We have just received a fresh cargo of the famous Tillamook cheese, for which we have the sole agency. We also keep thirteen other brands of cheese in stock, so we can satisfy everybody.

Many who have tried the Tillamook in the past will be glad to know that we have some more, for there is nothing like it.

EDITORIAL.

THE JOURNAL, cheerfully and without regret, with malice toward none and charity for all, announces that on Monday, November 1, God willing, it will enlarge to eight columns in width and four inches in length added to each page. This will not be done with Mitchell money, or McBride money, or Corbett money, or anybody's but our own money, and in no one's interest but our own and that of our patrons, and as we believe in recognition of the growing business importance of the Capital City of Oregon.

The close of the Iowa campaign suggests this: In twenty-year years of newspaper work we have never known a paper that so fearlessly exposed corruption and jobbery in its own party and then so loyally supported the ticket as the Iowa State Register. If all Republicans were animated by the same spirit the party would not have had so hard an uphill fight as it has just closed in the old Hawkeye state.

The state board of education performed a wise act when they re-elected P. S. Knight and his wife in the management of the Oregon school for deaf mutes. The first number of "The Sign" has appeared and no thoughtful person can read its contents without realizing what a treasure their devotion must be to the unfortunate deaf mute children and parents, and what a satisfaction to the state officials and taxpayers.

Salem has a progressive and enterprising lot of business men. The tendency has been to enlist a larger number of young men in business, as a number of the old standbys have gone upon the retired list. There is a larger share of goodwill and mutual helpfulness among our business men. The past three years of depression and panic has tried the nerve and endurance of those engaged in business. Many useful lessons have been administered and those learning them have a splendid opportunity to practice. Every business man should ask himself: "Am I doing all the business possible in my line? Do I giving fully my chosen field? Am I occupying the benefit of my special service to all who should have it?"

The Silverton "Torch of Reason," state organ of the Secularists, reviews the work accomplished the past year in the issue of Oct. 28. It seems this church, if an organization founded on Paine's doctrines can be called a church, has schism just like other denominations. The Editor J. E. Hosmer and Manager Pearl W. Geer, seem to be very able and conscientious men.

From the First.

"I suffered with headaches and intense attacks of neuralgia, and became very feeble. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, though so weak I could take only small doses. I felt better from the first and I have not had an attack of any severity since I began using it." G. A. Sutton, Hillhurst, Washington.

Hood's Pills are the best family cathartic and liver tonic. Gentle reliable, sure.

FAR WESTERN REFLECTIONS.

Notes and Comments on New Books and Publications.

In the November Atlantic Hamilton Wright Mabie reviews Hallam Tennyson's biography of his father, the late English poet laureate.

The November Parisian has a sketch of Maurus Jokai, the famous Hungarian novelist.

To The Illustrated American for October 23 Speaker Reed contributes a keen and picturesque article on "Critics and Leaders." While pointing out that the path of the doer is strait and obstructed, the way of the critic smooth and unobscured, he neither does he deny the virtues of his qualities.

A territory of 271,000 square miles, comprising Washington, Idaho and Oregon as they are today, was saved to the Union by one man. He had the courage and the nerve to ride on muleback for three thousand miles. The ride was thrilling, the trials and hardships marvelous, the result a glorious one. The whole story, beautifully illustrated, will be given in the November issue of The Ladies' Home Journal, under the title, "When Dr. Whitman Added Three Stars to Our Flag," the closing and most intensely interesting article in the Journal's successful series of "Great Personal Events." The first women to cross the Rockies figure in the story, which proved beyond a doubt that they preceded Fremont, the "Pathfinder," by six years.

The present Distribution of Wealth," by Chas. B. Spahr, published by Thomas Y. Crowell & Company, New York and Boston, is a small book, (price $1.50) but it is attracting very wide attention. It is a leading new book on political economy.

The second installment of F. Hopkinson Smith's fascinating story of outdoor life among the stirring scenes of lighthouse building appears in the November Atlantic. Mr. Caleb West is by far his best effort in fiction—but this readers have probably discovered from the early chapters.

An extremely interesting article, which will be sure to arouse discussions in literary circles, is to be found in the November Atlantic. It is by J. S. Tunison, who attempts to show the conditions that have produced an unusual literary activity in the past, with application to the intellectual life of the present, and a guess at the future. A noteworthy article of prime literary interest.

Vinnie Ream's statue of Lincoln greets the eye on opening the November Midland (Des Moines), preparing the reader for a sketch of Vinnie Ream by H. G. C. Baker.

"Homes of Lady Henry Somerset," by Alice R. Willard, beautifully pictured, takes the reader through Eastnor Castle and the Priory. Mrs. Frederick Schwatka contributes her second article, "A New Route to Alaska's Eldorado," with nine illustrations.

"Sketches of Egyptian Life," has seven fine views, Henry O'Connor gives interesting reminiscences of William M. Evarts. This beautiful number, with its new and artistic cover, gives abundant promise for the future of the representative magazine of the middle West.

The price of the Midland is $1.50 a year. We are authorized to club it to readers of this paper at $1 net from now until the end of 1898—14 months for $1.

