Shall Judge Terrell be compelled to resign? Or shall he continue to give this county three years more of mad administration as the mere puppet of interested parties? It is well understood that a county judge has almost despotic power if he wants to use it for partisan purposes and to reward political favorites.

Let us look calmly at the situation. After being coerced by pressure of public sentiment, built up without help of the Statesman, that paper covers itself with glory over the outcome of the court house investigation.

It seeks to involve the clerk, who was not sought to be involved by the grand jury. It attempts to inform the public how hereafter public business will be transacted solely by the county court. So far as the Statesman is sincere, its advice and assurances of reform by the county court are timely. But it is history that both Hendricks and Irvine went into the Republican county convention and helped organize it with men like Myers, Bingham and Carson to defeat Judge Hubbard and nominated Terrell, and were richly and amply rewarded with public pay by the county court. Are they disinterested advisers of the county court? While Bingham and Carson showed poor judgment in choosing political associates, they remained loyal to their friends. Carson was rewarded with the nomination for district attorney and business from the county since. It was his hand as a criminal lawyer that skillfully drew the minority report of the grand jury, salivating the taxpayer with hypocritical condemnation of the county court and county clerk to save the consistency of the Republicans on the grand jury and save his client from indictment.

Senator Mitchell has gone to Paris, called there by the serious illness of his wife. Incidentally, like Carter and Shoup, he will re-convince himself that bimetalism can be successfully had independent of foreign powers.

Max Pracht and Ivy are not considered standard Republicanism and if they are the best he can do, McKinley better hang up his hat. This state has been McKinley's friend, but it will quit him if he can do no better. But it is presumed things have been misrepresented to him by "the delegation."

One of the county officers has a table in his office to which he wishes to attach some castors that it may be more easily moved about. He proposes to purchase the castors and perform the work himself at a total expense of about 50 cents. It is quite evident that this officer has not been at the "temple of justice" long enough to know how to have such work done. When the court house repairs were being made he should have called the attention of Judge Terrell to the fact, and the same work would have been "legally" done at an expense to the county of about $10.

"Intent" to defraud is a fine thread to hang a man's reputation on.

No appointment could be more undesirable in Oregon than Max Pracht's, Ivy, who goes to Alaska, is not an Oregon appointment, but is foisted upon Oregon Republicans.

A greenwash in place of a whitewash would not have been in such striking contrast to the members of the county court, as is clearly evident by the manner in which they transact county business.

It might be in order for the Marion county court to proceed with further repairs at the "temple of justice." There is reason to suspect several bad leaks in the county treasury.

Salem's bootblacks are now busily engaged converting shoes from the original tan color to the fashionable dark green, the latter being the prevailing fashionable shade in shoes.

The minority portion of the grand jury should have subjected the court house jobbery case to a "greenwash" rather than a white wash. Green would not have been removed by the first storm of public investigation.

When Judge Terrell next privately files a bill with the clerk, he will add the column of figures and see that they correspond with the amount of the bill. If any "corrections" are necessary they will be made before the bill is filed.

Which act indicates a more determined "intent" to defraud: to raise a bill,

We take up our hat to the woman or man who is out in the berry patches with the children earning an honest living and furthermore teaching the little ones to labor for a living.

Even where whitewash is put on so thin that the first shower washes it off, it has a good cleansing effect.

The Statesman and its gang didn't love Judge Hubbard because he would not sanction all their demands, and the editors of the Statesman and Geo. G. Bingham as delegates worked the Republican county convention hard to get rid of Hubbard. The taxpayers foot the bill.

Geer gets on the delegation to Salt Lake and has an even show for the Portland Collectors. Geer deserves something from the McKinley administration. But it seems old Republicans of character and long standing are crowded out by immigrants for office like Ivy, who has been in the state barely long enough to vote.

All the power of the sheriff's office when armed with subpoenas could not compel the attendance of Judge Terrell and Archie Mason before the grand jury. THE JOURNAL compelled an investigation. The pen is mightier than the sword.

For the first time in the history of Marion county two politicians refused to take witness fees and mileage. Judge Terrell and Archie Mason did not want their $4.40 for appearing before the grand jury. They didn't want to run the county in debt.

Next week, Friday, July 2, the people of Josephine county will witness the first hanging. The culprit, Melson, doesn't want to talk to outsiders. He has apparently given up hope and will go to his death in stolid silence. He has a wife and two children in Crescent City, but they will not be there to see him. The supposition is that his wife thinks he is guilty, though for the sake of her children she prefers that he make no sign in regard to it.

Sheriff Agee is constructing, at Roseburg, two new fruit driers, making five in all, with the capacity of 800 bushels a day. Mr. Agee and Mr. T. R. Sheridan have visited the orchard in the vicinity of Roseburg, and were surprised at the magnitude of the crop. All the trees seemed to be filled, and they estimate that the amount of dried prunes will not fall far below 400,000 pounds.

