BY HOKER BROTHERS.

TUESDAY, JUNE 22, 1897.

Judge Terrell is the most talked about man in the county. Even at country cross-roads, where only one copy of a Salem paper is taken, men, women and children are discussing the county court's peculiar actions. The main facts are on the tongue or in the mind of the public and as never before are the acts of public officials being scrutinized. Such men as Terrell will find they cannot be a law unto themselves, and the people will not tolerate star chamber proceedings in the interest of particular party favorites. The people also seem to think that the clamor of Republican politicians for an investigation of county affairs is buncombe, and will amount to about as much as the ordinary partisan legislative investigation. They have no confidence in the outcome whatever. We do not agree with this view. We believe that the Republican leaders in this county do not endorse the county court's financiering or unbusiness like methods, and that the grand jury and district attorney will, if left to their own sense of duty, probe the matter to the bottom.

It is coming to be believed that Governor Lord will call the legislature in extra session. That is what he should do. That is what he should have done, and would have done, next day after its dissolution, but for the fear that the Mitchell politicians, directed by Mitchell, would again put the senatorship fight to the front.

The feeling is growing stronger that it is a public wrong and exposing the state to vicious influences to have the taxes accumulated for two years in the state treasury, and in the mean time force all employes and business people to carry the credit vouchers of the state without interest, or suffer loss of a big discount. This is a double play in the interest of the banker and money-broker.

We do not believe Mitchell can be made senator. His defeat was deserved and justified the deadlock of the legislative joint convention. He has exerted a most disruptive influence on Oregon politics. He is living at Washington and seems to find employmen of the same kind he lived on while drawing salary of senator.

His advocacy of free coinage and popular election of senators seem to have been only pleasant diversions of a political gallant who could woo equally hard the golden strumpet who has debauched the minds of Republicans and Democrats, and whose itching fingers even dallied with the locks of that Populist Samson, Cyclone Davis of Texas.

To a common man not up in trusts, chicanery or international treaties and law, all the talk about annexing Hawaii and recognition of Cuba smell of faded patriotism and possess a flavor of speculation. Those islands will not cause any physical change to take place in the configuration of the globe whether we own them or not. If they were part of American soil, we would be exchanging our products for theirs. There would be no taxes on export and import any more than there is between the people of Oregon and Missouri. That is where the shoe pinches. The money power don't want us to have the sugars and other tropical products of Cuba and the Sandwich islands, which we can no more grow than we can grow angels. It is true we can grow beet sugar, as well as Germany, France and other countries. But there it is again—a nasty tariff sticking up its head to change our notions of what is just and right. There is no more difficulty about this country acquiring Cuba and stopping Spanish butcheries and misrule, or annexing Hawaii and the rest of those islands, and converting them into a vast health resort for tired out American school teachers, than there was in getting Alaska which some Russian lobbyists want to dispose of to get some ready spending money, and which will always cost us more than we get out of it. Cuba and Hawaii are now the teats of the American sugar trust. The American people are capable of taking their sweetness direct, without fattening all the generations of Havemeyers and Spreckles and other hook-nosed blouts who will next be generously founding religious institutions of learning to teach our children the divine right of man to rob his brother man.

All hail to Queen Victoria! Empress of Britain and idol of British hearts the world around. This is the sixtieth anniversary of her coronation.

Victoria's Diamond Jubilee. Most womanly of women, Queen of Queens. Her throne is set amidst her family, her majesty is her humanity, her royalty is her motherhood. Under the fierce blaze that beats upon those who occupy the seats of the mighty no unwomanly act, no uncharitable word, no deed of harshness or cruelty, no despotic decree, has sullied her fame. The representative of aristocracy and monarchy in its highest form she has yet kept her people's affection and her family's love. A little newspaper in far-off Western Oregon has no space to review her noble life work, or criticise her administration. But we cannot pass this day without a word of tribute to her greatness as a Queen, her purity of life, her sweetness of disposition, and her grandeur and fortitude in performing her arduous duties in her old age.

There was slipped into THE JOURNAL a report of a practical joke on a college professor, supposed to be one of the faculty of old Willamette. It was done by some of the college boys and, as boys' jokes usually are, it was too broad and has given offense to some of the faculty. We regret this, but it seems to us unavoidable in the course of human events that, while there are boys in the world and even young men and young ladies, that colored beetles and curiously constructed natural history specimens will be put before men with spectacles on their noses and called professors. Poems that call the editor an ass are palmed off on the editor and no one of sense but laughs when he publishes them. So we advise the Willamette professor to laugh and show the boys that he appreciates talent even in constructing aniline bugs.

