PROF. WINKLER'S MUSIC STUDIO.

Salem's Leading Artist Opens Up in the Bank Block.

Prof. Emil L. Winkler, who for the past year has been pianist at Willamette music college, and whose resignation was announced some time ago, has withdrawn from that institution, where he became so favorably known to our music-loving people, and has opened a private studio in this city. The Salem public is to be congratulated upon retaining a musician of such high rank in our midst. Prof. Winkler is without doubt one of the ablest musicians and piano performers on the Pacific coast. He is a close student, a hard worker in his profession. His work is the result of years of training under the great artists of Europe, and his natural gift for imparting this knowledge is giving him a wide reputation in Oregon. Many students from abroad have come to Salem the past year to get the benefit of Prof. Winkler's musical genius, and this class will no doubt increase since he has opened a studio purely for his own work.

A SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER.—It will be remembered that the Southern Pacific passenger depot was entered several weeks since during the noon hour and about $40 taken from the till. Suspicion at once rested on two hobos, who had been seen prowling around the depot for several days and were arrested, but at the preliminary examination, owing to lack of sufficient incriminating evidence, the men were discharged. For several days past one of the men has been prowling about the depot again, but the officials are watching his movements and he may yet come to grief.

SOCIAL.—The Ladies of Maccabees expect on the 23d of this month to entertain Mrs. Lillian M. Hollister, lady supreme commander, of the order, for the United States and Canada. In the afternoon the work of the L. O. T. M. will be given to the members at their hall, and in the evening the public will be invited to an open meeting, notice of which will be given later.

SUNNYSIDE.—The school meeting last Saturday resulted in election of J. D. Alexander and W. H. Miles directors, in place of H. H. Smith and J. R. Chambers. There is now not much feeling over the matter. Chas. Thompson was elected clerk. The matter of legality is to be taken before the state superintendent once more.

Know a Good Thing When They See It.

That's what the people of this city do, judging by the patronage we have had the past week. The attraction at our store just now is out.

WEATHER FORECAST.—Winter lingers in the most delightful attitude—in the lap of spring. The forecast for Tuesday is occasional rain for a change.

The Oregonian has discovered that Henry Heitfeld, the Populist senator from Idaho, appears to be a man of considerable culture and character. The New York World asked him for a statement of how he worked his way to the United States senate. He answered, in a neatly written letter, part of which reads:

"I have always made integrity, both political and financial, a ruling principle of my life, and attribute my success to the fact that although I had not been an avowed candidate for the United States senate, I had succeeded in gaining and retaining the confidence of my colleagues in the legislature to such an extent that numbers voted for me in sufficient numbers to secure my election. If there is one characteristic of politics that the American people despise it is duplicity; and I would suggest to the aspirant for political honors that they are generous and might overlook his error of judgment, but once having established his lack of sincerity his doom is sealed."

A YOUNG CONFIDENCE MAN.

How a Salem Mechanic Is Taken in by a Bilk.

Horace L. Robb a short time ago engaged a Salem painter to join him in making blackboards for a large number of school houses in Clackamas and adjoining counties. He represented that he had a large number of jobs and that the work would be very profitable. He offered to divide the proceeds and secured his man. A stock of paints and material came to Salem, directed to the young man's father, Prof. J. D. Robb, of the reform school.

Thus equipped with their little stock and big expectations the party started out. They found at "Whisky Hill" school house and "School House 91" a good reception and did the work, securing their pay, but all the other numerous jobs failed to materialize. They visited district after district that had been booked, but found the authorities knew nothing about the blackboard racket.

The painter grew apprehensive, and began to wish himself back at Salem, when at last they landed at the beautiful little town of Scotts Mills. Here they put up at the Shepard hotel. After remaining all night, the young "manager" was to look up a good job he had "engaged." After shaving and eating his dinner young Robb left the hotel and showed up no more. He had emptied the contents of his valise into his overcoat and left the empty carpet bag, with the horse and buggy as well as the hotel bill, but all without consulting Landford Ong. The Salem painter thus found himself 26 miles from home, with no funds and a board bill staring him in the face.

He readily explained to the landlord his position, and had no alternative in store but to walk home through the mud and rain.

Upon arriving at Salem two days later the bilked knight of the brush visited Prof. Robb, who seemed to know considerable about the affair. He at once wanted him to return for the horse and buggy, which he said belonged to a farmer near the reform school, but the painter would take no chances on a second adventure with the Robb family. However, the professor was undaunted, and drew upon the resources of the state by sending Farmer Buford over to the Quaker city for the outfit and to settle the board bill.

