LINN COUNTY HOPS. What a Salem Grower Says of the Situation and the Outlook.

Jefferson Myers returned last evening from Scio and other points in Linn county. When seen this morning by a JOURNAL reporter, Mr. Myers did not consider the hop outlook for this state and in particular for Linn county and also all sections east of the Willamette river, to be very bright.

Mr. Myers has about 60 acres of hops under cultivation near Scio, which he visited Wednesday, besides a large number of other yards in that vicinity. There are about 200 acres in hops in the vicinity of Scio, and from that immense acreage not over 40,000 pounds of good hops will be harvested.

The Lebanon and Eugene districts are in a very bad condition, most discouraging to the growers. Mr. Myers does not think the yield from this state will exceed over 35,000 bales.

Julius Pincus, the Portland buyer, was seen this morning and estimates the yield for Oregon at from 65,000 to 75,000 bales.

E. C. Herren, of the firm of Herren & Levy, does not think Oregon will produce over 55,000 bales while R. H. Leabo, local agent for Faber, Neils & Co., places the Oregon crop at not over 50,000 bales.

STEAMER RUTH DID NOT TIE UP AT HER DOCK IN THIS CITY UNTIL 6 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING. She left Portland Wednesday morning but by reason of her large passenger list, unusual amount of baggage and freight, the trip up from Portland could not be made on schedule time.

Mr. R. Kuehne, of Tigardville is in the city today to investigate conditions about Salem for locating a beet sugar plant. Mr. Kuehne is interviewing business men on what encouragement would be given for the establishment a beet-sugar factory here.

His proposition is not made public, but a meeting of citizens is to be called when the details will be presented. He wants a guarantee from those having suitable lands that from 3,000 to 5,000 acres will be planted in beets, for which he will agree to pay from $4 to $6 a ton, according to the amount of saccharine matter.

Mr. Kuehne has just been to Corvallis and had an analysis made showing 19.9 per cent of sugar in this year's crop.
