

Macleay Precinct.

T. T. Geer's Home Precinct Has Some Silver Men.

Address by J. B. Waldo, a Silver Republican—A Mock Prayer.

The Union Bimetallic club, of Macleay precinct, held a highly successful meeting on Wednesday evening. There was a large attendance.

Judge Waldo made the best argument on silver and the money question ever heard here.

The Judge spent some time in preparing it, and it was a complete history of the gold standard fraud.

Speaking as a Silver Republican it was an invincible presentation and should be published.

It would be a good campaign document. We had an enthusiastic club meeting and good attendance considering the inclement weather. The next meeting will be on March 14, 7:30 p. m.

For governor of Oregon we could have no better man than Judge Waldo or a man that would help our ticket not only in the coming election, but in the coming election of 1900. No better political record has been made in Oregon than Judge Waldo has to his credit.

A MOCK PRAYER.

was spoken by Harvey Craig, (son of David Craig) that was warmly applauded:

"Oh, almighty and all powerful Hanna, who art in Washington, living and boarding with McKinley at the white house. Thou art the master of McKinley and the Republican party. We are glad that thou hast appointed thyself McKinley's guardian; guide and watch over him, and continue to live with him, and if need be sleep with him, and especially protect him from the evil influence of the silver men.

We hail thy name as the greatest campaign manager of the country. We bow down before thee in humble political obedience. When thou sayest go, we go, and when thou sayest come, we come. We have no desire but to serve thee. When thy servant McKinley said free silver, we echoed his words, but when thou sayest gold, then gold it is. We are Republicans after the modern improved type. Our business is to vote the ticket and vote'er straight. What is it to us whether we have free silver or not, and now have to endorse what we condemned in Cleveland.

We are but dogs, that eat the crumbs that fall from our Master's tables. When the crumbs fall we wag our tails, when they don't fall we stand and wait until they do. This is Republicanism. This is the kind of Republicanism that elected thee our great and almighty Hanna.

Oh, most adored Master, we thank thee for the poor crops in Europe, which enabled us to get 75c per bushel for our wheat, and we do not blame thee for the low price of cotton, as we knowest thou couldst not help it. We love thee for what thou hast not done for us. We love thee because thou art Hanna. We humbly surrender ourselves to thee. Do with us as thou wilt.

Though business is dull, and thousands of mill operatives are out of employment, we love thee. Though we are sinking deeper in debt and poverty is knocking at the door, and hunger is staring us in the face, we love thee still. This shows our great love for thee, and we love our party too. What care we about the many promises it made. We know it promised bimetalism and it won't give it to us. But we will stick to the party. We know we said if it did not do the things it promised to do, —well, we would leave it. But we lied when we said it. We thought then we had some manhood about us. But we have none when it conflicts with thy will or our party's success. We have no business to want anything, or say anything.

Last year we favored free silver, and this year we have to oppose it. We favored it then because we thought it was right. We oppose it now most adored master because thou teltest us to. Did ever a dog serve his master more faithfully and get less for it, Oh, mighty master, we are ever ready to serve thee, and party. All the pay we ask is to be patted on the back by some local politician and called a good Republican. What a joyful thought. We don't have to think. We don't have to worry. Our work is all mapped out for us. All that is expected is to do what we are told. We thank thee, Oh Hanna, that we are Republicans.

We thank thee for the idle men and women in our land. We thank thee for the rags our children wear. We thank thee for the cloths our wives need and can't get. We thank thee for what thou art trying to do for the bankers, and what thou hast not done for the people. We thank thee for these things because it is our duty as good Republicans to do so. It may be against the grain but we will take our medicine. It may kill prosperity but we will never go back on our dear old party.

And now most worthy master, we wish to protest against the vile legislators of Ohio, who art accusing thee of bribery, and trying to unseat thee. We do not believe that thou wouldst bribe or use money to corrupt anyone.

Now our political Father, we leave us in thy care. Do with us as thou wilt. Kick silver into the middle of the next century. Give more privileges to the national banks. Retire the greenbacks by issuing gold bonds. Preserve the Dingley bill. Establish state banks. Pay our bonds in gold if it costs a billion dollars more to do so (as it will please the foreign bond holders, and money kings.)

Bribe senators and congressmen with patronage; foster trusts; give the bankers everything they are asking; let the cruel Spaniards murder and slaughter the Cuban patriots, and force starvation on the Cuban women and children. Let the Spanish minister insult McKinley, by calling him a low pouthouse politician.

Let England have the Hawaiian Islands. Appoint another silver commission to go to Europe and then work secretly against them. Attend millionaire banquets in New York whenever thou seest fit, and we will endorse everything thou doest. Carry Hanna or McKinley roosters and campaign torches, and forevermore sing thy praise, amen.

"Old John Brown."

His Record Was Not So Black as Painted.

History of the Musical Composition That Bears His Name.

The article from the Eugene Register discussing President Hawley's severe denunciation of John Brown attracted a great deal of attention. Both the lecture and the editorial from the Eugene paper were calculated to create a new character in history for the old hero.

