The Tariff Work Continues

Party Lines Ignored on Both Sides - Fine Lumber Reduced.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—The Senate committee suffered several unexpected reverses during the progress of the tariff bill debate being debated on these important items. Cotton hogging was placed on the free list by a vote of 30 to 25, and woolen to a vote of 28 to 23. The duty on white pine lumber was reduced from 42 to 31 per thousand, by a vote of 22 to 18. The amendment on pine combined the greatest surprise and led to general breaking up of party lines on both sides.

During the early stages of the debate the duty on lumber, including pine, was placed at 42 after a protracted contest. Teller returned to the contest, and moved to place white pine lumber on the free list. The amendment was defeated by the vote of 22 to 18. Four Republicans—Baker, Carter, Hensborough and Quay—joined with the Democrats, Progressives and Silver Republicans in the affirmative, while three Democrats—White, McCreary and Martin—voted with the Republicans in the negative.

Following up this close vote Martin moved to reduce the rate on white pine from 42 to 30, and it was carried by a majority of one. Two Republicans—Baker and Carter—voted with the Democrats in the affirmative, and three Democrats—Baker, McCreary and Martin—with the Republicans in the negative. The bill is now completed with the exception of the reciprocity section and some comparatively minor paragraphs.

Most progress was made in clearing up detailed paragraphs, heretofore passed over. Only three of these—cork, potato and tea—remain so that these items, the reciprocity section and the brief internal revenue and administration provisions, are all that remain of the bill, to be disposed of before the final vote is taken.

The tariff bill was taken up promptly in the senate when Teller made inquiries as to reports that an anti-trust amendment would be brought up. This was a most important matter, he said, and there should be ample time for consideration. Allen said he did not know what disposal was to be made of the subject, as no action had been taken by the Finance committee. Teller said it had been reported about the chamber that such an amendment had been considered in caucus. He urged that it should not be brought in at the last moment, "as it will not be done," he added with positiveness. Allen gave assurance that no such hasty action would be taken.

White remarked he thought the anti-trust subject had been dropped. "The trouble with Senator White and myself," continued Teller, "is that we are not members of the Republican caucus, and therefore are somewhat in the dark."

NO ACTION. The interstate commerce committee of the senate considered the anti-scalping bill, but took no action. It is probable this bill, and also the pooling bill, will go over to the next session.

PARTY GAUCUS. The Republicans held what they decided should be their last caucus on the tariff bill. The meeting continued for more than three hours and was productive of important results, which were not reached without the display of considerable feeling. Among the points decided were the following:

To report no anti-trust amendment; to withdraw the original finance committee provision for a duty on tea, and an increase of 44 cents per barrel on beer, and to provide for a tax on bond and stock transactions. The greater part of the time was given to the provision against trusts. The decision on this was the basis of the report by the judiciary committee in opposition to any effort to attach a trust provision to the tariff bill.

The committee had held a meeting at which the whole question was argued at length, with other Republican members, including Finley and Chandler. It was there decided that it would be extremely difficult to secure legislation that would be effective and, upon the whole, it was impossible and unwise to undertake it. The report was made accordingly to the caucus, and the resolutions authorizing the presentation of an amendment, pending in express terms for the situation in effect the Wilson law, which makes it unlawful to form a trust in imported articles.

Three called out some vigorous protests and especially on the part of Western senators, and they were replied to with spirit. It was asserted among other things, that the presentation of the new anti-trust provision would lead to a long debate, which would not be afforded at the present time. The success of the proposition to repeal the increased tax on beer and a temporary duty on tea led to quite a pronounced reaction as to the amount of revenue the bill would yield. Many senators expressed the opinion that the volume would not be equal to the demands of the government. It was a response to this view that a determination was reached to provide a tax on stock and bond transactions. The details of the scheme were not agreed upon but left to the finance committee to perfect.

HOUSE ADJOURNED. The house adjourned till Monday, after an extensive attack by Seattle on the power of the house to adjourn for three days at a time. He arraigned the Republicans for not acting on the bankruptcy and Cuban questions.