"The publication of this collection of Essays" the Preface to the volume entitled "Ars Recte Vivendi," by George William Curtis, which the Harpers have just brought out, "was suggested by some remarks of a college professor, in the course of which he said that about a dozen of the 'Easy Chair' essays in Harper's Magazine so nearly cover the more vital questions of hygiene; courtesy, and morality that they might be gathered into a volume entitled 'Ars Recte Vivendi,' and as such they are offered to the public." All of the papers, which are brief and pointed, display the grace of style, the sanity of judgment, and the fitness of feeling for which Mr. Curtis is remembered. They are, moreover, models of the art of editorial-writing, and might be studied with profit by every young journalist. One of the most finely written papers in the collection might, indeed, have been written for those young men who have adopted, or are thinking of adopting, journalistic work. It is entitled "Newspaper Ethics," and it presents very clearly and simply a statement of the place of the newspaper in the community and of the means by which its influence may be directed for the public welfare. The other essays are on the following subjects: "Extravagance at College," "Brains and Brawn," "Hazing," "The Soul of the Gentleman," "Theatre Manners," "Woman's Dress," "Secret Societies," "Tobacco and Health," "Tobacco and Manner," and "Duelling."

The Baker & Taylor Co., New York, announces "A Colonial Witch," being a study of the black art in the Colony of Connecticut, by Frank S. Child, author of "An Old New England Town," "The Colonial Parson of New England," etc., 12mo, cloth, gilt, price $1.25.

This book is a keen and sympathetic study of the social conditions which prevailed in Connecticut between the years 1640 and 1690.

The author is a ripe scholar in colonial history, and has given special attention to the psychology of the witchcraft delusion. His treatment of the theme takes the form of a well sustained and fascinating narrative. Mr. Child has made large use of town and court records, private journals and public documents in the historic setting of the narrative.

The analysis of the witch's character is a deft and subtle piece of work. The author is a ripe scholar in colonial history, and has given special attention to the psychology of the witchcraft delusion. His treatment of the theme takes the form of a well sustained and fascinating narrative. Mr. Child has made large use of town and court records, private journals and public documents in the historic setting of the narrative.

The black art was a tragic reality in the opinion of the masses. The colony of Connecticut was one with which the whole world in its ready credence. In portraying a remarkable phase of life in this early period of American history, the author has endeavored to incite an interest that shall prove charitable in respect to our ancestors, at the same time that it shall be intelligent in its survey of the subject.

D. Appleton & Co. send us by current mail a copy of their new story, "Uncle Sam's Secrets."

The story is written by Mr. O. P. Austin, of Washington, with whose literary statistical and political work many are familiar. It is prepared with the special purpose of interesting the rising generation in national affairs, both by supplying such information as they may naturally seek and by awakening interesting historical interest in their institutions. In the effort to present this information in an interesting way, Mr. Austin has strung upon a thread of fiction a series of important facts which it is believed will make "Uncle Sam's Secrets" not only a welcome and useful book in the household but also give it a place in the schools of the country for supplemental reading and reference.

WHAT A LITTLE AD DID—G. W. Latham has for several months been trying to sell a team, but without success. Last week he inserted a 25 cent want ad in the CAPITAL JOURNAL, offering his team for sale, and within 48 hours had seven customers at his place. THE JOURNAL is widely read, and by the best class of people.

Free From Rheumatism.

If the people generally knew the true cause of Rheumatism, there would be no such thing as Rheumatism and lotions for this painful and disabling disease. The fact is, Rheumatism is a disordered state of the blood—it can be reached, therefore, only through the blood. But all blood remedies cannot cure Rheumatism, for it is an obstinate disease, one which requires a real blood remedy—something more than a mere tonic. Swift's Specific is the only real blood remedy and promptly goes to the very bottom of even the most obstinate case. It cures blood diseases, and the doctors are totally unable to cure Rheumatism. In fact, the only remedies which they prescribe are opium and mercury, and though temporary relief may result, these remedies produce a stiffness of joints and only intensify the disease. Those who have had experience with Rheumatism know that it becomes more severe each year.

George William Curtis.

The case of Mrs. James Kell, of 611 Ninth Street, S. E. Washington, D. C., should convince everyone that it is useless to expect doctors to cure Rheumatism. Under recent date she writes: "A few months ago I had an attack of Sciatic Rheumatism in its worst form. The pain was so intense that my nervous system was prostrated, and it was for a long time perfectly helpless. The attack was an unusually severe one, and my condition was regarded as being very dangerous."

"I was attended by one of the most able doctors of Washington City, who is also a member of the faculty of the leading college here. He told me to continue his prescription and I would get well. After having it refilled twelve times and receiving not the least benefit, I declined to take it longer. "Having heard S.S.S. (Swift's Specific) recommended for Rheumatism, I decided, almost in despair, to give it a trial. After taking a few bottles I was able to hobble around on crutches, and very soon had no need at all for them, for S.S.S. cured me sound and well. All the distressing pains have left me, my appetite is returned, and I am happy to be again restored to perfect health. "S.S.S. never disappoints, for it is made to cure these deep-rooted diseases which are beyond the reach of all other remedies. It cures permanently Rheumatism, Catarrh, Cancer, Scrofula, Eczema, and all other blood diseases. It is the only blood remedy guaranteed."

Purely Vegetable, containing no mercury, potash, arsenic or other dangerous mineral. Books will be mailed free to any address by the Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; hence cases of deafness are caused by catching colds which are not cured, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
