

ABOUT OREGON PEOPLE.

Among the Salem business women who are making a successful record as helps to their husbands is Mrs. C. D. Gabrielson, who conducts his insurance office in his absence writing risks, or in charge of the state fair work. Mrs. Gabrielson is a native Iowan and a member of the numerous Iowa colony, of whom that state may well be proud. Mrs. Gabrielson has also developed into a very efficient assistant secretary of the State Agricultural society.

Alex La Follett and Bent Jones, of Mission Bottom, are generally considered to be pretty good men and one seldom hears of anything particularly mean about either of them. But we have recently heard something we consider it our duty to publish. As all know, they grow very fine peaches and supply the Salem market. They have a neighbor by the name of Wm. Col-lard, an older man than either, who also grows peaches and, as that is a great peach region, there is not a little rivalry to get the start of each other in supplying the market.

What did LaFollett and Jones do but go to the principal retailer of fine peaches at Salem, Gid Steiner, and say to him: "See here, you buy Col-lard's peaches. He is an older man than we are. We can rustle and sell ours on the outside. We want ask you to take any of ours unless Col-lard hasn't got enough for your trade. That will help Col-lard out with a big crop and we'll manage to sell ours." And they have kept their word. Steiner has sold hundreds of bushels of the Col-lard peaches and Bent Jones and Alex La Follette have sold theirs. You don't often hear of neighbors in Oregon or any other state giving up the market to one another in that way.

Chas. Riely and Mrs. Riely have lately returned from near Prineville, where Mr. Riely was book-keeper for a big stock company, that owns hundreds of square miles of range and has countless thousands of cattle. They have a large mercantile business and Charley says it is nothing unusual for a man to come in and pay $500 on his store account. If a farmer here owned a merchant $500 he'd have a deputy sheriff on each corner of the place for fear some one would make a haul-off. Sheep herders are paid $40 a month and money is plenty in Crook county. There is probably more wealth per capita in Eastern Oregon than anywhere else in the world. Mr. Riely is an interesting talker about that country and is also very much gratified because his wife has completely recovered her health.

Mr. Field Corn has become a resident of Oregon. We have seen good pieces of dent corn all over the western part of the state this summer.

Near Marion Station, in Polk county, and near Salem are patches of corn from one to thirty acres; that will yield about half an Iowa crop.

"GREATEST ON EARTH."

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. Mr. R. T. Caldwell, is book-keeper in the First National Bank of Fulton, Ky. "I was completely run down, my nerves became so unstrung through loss of sleep and worry that I felt sure I would be compelled to give up my position. I would lie awake all night long, and it took but little to shake me up so that I could not possibly attend to my business as I should. In connection with this I had five dreadful headaches about the stomach and pains in different parts of my body. I was also much reduced in flesh. I was persuaded to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I first procured a half bottle from a local druggist and good results quickly followed. I then procured a dollar bottle, and by the time I had used this up I was a different man. I am now on my third bottle and am able to sleep soundly and eat regularly, something I could not possibly do before taking your Nervine. I can now fully recover, and do not hesitate to pronounce Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine the greatest nerve on earth."

Fulton, Ky. R. T. CALDWELL. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. Restores Health.

The tassels are dry, the husks are opening, and the heavy ears are hanging downward. Mr. Julius Reef on the Garden Road near Salem has early yellow dent perfectly ripe this last week of August. He says half a crop will go as far here for stock feed and fattening hogs, as a whole crop in Iowa. That is because we have very little or no cold weather. There is no trouble at all in raising 20, 30, or 40 bushels corn to the acre and ripening it. But the farmer who does this must have stock to feed it to. Corn has not only become a resident of Oregon but a permanent resident. When THE JOURNAL talked up raising corn as a regular field crop in Oregon a few years ago it did not so soon expect to see results on so large a scale. But we still believe in corn. We believe it is much better to put summer fallow into corn, if it can be used, because cultivation needed to make a crop will clean the soil, and the stalks and roots plowed under will add nitrogen to the soil, just what wheat land needs.

One of the interesting characters of the Capital City is Charles Wolz, better known as the little German butcher. He has just celebrated his 50th birthday by taking a few glasses of beer with some German friends and talking over old times. Wolz came to America as a little boy, returned to Germany in time to serve in the Imperial Guard under King William, of Prussia, in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, was at Sedan, Metz and Gravelotte, took part in the siege of Paris and came back from shooting Frenchmen to carrying steaks, chopping sausage and buying cattle of American farmers. He has been on the coast for over twenty years and raised a family of sturdy children, of whom Mr. and Mrs. Wolz are very proud. Of late Charley has got the gold fever and has been prospecting on Gold creek, not far from the wonderful temple once visited by THE JOURNAL man. Charley works hard and desires to wrong no one. He has a constitution like iron. Wolz measures about 46 inches around the chest and prides himself on the fact that he can lie down and let a 200 pound man dance a jig on his breast. Of a happy disposition, this writer predicts he will not always be the little German butcher. He has boys nearly grown and may one day strike it rich, as he is only in his prime. It is not much over twenty years since the present state treasurer, Hon. Phil Metchian, was only a little German butcher in Eastern Oregon, where it is said a smart man can run a butcher shop and not buy nearly so many cattle as here. But here's luck to Chas. Wolz and his family! May they live long and happily, and may they always prosper.

Hood's Pills

Are gaining favor rapidly. Business men and travelers carry them in vest pockets, ladies carry them in purses. Housekeepers keep them in medicine chests, friends recommend them to friends. 2c.

Hon. Thomas H. Tongue has succeeded in locating the lost muster rolls of the companies of volunteers that fought the Rogue river Indians in 1853. O. F. Hixon, one of the inmates of the Roseburg soldiers' home, was a member of one of the companies, and says that they had long endeavored to obtain recognition from the government, but were informed that there was no record of their services in the war department. But through the efforts of General Lane, when a delegate in congress, they had received pay for their services by a special act, and Mr. Tongue traced this up and found the muster rolls in the treasury department.

Here are a few words from a woman to women. There is no theory about this letter. There is nothing about it that cannot be read, or proven. It is a voluntary statement from a woman who has been restored to health and strength, and who wishes that her own experience may be duplicated by the experiences of others. Mrs. L. Dedmon, of Fair Grove, Greene Co., Mo., writes: "In July 1895 I was confined. My confinement was premature. A hour's weeks after I was taken with severe flooding. I had the best doctor the country afforded. I took medicine for about two months but got no better. I was very weak—could not do any of my work. Could scarcely lift a chair. Suffered with pain in my back and hips and had soreness deep, low down. The doctor said I had inflammation and abscess. He said I would die. I concluded I would consult Dr. R. V. Pierce. I wrote to you giving you a full description of my case. You advised me to take your Favorite Prescription. I began taking it at once. In three days I could feel a change. Took three bottles and the result was a complete cure. I had been six months since I used your medicine and I feel no return of the disease at all. I wish also to say I had not been strong for many years. I had taken several medicines and been attended by doctors but got no better. Truly there is not a stronger woman in the country than I am. I suffer no pain at all, can work all day and not be tired at night. I can cheerfully say that I believe I owe my health to the use of your noble medicine, and your good advice."