Under the headings "Another View," and "John Brown's Record Not So Black," the Eugene Register prints the following from a citizen of Eugene:

I did not have the pleasure of listening to Pres. Hawley's excellent lecture of "Kansas and John Brown," Saturday evening, but if the reports of it are true it seems to illustrate how easy it is for a careful historical student to be misled in his judgment of a man's character, if he judges him not by a direct knowledge of the man's character, but by the attitude he assumes toward the events in which he participates. I assume that Pres. Hawley could not have had the opportunity to know John Brown directly. Why? The first twenty-one years of my life were passed in a village which John Brown employed as his headquarters in preparing for the Kansas struggle. My grandfather's house was used by Brown as an armory and drill room. I have known intimately all my life a number of John Brown's personal friends, men who knew him not at second hand but intimately and while many of them, most of them, did not agree with Brown in his plans, yet with one accord they bear witness to his many character and his unquestioning loyalty to right as he conceived it. Whatever may be said in criticism of Brown, of this much I feel confident, he can never be classed as a murderer, nor a traitor, nor a liar.

R. C. BROOKS.
The editor of the Register was also mistaken as to the music of John Brown when he said:
"As we read history, the most sensible part of the north advocated Brown's execution. They have never eulogized him nor held him up as an exemplar for rising generations. He has been given a place in history as a victim of misguided conscience, practicing his fanaticisms on a wild border frontier, where guerilla methods were somewhat more excusable than in the streets of Baltimore, Richmond or Vicksburg, but which by no means justified him in his atrocities. The north did not seek to make Brown a hero. The song which every school boy knows as 'John Brown's Body,' is all that has kept his name before the nation, and that would never have immortalized him, had it not been for the saucy, catchy words being set to that ringing battle-hymn with which Julia Ward Howe had just enriched the world."

We are not concerned to correct the estimate of John Brown held by Hawley and this editor. Time will do that if they are men of brains, as we assume they are, but as to the music of John Brown the Register needs correction.
The statement that the great battle song, to which a million Union soldiers marched to battle, and which is the favorite musical gem of seventy millions of Americans, received its greatness from Julia Ward Howe's sacred battle hymn, is absurd. The latter was not thought of until its author had heard the Union soldiers sing "John Brown," and had in fact sung it with them herself. Mrs. Howe's words are beautiful, but they long remained unknown, and then only gained general recognition by being set to the music of "John Brown." The music of this great war song was modified to a march by the musicians of the Union army. Some say it was originally a negro "wedding song." Other say it was an old New England camp-meeting song, while careful students of musical history claim that it originated from the old Southern voodoo airs and dances. Let this be as it may, it never became a national song until it was supplied with the words of the great "Marsellaise of Emancipation." These words were written by a young newspaper man, Frank E. Jerome, editor of the Russell, Kansas, Record.
There is today no song so familiar to, or popular with, the people of our country, north and south, as John

Brown. This song with "Marching Through Georgia," and numberless variations of both, served to make camp-life in the south endurable, and these songs became a part and parcel of the soldiers' daily existence. Where one person knows the words to Mrs. Howe's "Battle Hymn" it is safe to say a thousand hymns and sing, and ever will sing to the glory of freedom, "John Brown's body lies a-mouldering in the grave, as his soul goes marching on."

Spring Medicine

Is made a necessity by the impure condition of the blood after winter's hearty foods, and breathing vitiated air in home, office, schoolroom or shop. When weak, thin or impure, the blood cannot nourish the body as it should. The demand for cleansing and invigorating is grandly met by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives the blood just the quality and vitality needed to maintain health, properly digest food, build up and steady the nerves and overcome that tired feeling. It is the ideal Spring Medicine. Get only

Hood's Sarsaparilla America's Greatest Medicine. C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills and Sick Headache. 25c.

Bottled Up!

Whether in the form of pill powder or liquid, the doctor's prescription for blood diseases is always the same—mercury or potash. These drugs bottle up the poison and dry it up in the system, but they also dry up the marrow in the bones at the same time. The suppleness and elasticity of the joints give way to a stiffness, the racking pains of rheumatism. The form gradually bends, the bones ache, while decrepitude and helplessness prematurely take possession of the body, and it is but a short step to a pair of crutches. Then comes falling of the hair and decay of the bones,—a condition truly horrible.

Contagious Blood Poison—the curse of mankind—is the most horrible of all diseases, and has always baffled the doctors. Their potash and mercury bottle up the poison, but it always breaks forth again attacking some delicate organ, frequently the mouth and throat, filling them with eating sores. S. S. S. is the only known cure for this disease. It is guaranteed purely vegetable, and one thousand dollars reward is offered for proof to the contrary. It never fails to cure Contagious Blood Poison, Scrofula, Eczema, Rheumatism, Cancer, or any other disease of the blood. If you have a blood disease take a remedy which will not injure you. Beware of mercury; don't do violence to your system. Don't get bottled up! Our books sent free to any address. Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.