The sum of $2,000,000 would not be an extravagant estimate of the queen's china at Buckingham palace and at Windsor that the British desert service in the Green drawing room at Windsor is valued at 100,000 pounds, and the Rose du Barr vases, in the corridor, at 50,000 pounds, while there are six betweens vases at Buckingham palace for which there would be an eager competition if they were put up tomorrow at 30,000 pounds.

Astronomer Lowell firmly believes that Mars is inhabited. Astronomer Holden thinks otherwise. It is the Lock observatory against the Flagstaff. The point of contention is whether Mars has an atmosphere. Lowell thinks the cap of white at each pole, increasing in winter and decreasing in summer, is snow. If it is, and freezes and melts, why not water and an atmosphere? Then the network of lines called the canals of Mars cause debate. Lowell thinks they are too regular to be works of nature.

This was the sentiment of an old lady to her grandchild Mabel. And many a Mabel has found it to be true, and the best taken care of her health. She keeps on hand a supply of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and so is not troubled with those wasting diseases, weakness, "dragging-down" sensations and functional irregularities that so many women endure.

A Book of 100 pages, telling how to cure these diseases by home-treatment, sent FREE on receipt of 21 cents in stamps for postage and wrapping only. This book is profusely illustrated with wood-cuts and colored plates, also with a vast number of reproduced photographs of those cured by the use of "Favorite Prescription" and without having to go through the ordeal of consulting a doctor. Full names and addresses are given so you can correspond and learn their experiences in curing themselves. Address, with stamps, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. J. G. Collins, of 111 E. 15th St., Allegheny, Pa., writes: "I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for three months and it helped me more than all the other medicines that I had taken. Had been sick for four months with uterine troubles—was now and then sick and without any trouble whatever; but I could hardly get around at all. This medicine will benefit others."

After his tour around the world General Grant was a delightful conversationalist. Mrs. John Sherwood told him at a dinner, in New York, that he was a very funny writer. "Well, I am not," said Grant. "I had another the genius of Sherman, and the language of Lee or McClellan. I only meant to get them."

Dr. Maurer's "The Marston" is to be printed in book form and will form the third volume of the artist's portfolio, whose delightful pictures of character and scenes remind one of Thackeray in his most genial mood. His last work is a scene the artistographic and will be completed in the current numbers of Harper's.

Joe Chandler Harris has won all the children's hearts completely by his books of "Tootsie Renshaw Stories." But what shall we say of "The Bait" and "The Story of Karna." People who still imagine Walter Scott's tales were intended for youth should try them on this ward of the world. For instance read to a child of little ones "The Thimblefinger and his Queen Country." See their eyes become fixed and fixed and then look in the direction of the artist's wonderful work with characters as real to them as any of this world, but far sweeter and truer to life than life itself. We think about Grimm's fairy tales and Hans Christian Andersen. But what tales have they to compare with the Ladder of Livno, or the Terrestrial's Fiddle-string? It is related that a young Irish lady recently said "The Wearing of the Green" before Queen Victoria and she was very much touched by the pastor and burst into tears. A telegraphic report says the world knows the depth of the Queen's sympathy for the Irish or the tenderness of her heart.

In an historical article recalling the destruction of our National capital by the British forces in 1814, Clifford Howard in the July Ladies Home Journal will show that Dolly Madison, the most beloved and popular woman of her day, was courageous and fearless in the face of grave danger. In the mad stampede from Washington, that preceded the invasion by the British troops, Dolly Madison was the last to seek safety in flight, and her final act before quitting the White House, as the enemy advanced, was to seize the Declaration of Independence and carry it with her to a place of safety. As the White House was immediately afterwards looted and burned by the British, Mr. Howard declares that but for brave Dolly Madison the priceless parchment would have been destroyed.

BURN CLOVER.—Judge Terrell has discovered that the court house lawn, of this county, is infested with the yellow or burn clover, which is such a pest in California. The peculiarity of the plant seems to be that its bloom opens into a burr, which becomes very destructive to the wood crop. Burn wood is a drug in the market. So far Oregon has been free from it, and although it has been discovered in several localities it is to be hoped that the pest can be kept from spreading.
