The Hop Market.

The first bonafide sale of hops at Salem was made Tuesday—350 bales at 12 cents. All buyers who are in the market are offering that figure for a strictly choice Oregon hop.

Some small mail samples put up by hand have just reached the London market. Local representatives of English and eastern agencies are expecting early buying orders to arrive.

There are still a few yards where picking is in progress.

Buyers do not expect orders from London until the samples taken from actual crop reach there.

This afternoon prices advanced to 12 1/2 cents, and it is likely that a large crop will be sold at that figure.

To Promote the Flax Industry.
Governor and Mrs. W. P. Lord, accompanied by Mrs. O. N. Denny of Portland, left this morning for the metropolis where they will attend the exposition. The ladies took with them a model of their flaxretting-tank and several samples of flax and woyen work. Owing to the hostility of the Salem public toward the Flax Fiber Association that organization has deemed it best to move their plant from this city. The new site has not been decided upon yet, but Portland, Corvallis, McMinnville and several other towns are bidding for the plant. It is too bad that Salem's lack of interest and discouraging attitude should lose the city this growing industry.

MURDERED

The evidence being all in the coroner's jury gave a verdict as follows: "State of Oregon, county of Polk, ss: 'Inquisition taken at West Salem, Polk county, on the 20th of September, 1898, before Dr. I. N. Woods, coroner of said county, upon view of the body of an unknown man, then and there lying dead upon the oath of six good and lawful men of said county, who being duly summoned and sworn to inquire into the circumstances attending the death of the said unknown man, and by whom the same was produced, and in what manner and when and where the said unknown came to his death, do say upon their oaths aforesaid that the body was found 200 yards below the steel bridge in the Willamette river on the Polk county side, and the deceased came to his death, at the hands of a person or persons unknown to the jury, on or about Monday night, September 12, ty being stabbed in the neck and mouth, and thrown into the river with weights attached to his hands and feet.

"In witness thereof, as well as the said coroner as the jurors aforesaid, have to this inquisition set their hands and seals on the day of the date thereof.

"(Signed) D. L. Matheny, foreman; A. V. Thompson, I. H. Burton, E. M. Young, Christopher Patrick, James Munk, Jr.

The jury was then excused for the present. Coroner Woods intended to probe the mystery to the bottom.

Coroner Clough of Marion county was ordered to prepare the body for burial and it was brought to this city. September 13th, on the Tuesday morning following the murder, a team was known to have crossed the steel bridge about 4 a. m. and drive rapidly up Front street.

Chief Dilley last night received a dispatch from Newberg stating that a hat was found four or five days ago floating in the river at that point, having the initials F. W. W. on the sweat band. This is supposed to have belonged to the murdered man.

FIRST TRACE OF CRIME.

J. H. Fletcher and Ben Taylor while hunting a week ago last Friday found a hat in the underbrush along the river bank nearly opposite the spot where the body was found. Mr. Taylor will search for the hat again today and possibly it may lead to some clue as to the man's identity.

C. S. Tate, a traveling razor peddler, was in to view the dead man and identified him as a man whom he had seen about Silyerton several days.

He said deceased was waiting on a young lady at that place, and was a frequent visitor in the town while he was there.

The deceased was at the time negotiating for the purchase of a livery business in Silyerton. He further stated that he was a passenger with him from The Dalles to Portland.

About two weeks ago a man by the name of Sink from Wasco county was in Salem searching for his brother, Ray Sink. Sink was a German and belongs to a well to do family in Eastern Oregon. He traced his brother to Silyerton, where he was paying attention to a young lady of that place, and then back to Salem again when he lost trace of him.

By taking into consideration the stories of the razorman and the search of Sink for his brother, together with the fact that the murdered man had a ticket from Eastern Oregon on his person when found and also the opinion of many persons that the deceased was of German descent, it would appear that the man's identity has been established.

The date of the murder is concluded to have been between the 9th and 12th of September. Plaster shayed him on Friday the 9th and from the appearance of the man's face he was killed within a day or two, as his face is perfectly smooth.

E. Moore says he knew Sink, and built a house for him on his farm three miles north west of Wasco. The two Sink brothers and their father own about 2000 acres of land in Sherman county. Moore thinks he was about 40 years of age, and is considered a "litter off" at times.

The theory that robbery was the motive of the crime finds some substantiation in the fact that the hotel keeper at Silyerton, where the murdered man stopped stated that the man seemed to have a good deal of money as a big roll of greenbacks was seen in his possession. This taken with the fact that his pockets were turned wrong side out and no money was found on his person would lead one to believe he had been robbed.

Sheriff Durbin and his deputies are close on track of all information. Mr. Durbin is in Silyerton, and will no doubt bring some light on the subject. Prosecuting Attorney Hayden is also looking into the case closely.
