L Redeemable money, worked as an endle s chain to compell the government to issue bonds, has convinced other people besides Populists that the government better not have any money that is only used as buckets to bail out the treasury and increase the bonded debt. 'The People's party wants free coinage of gold and silver, both to be legal tender irredeemable money. The People's party wants besides paper money that is not redeemable. History will prove this is right. If we have national treasury notes they must not be redeemable unless we want to see the endless chain revolve and force a bond issue every so often. The McKinley administration is now preparing the public mind for a "popular" loan of $50,000,000 or $100,000,000 bonds to take paper money out of circulation with, which is "redeemable" money.

We believe that the theory of the Independent Bimetallists is the only solution of our financial problem, short of the absolute irredeemable flat money theory of the People's party. The free coinage theory of finance would involve free coinage of gold and silver, without redemption of either. It involves making paper money interchangeable for either gold or silver at the option of the government. We could not have gold, silver and paper money circulate at par unless it was receivable by the government on equal terms and pay- tinue the business at the old stand. able by the government on equal terms.
