FROM ALASKA.

An Old Colorado Miner Declares Alaska Mining Is Limited.

P. B. Beatty of Springfield arrived in town today on his way home from Klondike. He went into Alaska last February to see the country and has visited Dawson, and all the camps in the Yukon country, including Circle, Forty Mile, Minook, and American Creek. He says the goldfields will not afford permanent mining industries. The quartz is worthless and only the little placers pay out. The placer fields are limited, and not one creek in twenty will pay for working. Men are working on bars that cannot make three dollars a day, after carrying their supplies for forty to sixty miles. The rush is over and will not be resumed. All get out who are able to. Mr. Beatty is an experienced Colorado miner and leaves for his home today.
