President Hawley said he had been forced to give this lecture against his wishes. It was the most painful hour he had ever put in on the platform and be expressed regret over and over at having caused any one any pain at what he had said. He did not seem to realize that Lincoln referred as much to the lawless invasions of the border rufflans as he did to Brown's invasion at Harper's Ferry or in Kansas.

All the excuse Mr. Hawley made for his Eugene lecture was that all he aid about Brown unfortunately occured at the end of the lecture and not at the begining, as though that would have made any material difference.

Pres. Hawley has still to remoye the charge of the Eugene paper that he compared John Brown to Guiteau, John Wilkes Booth, and Judas Iscariot. That is a serious charge.

If Pres. Hawley did make that comparison at Eugene he should still take some public opportunity to correct thority cited that did not praise his wishes. It was the most painful
