A Friend's Tribute.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—I was pleased with the editorial given in THE JOURNAL Saturday evening, concerning our late neighbor and friend, E. M. Waite.

Hence I say, let us remember the good man when he dies, extol his virtues, impress his goodness upon the young, show to them that it pays to live an upright life...

Haying knows Mr. Waite for many years, I feel like planting a stone on the highway, and inscribing thereon, "Here Lies a Good Man."

When the old State Agricultural society was struggling for an existence, Mr. Waite was the secretary and almost the entire manager of the affair.

It is on the sunny side of his nature I like to dwell. My earliest recollection of him dates back in the sixties, at a Fourth of July celebration...