In circuit court at Union Judge Eakin sentenced G. W. Bartsness, convicted of manslaughter, to serve a term of 10 years in the penitentiary. The court granted a stay of execution for 30 days pending an appeal to the supreme court. The case of the state vs. H. E. Putnam, in which the defendant was charged with the crime of perjury, was tried yesterday and a verdict of not guilty returned.

after warrants have been drawn, in order that the amount may correspond, or to raise the amount of the warrants in the first place?

Would it not be best to conduct a double investigation of Judge Terrell, both from a business standpoint of view as well as to his mental resources? In the former case considerable "irregularity" or shortage in accounts would be discovered; in the latter respect there was never any other condition.

"Table Talk" for June presents an unusual array of tempting dishes for the housewife. It opens with the third article in the series of garnishing dishes, fully illustrated. The delicious recipes and menus given in the "Housekeepers Inquiry" department meet the wants of our up-to-date readers, as they are given in response to requests of its readers, who have learned to rely upon it for all such information. An unusual interesting article is a description of "A Noted Chinese Dinner" of twelve courses, giving an illustration of the Chinese Culinary Art, at a famous Chinese Restaurant in New York City, to Americans.

"A Woman's Part in a Revolution" is the appropriate title of a volume by Mrs. John Hays Hammond, wife of one of the Reform leaders in the revolt at Johannesburg in the Transvaal Republic, of South Africa. The narrative is in the charming style of a recitation of personal experiences taken down on the spot and from the standpoint of a participant in the tragic enterprises. Mrs. Hammond has produced a picture that will live alongside of the descriptions of the siege of Lucknow and other historical disasters, and has also left a clear and kindly impression of the Boers and their rude and primitive methods of government. Her pages are brilliant with incisive sarcasms and flashes of wit, even in the presence of the gallows prepared for the husband of her unborn child, of which she says in the closing chapter: "A few weeks later in my lovely English home, a third son was born to us. There was something very appropriate in this child of war-times being first consigned to the professional arms of a Miss Gunn." Mrs. Hammond shows herself a woman of fine spirit and rare courage throughout the "Revolution," in which she was a conspicuous figure. As the plot to overthrow the Boer government at Johannesburg grows, and thickens into an incipient, though unsuccessful civil war, her martial ardor rises. The book is printed with great taste by Longmans, Green & Co., New York.

An Arkansas paper puts it briefly and truthfully, thus: McKinley is elected; Bryan is not. The election is over; the campaign is not. Confidence has been restored; prosperity has not. The capitalists are banqueting; the idle class is satisfied; the tolling masses are not. The number of empty mouths are increasing; the ability to fill them is not.

DR. MILES' HEART CURE

"For 10 years I suffered from heart trouble. During that time I was treated by five different physicians. All of them claimed that I could not be cured. I was greatly troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation and pain in the side. If I became excited, or exerted myself in the least, the pain in my side became very severe. At times it seemed as though needles were being thrust through my side. Sometime in the month of November last, I commenced taking DR. MILES' HEART CURE and since then I have improved steadily. I can now sleep on my left side, something I had never been able to do before. I can walk without being fatigued, and am in much better health than ever before. I would recommend all sufferers from heart trouble to try Dr. Miles' invaluable remedy without delay." MISS ELLA KURTZ, 218 Wright St., Milwaukee, Wis.

DR. MILES' HEART CURE is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1.50 a bottle for $6, or it will be sent prepaid, on receipt of price by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

At last the farmers are to have a first-class magazine. The Brother Jonathan Publishing Company, of Manhattan building, Chicago, have begun the publication of "The Gentleman Farmer." The June number is the sixth issue and it ends with page 564, or 94 pages to the number on fine paper, with pictures all through as good as the best periodicals have, and matter of great variety and up to date in timeliness. It has poetry and domestic matters, children's pages and artistic illustrations. It seems an ideal magazine for the farmer's family and its editorial department does not hesitate to attack what is wrong from the farmer's point of view. We can commend it, and the price is $1.50 a year.

The copyright of a very noted English novel will expire next year. It is "John Halifax," the story which brought fame to Mrs. Crank. Only the other day a sixpenny edition of that tale appeared in paper covers. The publishers prepared 100,000 copies nor is that issue likely to terminate the demand upon them.

S. R. Crockett's next story is to be called "The Red Axe," red being now the color for fiction. "Under the Red Robe," "The Reds of the Midi," "The Red Badge of Courage," "The Red Scour"—these titles jump to the mind at once.

American women are notably patriotic, and the societies of women organized with the object of fostering the vital fact that Americans have a heritage of liberty, won by the blood of the founders of our country, which should be held sacred, are doing noble work that cannot be overestimated. The account of the organization and present status of the "National Society of the Colonial Dames of America," published in Demorest's Magazine for June, is a specially interesting paper embellished with numerous portraits of the "Dames," which well repays reading.