The Chap-Book for June 15 ridicules Charles Dudley Warner's "Library of the best Literature of the World" as a means to enable careless persons to gabble about books which they have never read, and as a means to the dissemination of "half-baked knowledge in its crudest and most indigestible state: to anything but a love of literature." It shows that it kills the real love of literature by supplying people with what they suppose to be a library of thirty volumes, when it is only that many books of second-hand extracts and comments about books instead of the literary treasures themselves. The Chap-Book has told the truth about this much advertised scheme of comprising the world's best literature in thirty volumes. The best literary treasures can be comprised in about twenty volumes, and even less, and the man who will own them, study them, master them, has an education that few colleges are giving nowadays.

PLAIN TALK TO POPULISTS.

EDITOR JOURNAL: What is the matter with our Populist friends, anyhow? For people who are devoted exclusively to principle, some of them seem to verge dangerously close on "offensive partisanship." When it is proposed to them to enter into a union with other reform elements for purpose of carrying out some of their pet theories they inform us that "the Peoples party is already a union of reform elements," and, though they are heartily in favor of a union of all reformers, it must be on the entire Populist platform and inside the Populist organization. That seems to be their peculiar idea of a union attained "honorably and harmoniously." But isn't it almost too much like the harmony prevailing between the lion and the lamb after the lamb had adapted itself to the internal economy of the lion?

And, mind you, this is no kick at the Populist party or Populist principles; they are all right. But there are thousands of voters who are hopelessly prejudiced against the name, and who strongly, if mistakenly, object to some of the minor principles, but who are ready to co-operate on the present great and pressing issues of the free coinage of silver, government currency, and the initiative and referendum. Why not get together on these, and take up the others in their order of importance afterward? All the good things may be accomplished in the fullness of time, but they can't all be done at once. Let us do one or two things at a time, and do them right. There is nothing to be gained by biting off more than we can chew.

It is easy enough to find fault with another's work, and to suggest ten thousand different plans for doing it, no one of which may be half as good. So there seems to be plenty of criticism of the Albany convention, and many other plans advanced, but none to equal the Albany plan if all reformers will go to work on the lines there laid down. The beauty of the Albany plan is partly that it proposes to draw power and inspiration directly from the people at the primaries, while Mr. Spaugh and others propose to "officially" bind the people to support whatever platform and ticket is put up by the leaders. Speaking for one, the writer will remark that he doesn't propose to be "officially" bound beforehand, by any so-called leader, in any such manner.

Indeed, among those who are objecting to the Union party, as organized, there seems to be a very hazy idea of what the object of Union really is. Examine Mr. E.J. Bingham's scheme, the Iowa plan, as published in Thursday's JOURNAL. It comprises what? Simply the capture of the offices and the division of the same between the Democrats, Silver Republicans and Populists. There is no provision for any agreement on any platform or declaration of principles, or on any reforms to be carried out. It is purely a bald temporary alliance between warring parties, for the avowed purpose of getting a whack at the spoils. Free silver is to be simply a pass-word to the sacred precincts of the pie counter. Now that may be very satisfactory to those who expect to get front seats, but to the rank and file who want to see a real improvement in methods it dosn't seem to be precisely like the thing they are looking for.

If we are going in only to knock out Republicans, and divide the offices; to use the cry of free silver and reform only to catch votes; to turn out one set of professional spoils politicians and put in another set of professional spoils politicians; to let things run under exactly the same old system of "the dear people" at election time, and "the people be damned" between times, then the Union party may as well "die aborning." We may as well be skinned by one set of schemers as another, and we must at least give the Republicans credit for the fact that they are thoroughly onto their job, that they perform the painful duty with the utmost neatness and dispatch. (Ah, no thanks, Judge!)

Still, we can hardly expect even reformers to be entirely unselfish. As there is bound to be pie, perhaps it would be better to have it divided "officially." If another convention is really necessary, by all means let us convene and talk the thing over some more. But let the plan of operations be substantially that of the Albany convention, for it cannot be much improved on. It is surely better to pull together and accomplish even a little good than to kick and bray at each other while the country continues to go unchecked to the demnition bow-wows.

DAVID BURR CHASE.

Salem, Or., June 20, 1897.

Union.

DES MOINES, Ia., June 22.—Fusion of the silver forces is well under way in Iowa. The action of the Democratic convention of Polk, the capitol county, in indorsing governor, places him in the front rank as a candidate before the fusion state convention.

The delegates were instructed unanimously to support Judge L. G. Kinne for renomination for supreme jupge. The resolutions adopted indorsed the Chicago platform, protested against the further retiring of legal tender paper and denounced the anti-fusion law passed by the last Republican legislature.

CONGRESSIONAL.

The Tariff Bill Progressing.

The Wool Schedule--Notice of Amendments.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The senate made giant strides on the tariff bill covering fifty-six pages, and establishing a record for progress during this tariff debate. The last two schedules of the dutiable list, covering paper and manufactured sugars, were completed, with the exception of the paragraphs on hides, gloves, coal and some lesser articles, which went over.