The Salem mechanic is out ten days time, but richer in his store of experience, while young Robb is in Portland probably playing his old vocation of robbing people. This is probably the same young man who was wanted some years ago by the revenue officers, on charge of smuggling, and the public should be on their guard against his methods.

MR. LEITH'S FUNERAL.—Funeral services of the remains of the late L. L. Leith, who died near Clymer, at 10 p. m. on the 12th inst. were held from the residence of D. W. Matthews in Englewood at 10 a. m. today. The funeral was largely attended and Rev. W. C. Kantner, of the Congregational church officiated at the residence after which the members of the A. F. and A. M. took charge of the remains. Deceased was 82 years, 2 months and 26 days old and leaves seven daughters five of whom are residents of Salem and immediate vicinity. They are Mrs. Dr. W. L. Wade and Mrs. John Meyers, of Los Angeles, Cal; Mrs. D. W. Matthews, Mrs. D. F. Lane, Mrs. H. H. Ragan, Mrs. Frank McLench and Mrs. J. D. Clarke of Salem.

Convicts Coming Fast.

Seven convicts were received at the penitentiary, Mr. W. Smith and J. Muir were sentenced to three years each for burglary; C. M. Hoke to two years for burglary; George Sally, two years for larceny and Edward Sally 18 months for larceny, all brought from Baker county. E. E. Lyons, sentenced to one year for larceny, was brought from Lane county. A. W. L. Keys, sentenced for six months for assault, and was brought from Lake county. There are now 351 convicts in the penitentiary.

"Sire and Son" the duet by Professors Werschul and Heritage, tomorrow night at the concert, is alone worth the price of admission.

If your tea is good, it is cheap; if it is not good, it is dear, no matter what you pay for it—you had better drink water.

But good tea is better than water sometimes, because it tastes good, and whatever tastes good makes the stomach work right.

So good tea is cheap and poor tea is dear.

A SPECIAL TRAIN.

Two Hundred Eighty-Five Postal Clerks Pass Through Salem.

About 9 o'clock Saturday evening a special train consisting of seven coaches passed through Salem en route to San Francisco. The cars contained about 285 postal clerks, a number of whom were accompanied by their families, who were out on a pleasure trip.

The postal clerks hailed from the New England and southern states and were enjoying the trip. The train remained in Salem only a short time when she started for the sunny clime of California, expecting to reach Sacramento this morning. It is the intention of the party to remain in San Francisco until the 21st when they will leave for their respective homes via a southern route having made a circuit of the United States. It is hinted that those who desire will witness the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight at Carson City, Nevada, on the 17th inst. While in San Francisco the party will be entertained by the local postal clerks, who had planned a surprise for their eastern visitors the nature of which could not be ascertained at Salem this morning.

Laugh and Grow Fat.

We will all have the opportunity on Wednesday night when American's funniest comedienne, clever Fanny Rice, appears at feed's opera house in the great laughing success entitled "At the French Ball." This entertainment is declared to be a veritable cyclone of novel features, merriment and music, and by far the best thing that Fanny Rice has ever done. A noted critic has gone on record as saying: Fanny Rice has no equal. She is simply irresistible. She is comedienne in the same light that Nat Goodwin and Sol Smith Russell are comedians. She bubbles over with fun and her fun has a positive dynamic force that takes you by the collar and shakes a hearty laugh out of you, whether you will or not. She inspires the play with the spirit of her own personality until everyone on the stage and in the audience is a Fanny Rice in different degrees, and the great charm of it all is, that, throughout the performance, while the fun is at its wildest, there is nothing pert or hoydenish in her acting; on the contrary, she makes manifest a negative modesty and delicacy that wins and holds submissive a genuine admiration. She is a thorough artiste in every sense of the word.

No Electric Lights.

About 6 o'clock Saturday evening the large 3 inch rope on the large engine at the power house broke and as a result the city was in darkness for several hours. Assisted by Supt. A. L. Brown and Jack Robertson, of the Salem Water Co., Engineer Louis Kibele soon had the ropes spliced and at 11:30 p. m. the machinery was again started. At 5:30 a. m. Sunday another break occurred and the company wired to Portland for a professional "splicer" who arrived upon the 6:15 local last evening and by 11:15 o'clock, Sunday evening the machinery was again started. By reason of the break all are and incandescent lights throughout the city ceased to furnish light. This is the first break that has occurred for several years.
