His recent trip has covered a personal visit to all the principal establishments and factories of the east for the purpose of laying in a stock just right for the trade of Krausse Bros., which has been built up by fair methods and close attention to business. The round trip has involved nearly ten thousand miles travel and little Miss Helen, aged six is probably the most travilled little lady of her age that ever left the capital city. JOURNAL "X" RAYS.

Directed Upon the Oregon Politicians and Public Men.

It would be a good time just now for the Statesman to republish that cartoon of the laboring man with his back broke carrying too much silver.

* * *

Salem has commenced her spring house-cleaning, and will soon bloom with the flowers of spring.

* * *

A month ago Wallace McCommant was the most brilliant young lawyer in Oregon. Now he is an idiot in the employ of the Popocrat-Simon-Bourne faction. Both these opinions are furnished by the Statesman.

* * *

Last fall the Statesman could not praise Wallace McCammant highly enough; now it devotes half a column of attempted ridicule to him: why? Is he not the same man, and does he not still advocate the same political principles?

* * *

Some members of the city council seem to think that the chairman of the street committee has nothing to do.

* * *

Salem is all right. She is going to be clean.

* * *

Col. Tuttle is in town. This would indicate that there is to be an extra session. Aside from his weekly visit to his office, here he has not much business at Salem except when the legislature is sitting.

* * *

Gov. Lord believes in a one-member board and himself the member. This comports with the language of Judge Murphy who said: "I am opposed to all rings of which I am not a member."

A New Editor-in-Chief.

The student body of Willamette university held an intensely interesting meeting Tuesday afternoon, the purpose being the election of an editor-in-chief of the Collegian, to succeed Ralph A. Watson. Two candidates were nominated for the office, viz: Messrs R. W. Williams and G. C. Miller. The first ballot, consisting of 100 votes, resulted in a tie. Another ballot was spread and the timely arrival of a Williams supporter resulted in that gentleman's election, notwithstanding some unusual and perhaps uncalled for tactics resorted to by certain members of the opposition who thought by the careful application of which they would succeed in injuring Mr. Williams candidacy. The new editor-in-chief is well and popularly known among the students and is in every way eminently qualified to fill the position with which his fellow students have honored him.

The high-standard of excellence attained by the school paper under Mr. Watson's efficient management will be maintained and still further advanced. The students are to be congratulated upon securing the services of Mr. Williams as editor-in-chief.

SUPREME COURT.

Flagg & Cronize, appellants, vs. Marion county, respondent; appeal from Marion county. Argued and submitted. W. H. Holmes, attorney for appellant: S. L. Hayden, district attorney, and G. G. Bingham attorneys for respondent. The question presented by the record in this case is single, that is, there is but one point to be considered by the court, and that involves the powers and authority of the county clerk in the discharge of his duties under the election laws of the state, which devolves upon him under section 47 of the act of 1891, known as the Australian ballot law. Said section 47 reads as follows: "The county clerk of each county shall cause to be printed according to law all the ballots required under the provisions of this act, and shall furnish the same in the manner hereinafter provided for the use of all elections in the county. Ballots other than those furnished by the respective county clerks, according to the provisions of this act, shall not be used or circulated or cast or counted in any election provided for in this act."

Ordered on petition of R. F. Robinson and six other applicants for admission to the bar, that Tuesday the 1st day of June 1897 at 1 o'clock p. m. at the court room at Salem, Or., be appointed as the time and place for the examination of said applicant, and such other applicants as may then present themselves for examination.

John W. McKinney, respondent vs. The Statesman Publishing Co., appellant. It is now ordered on stipulation that appellant have until May 10, 1897 to serve file its brief.