After that the tobacco schedule, the reciprocity provisions and the internal revenue portions of the bill and many paragraphs were passed over to remain to be considered. The progress was so marked however, that for the first time there was a feeling that the end was not far off. When the free list was under consideration Bacon gave notice of an amendment placing cotton ties on the free list, and McLaurin gave notice of another amendment taking raw cotton from the free list, thus completing the action heretofore taken of placing a duty of 20 per cent. on cotton.

BIDS.

The navy department opened bids for three torpedo boats, to be of not less than thirty knots speed. The Union Iron works, of San Francisco, bid for one of the 330-ton boats, $245,250; two, $440,000. One boat of 284 tons, $225,000, two, $440,000:

Wolff & Zwicker, of Portland, Ore. one 249-ton boat for $214,500: two for $424,060. The details are complicated. It is impossible to tell who will get the contract until after an expert examination.

POSTOFFICES

A. H. Lotgens was appointed postmaster at Stanford, Lincoln county.

The following Oregon postoffices have been made money order offices, to take effect July 15th: Lostine and Wallowa, Wallowa county; Warenton, Clatsop county and Waterloo, Linn county.

ORIENTAL.

The expectation of the new tariff law being in early operation has resulted in the rushing of big cargoes of Oriental goods to this port. The regular steamers are carrying all the freight that can be stored in them.

NOMINATED.

The president has nominated Joseph W. Ivy, of Portland, Ore., to be collector of customs for the district of Alaska.

CONFIRMED.

The senate has confirmed the following: W. G. Grady, to be governor of Alaska; John U. Smith, of Portland, Ore., and William J. Jones, of Port Townsend, Wash., commissioners of the district of Alaska.

Salem is ahead of all the rest of Oregon. We have a new real estate firm.

"TAKEN IN."

"I used often to read the newspaper aloud to my wife," said Bert Robinson, "and once I was fairly 'taken in' by a patent medicine advertisement. The seductive paragraph began with a modest account of the sea-serpent, but ended by setting forth the virtues of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which, it was alleged, was a cure for all Bronchial, Throat and Lung troubles, and would even cure Consumption, if taken in time. The way I was taken in was this: I had lung disease, and I bought a bottle of the remedy; I was a stranger to it, and it took me in—and cured me." Robinson's experience is identical with that of thousands of others. So true is this, that after witnessing, for many years, the marvelous cures of Bronchial, Throat and Lung affections wrought by this wonderful remedy, its manufacturers feel warranted in saying that this remedy will cure 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease. This may seem like a bold assertion to those familiar only with the means generally in use for its treatment; as, nasty cod liver oil and its filthy emulsions, extract of malt, whiskey, different preparations of hypophosphites and such like palliatives.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 1000 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and 21 cents in stamps. You can then write those cured and learn their experience.

Can't Eat

This is the complaint of thousands at this season. They have no appetite; food does not relish. They need the toning up of the stomach and digestive organs, which a course of Hood's Sarsaparilla will give them. It also purifies and enriches the blood, cures that distress after eating and internal misery only a dyspeptic can know, creates an appetite, overcomes that tired feeling and builds up and sustains the whole physical system. It so promptly and efficiently relieves dyspeptic symptoms and cures nervous headaches, that it seems to have almost "a magic touch."

Yew Park Meetings.

The subject for Saturday evening was "Christ's Second Coming," introduced from the testimony of Jno. 14: 1-3. Jesus says. "If I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself." The speaker said that many contradictory views are taught concerning Christ's coming. Some say he will never come; some teach that he will come personally and visibly to all the world, others that it will be spiritual and invisible, and still others, that it will be a local affair, as to Jarusalem in Palestine. But the only safe way is to accept what the Bible says, and it teaches that he will come personally and visibly, in the brightness of his glory, and every eye shall see him, and all kindreds shall wail because of him. He will not descend to the surface of the earth; but from his position in the clouds of heaven he will send his angels to gather his saints from every part of the world. His coming will be in the night, and will break ubon the world from the east more vividly than if the sun should appear above the horizon in the darkness of midnight. His coming will depopulate the earth; for the saints, caught up to meet their Lord in the air, will ascend with him to the "many mansions," and the ungenerate will all be destroyed by the brightness of his glory. The exact day of his coming is not revealed; but numerous signs and evidence are given in prophecy, by which it may be known when it is near; and Jesus teaches emphatically that it is the duty of mankind to acquaint themselves with these evidences that they may know the time approximately, and be prepared to meet him.

Anti-Butterine War.

KANSAS CITY, June 22.—Agitation has beeu begun in Kansas looking to the passage by the next legislature of a strong anti-butterine bill. This comes as a result of the recent announcement by local Kansas City, Kan., packers that they will immediately begin the manufacture on a large scale of butterine for shipment to all states where laws do not conflict with the sale of that article.
