MILK IN HOT WEATHER.

Seat Way For Farmer and Shipper to Take

Give in a few simple rules the best way of handling milk in het weather: 1. To keep it tweet for shipping to town. 2. To get the best essuits for latter making. Describe the plan to be followed where one has bee and modern conventences and also where these are lacking. When milk is to be shipped for city sonsumption, it should be most carefully and thoroughly strained immediatel after milking. It should next be aerated thoroughly by any process at command, but some method is essential if we are to have it in the best possible condition. As soon as it is aerated it should be cooled. Most milk shippers have a supply of ice and a large tank into which e cans of milk are set. Ice is put in the tank, and the milk is rapidly cooled. being stirred at frequent intervals to prevent the cream from rising. Where ice is not at hand, a spring of cold water, standing at 48 or 50 degrees, will answer, though it is not so reliable.

Many Orange county (N. Y.) milkmen rely on springs, especially where they can have a stream of the spring water running steadily into the tank, but even then in very hot weather their milk will, on occasion, spoil en route to the city. Thorough aeration will do much toward keeping milk sweet. When milk is to be made into butter, aeration to the milk has crept into the pastures. In such a case, a slight aeration would improve the flavor of the butter with only a very small loss of cream. Where a creamery is at hand, the milk is at once put into it and thoroughly iced. brings the cream rapidly up. Ordinarily it will be ready for skimming. if desirable, in eight hours. No butter maker today is in a situation to compete for president they would vote for him with the best trade if he is obliged to do without ice, though there are many dairies where no ice is used that turn out excellent butter.

Springs can be used with deep cans as in the cases of milk or it may be set how they feel, for no one knows what in shallow paus on rachs in the coolest cellar at command. In neither case will success he as complete as if ice had been ased. The milk will congulate before the cream is separated, and there is con-It is important when an is raised in the old fashioned pans that the collar be as well ventilatd as is computible with coolness. ild be used only for a milk cellarcahing else. -- Rural New Yorker
