the immediate consideration of congress. It alone has the power to provide revenue for the government. Not to convene it under such circumstances, I can view in no other sense than the neglect of duty. I do not sympathize with the sentiment that congress in session is dangerous to our general business interests. Its members are the agents of the people, and their presence at the seat of government in the execution of sovereign will should not operate as an injury, but benefit. There could be no better time to put the government on a sound financial and economic basis than now. The people have only recently voted that this should be done, and nothing is more binding upon the agents of their will than immediate actions. It has always seemed to me that the postponed meeting of congress until more than a year after it has been chosen deprives congress too often of the inspiration of the popular will and the country of the corresponding benefits.

"It is evident, however, that to postpone action in the presence of so great a necessity would be unwise on the part of the present executive, because unjust to the interests of the people. Our action now will be free from mere partisan consideration than if the question of tariff revision was postponed until the regular session of congress. We are nearly two years from a congressional election, and politics cannot so greatly distract us as if such a contest was immediately pending. We can approach the problem calmly and patriotically without fear of its effect upon an early election. Our fellow-citizens who may disagree with us upon the character of this legislation prefer to have the question settled now, even against preconceived views—and perhaps settled so reasonably, as I trust and believe it will be, as to insure great permanence—than to have further uncertainty menacing the vast and varied business interests of the United States.

"Again, whatever action congress may take will be given a fair opportunity for trial before the people are called to pass judgment upon it, and this I consider a great essential to rightful and lasting settlement of the question. In view of these considerations, I shall deem it my duty as president to convene congress in extra session on Monday, the 15th day of March, 1897.

CONCLUDING WORDS.
"In conclusion I congratulate the country upon the fraternal spirit of the people, and the manifestation of good will everywhere so apparent. The recent election not only most fortunately demonstrated the obliteration of sectional or geographic lines, but to some extent also the prejudices which for years have distracted our councils and marred our true greatness as a nation.

"The triumph of the people, whose verdict is carried into effect today is not the triumph of one section nor wholly of one party, but of all sections and all the people. The north and south are no longer divided on old lines, but upon principles and policies, and in this fact surely every lover of the country can find cause for true felicitation. Let us rejoice in and cultivate the spirit. It is ennobling and will be both a gain and blessing to our beloved country.

Let me again repeat the words of the oath administered by the chief justice, which, in their respective spheres, so far as applicable, I would have all my countrymen observe: "I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."
"This is the obligation I have reverently taken before the Lord, Most High. To keep it will be my single purpose, my constant prayer, and I shall confidently rely upon the forbearance and assistance of all the people in the discharge of my solemn responsibilities."

MARION.
Our beautiful spring weather of Wednesday has been followed by rain and in a measure cast a discouraging look on the farmers who were looking forward to the privilege of sowing their spring grain at an early day. Some have been planting early potatoes and other early garden vegetables.

The annual school meeting of district No. 22, met Monday, March 1, at 2 p. m. J. J. Cook was elected director to serve three years, and Phil Pearson for district clerk for a term of one year. Outside of the above business the meeting beat our Oregon legislature all hollow, so far as disgrace is concerned. Mr. G. W. Epler tells us this (Thursday a. m.) that the trouble was all settled Monday evening by the closing of the program which consisted of the marriage ceremony performed by Rev. B. F. Henshaw, making the happy couple, G. W. Epler and Mary Drake man and wife. May this aged couple live long and enjoy the sunshine of their remaining years is the wish of their many friends and neighbors.
