MONDAY, SEPT. 13, 1897.

EDITORIAL.

From January to September nearly $100,000,000 worth of breadstuffs were exported. In same months last year we exported $84,000,000, in 1895 $65,000,000. No one can honestly claim this export trade is affected by the tariff. We are lucky if the Dingley tariff does not cause European countries to raise up barriers against our grain and meat products in the form of retaliatory duties.

Harper's Weekly has a cartoon on John Bull "after the jubilee." He sits drawn up in bed with a horrible cobra labelled India reared up at the foot of the bed. It has clawled out of one of his boots and all about lie empty soda water bottles.

The next Oregon senatorship should not be disposed of to the highest bidder, nor made the prize of a secret raffle. It is almost time Oregon had a senator who went openly before the people and told them where he stood on public questions, be he for single or double standard.

The statement of a representative American that this country was enjoying prosperity at the expense of other countries, is true to an extent of all prosperity, local or national. When there was lack of employment at Salem the woolen mills burned. Result, employment furnished but at expense of insurance companies and subscribing stockholddrs. We have wheat to sell. Frosts, unseasonable weather, lack of rain, too much hail, in England, France, Argintine, Russia, India, Australia, makes it bring a higher price. The American farmer will pay his debts because the farmers of the other countries cannot pay theirs. His children will go to college because the poor of other lands will eat smaller loaves at a higher price. But for this lack of prosperity elsewhere, where would our prosperity come from? We would have corn to burn and wheat to throw to the swine as we did in 1893. It is well to be thankful for our prosperous conditions but it is well to remember in our rejoicing what a famine in India and distress elsewhere have helped produce.

How do you pronounce the word, "God?" The English Poet Watson in his newest poem, "The Unknown God," makes it rhyme with "load" in his first verse and with "clod" in the last. In the Teutonic and Scandinavian languages it is given the long sound, which would indicate that the correct pronounciation rhymes more nearly with "load" than with "clod," but at all times the word is to be spoken with reverence.

Parents should be thinking now about sending their sons and daughters to school. Higher education is a good investmtnt from any point of view. A strong feeling is growing in this community in favor of one or two years being added to the common school course, so as to include the natural sciences, civil government and English history.

The entire south and west should make common cause for the early construction and ownership of the Nicaragua canal by the government of the United States. No middle-man corporation to fleece the people and rob and corrupt the government should be tolerated. In the first place the eastern corporations do not want the canal built.

The advocates of a corporation ridden Nicaragua canal have made an active campaign at every session of congress to secure the guarantee of the United States for their bonds, Senator Morgan has usually presented a voluminous report upon this subject and the canal project has had ardent supporters in the house. The hostility of President Cleveland has been a serious obstacle during the last four years to the passage of a bill giving the government guarantee to the bonds of the New York company, and it has been pointed out by its critics that the pledge of the United States for $80,000,000 or more would simply amount to an increase of the public debt by that sum, and would enable the officers of the company to receive a handsome bonus for the money that they have thus far lost in preparation for construction. One of the important factors in preventing action during the last congress was the firmness of Speaker Reed, who did not desire to have an item of $80,000,000 charged up to the 54th congress.

The situation became somewhat acute toward the close of the congress when a petition was presented to the speaker signed by over 200 members of the house, asking that time be set apart for the consideration of the bi

The ignorance of the average congressman, as to the undesirability of a private corporation controlling such a great waterway of commerce is co-extensive with his willingness to be influenced by a consideration.

With even a half of a crop of hops saved, at present prices hop growers will met better results from the crop this year than for two years past. Chances are favorable to saving more than half a crop. The bad weather has caused loss to pickers. Their season was not profitable.

A city of Mexico Telegram says: "Remarkable activity is shown in the organization of the new stock companies for manufacturing and for trading. This has been especially noticeable since the sharp decline in silver." Mexicans should hasten to adopt the gold standard and check the development of home enterprises.

The completion of the trans-Siberian railway, with its eastern terminus on the western shore of the Pacific will transfer the commerce of northern Europe and Asia to the Pacific coast. Then with the construction of the Nicaragua canal would come another commercial revolution that would multiply the shipping of this northwest coast, which would become the center of commerce between the old and new worlds.

One French steamer, the other day took out 565,000 ounces silver from New York. The fanatics who cry down silver and rejoice that it is worth but half as much as it was less than ten years ago, no doubt lament that anyone buys this product of American mines. They seem oblivious to the fact that the world over there is about as much coined silver as gold. But it is the money of the vulger herd, called the masses, who seldom or ever see gold. But for the special advantages given by legislation the common herd could not be skimmed on exchange the world over.

If you would save useless bills this winter give the children their freedom this fine cool fall weather. Give the little ones freedom to run in open air, and plenty of pure food and water, and all the sleep they want in well ventilated chambers and they will escape doctors and undertakers.

Dry the fruit and save the spuds.

Salem should have one or more drinking fountains like the one erected by Mr. A. Bush at his bank corner. There are still people in this world who use horses to draw their crops to market and let them go without water all day.

The progressive women of the Capital City should organize a woman's club and show the men that they possess intelligence and a social nature apart from their existence as helpmates.

If the spoils politicians have their way, neither Lord nor Kincaid will receive a renomination. Neither the Governor nor Secretary of State will help others to steal, and that is proof positive that they are not sound Republicans in the eyes of the treasury looters. The army of patriots who come to Salem when there is a senator to elect and live all winter on free board, liquor and cigars at the finest hotels, have got to be consulted when it comes to putting up a ticket.

"Sources of the history of Oregon" is the title of a series of pamplets being edited by F. G. Young of the chair of History and Economics at the State University, No. 1 is the journal of Medoreen Crawford, his account of the trip across the plains in 1842. No. 2, an account of the Indian Coucil at Walla Walla by Col. Lawerence Kip, U. S. A. May and June, 1855. This is the beginning of what Prof. Young hopes to do in a more complete and extended manner. It is hoped he may find other records made at the time, in letters, diaries and journals of the first emigrants to Oregon. There is a large amount of such valuable historical material in existence and we trust this item may be means of bringing some of it to the surface.
