

PISO'S CURE

I have been taking PISO'S Cure for Consumption since 1893, for Coughs and Colds. I had an attack of La Grippe in 1890, and have had others since. In the Winter of 1896-7, I had a spell of Bronchitis, lasting all winter, and leaving a troublesome cough, until I again tried PISO'S Cure, which relieved me.—Mrs. M. B. LILIENTHAL HOP SUIT

Argued Before Judge Boise of Department No. 2, Circuit Court.

Mr. Bingham Seeks to Bring an Injunction Against a Marion County Hop Farmer.

The lawsuit of Lilienthal vs. Trombley, to enforce a hop contract, was heard by Judge Boise of Department No. 2, Circuit Court, at Boise, and the case for plaintiff were stated by Mr. Bingham. There was a recorded contract here covering a number of years back of E. Trombley, Jr. to deliver 14,000 lbs. of hops at 8 cents a pound of the crop or 1898. It was signed for the young man by the father. It made no material difference whether E. Trombley, Sr., signed for the boy or not. The signature to the receipts compared to the other signatures would show they were the same and were all in the writing of Trombley, Sr. The contract was assigned in 1893 from father to son but not recorded until September, 1898.

Mr. Slater of counsel for defendant showed that it had been recorded in 1893 and again in 1898 when it was re-assigned.

Mr. Bingham had to admit this and proceeded to show that Trombley Sr. was involved in debt and had assigned to prevent attachments by judgment. September 5, 1896, Trombley, Jr. authorized the agent of Lilienthal to pay over any moneys to the elder Trombley, who transacted the entire business.

If the son of this farmer was as incompetent a man as was represented he was not fit to do business and was dictated to and controlled by the father. The conduct of the father and son showed fraud from all the circumstances. Their language was not such as to admit of all the fraud charged but their actions spoke louder than words. Trombley was a man who would resort to any kind of means to keep from delivering these hops to Lilienthal & Co. if he could help it. These men were in debt and would naturally protect each other. They got more insurance for their hops burning in 1897 than they would have received for their crop that year.

They did not show what they did with this money. Plaintiff had demanded the hops on October 8, at 8 cents a pound. But they had sold the hops elsewhere. It was only after they had discovered hops had advanced in price that they tried to spirit them away and shipped them under an assumed name in another county.

The order was written in two different kinds of ink. The first part was blurred. Mr. Bingham called the court's attention to this as evidence of fraudulent conduct.

Judge Boise said there might have been two kinds of ink on the table. Mr. Bingham said it was not likely there would have been copying ink in a farmhouse.

Young Trombley went to Portland and represented himself as one McKenna, signed a receipt and a check as W. S. McKenna, a man recently arrived from Iowa. He shipped the hops in the name of his son-in-law. The order was "to whom it may concern," that bearer was authorized to sell the hops at Portland and received pay for same.

The hops were hauled to Parker after midnight and there was no excuse except that they could get more for their hops. The recording of a hop contract had the same effect as a chattel mortgage, and need be recorded in but one county, and the purchaser could not claim that he bought without notice. Pincus bought the hops at 12 1/2 cents, 2 cents below the market, saying the hops were green. The one who would lose if this contract is enforced, is Horst & Co., about $200; but that was no more than they sought to make by purchasing below the market price in violation of a specific contract.

Mr. Slater said the contract to be enforced must be fair, mutual and equal between both parties. There was such want of mutuality that equity must intervene to protect either party. Defendant was required to deliver 14,000 lbs. or all he could grow, but Lilienthal was not required to take a pound less.

The contract called for sale and delivery of 14,000. It could not compel Lilienthal & Co., to accept any less than that amount. The contract was not a chattel mortgage, but a contract for the sale of personal property. Fraud is never presumed. It must be proved. What was there in the father and son merely living together to prove fraud? None whatever. They had no evidence of primary, original proof of fraudulent intent. The elder Trombley advised the son against making this contract. The father always paid the debts of the son and watched over the business affairs of the son and protected over him. After paying the money advanced and lawyer fees, $45.00 was all the Trombleys had left after their life. They allege in-olventcy and yet want Trombley to go into debt still more for a new hop house to raise hops for Lilienthal & Co.

In April the son wanted to plow up the hops. The father said no, he would work them. He had the hop contract assigned to him and in June had the assignment drawn up. Mr. Bingham cites circumstances to prove fraud, but he has no basic fraud to gather his suspicions about. The land on which the hops grew was lawfully assigned to him. The crop was his property and he had a right to take it by night or day, in his own name or some one else's, and no one could blame him. Mr. Bingham had taken this great liberty here to put a wet pad on this written order to show it was written with two kinds of ink or at different times. Mr. Slater before the court showed that one writing was blotted and one left to dry produced two colors of writing from the same bottle of ink. This was a trifling method, was not in evidence before this court at all. On the question of insolvency they had failed to prove any such thing and had no right to relief in a court of equity. Oct. 13 Trombley was served with an injunction and the hops were sold the morning of October 12. Hence the defendants had disobeyed no order of this court.

Mr. Kaiser closed the case by merely referring to one or two points. He showed that plaintiffs could not compel specific performance of a contract when they knew the hops were transferred before suit was commenced. If they had not begun their suit in time to enforce their contract they had no case in a court of equity, but must sue for damages at law. The evidence shows the hops were transferred from the son to the father. Plaintiffs had notice. The suit was begun Oct. 5. There was no fraud between son and father in the transfer of the land contract. There would have been no hop crop made if the father had not worked the place. The boy had thrown it up. Lilienthals were out $1.00 and that had been tendered them in court. The hops were shipped in the name of McKenna, because Ottenheimer was blocking selling the hops at Salem. He got $400 of W. L. McKenna to make the crop and so they sold them in his name to protect him in his loan. It was all done without concealment.

Trombley went to Portland and sold the hops as McKenna's hops and did sell them and endorsed the check as he had a right to do, as he sold under McKenna's order. There was no fraud in all this. Ottenheimer said they were choice hops, but all the other buyers disputed him. Ottenheimer was beaten at his own game. Trombley outwitted him. Ottenheimer bet Trombley he would get those hops. Trombley won the bet. That was all there was to this case. Mr. Kaiser cited a case decided by Judge Boise on the supreme bench of Oregon thirty odd years before in support of his argument.

Mr. Bingham closed the argument but added nothing that had not been gone over before.

Judge Boise took the matter under advisement.

Daily Evangelistic Services. The services being conducted in our city by Evangelist Holdridge are of a very interesting character. Last night's meeting at the Presbyterian church was a quiet, heart searching type, and one business man expressed it, he "could take it all to himself." The services for today have been the morning prayer at the church 8 to 9. The home meeting with Gen. and Mrs. W. H. Odell 10 to 11. The praise service 2:30 at the church. The children numbering between 250 and 300 meet every day from 4 to 5 and listen to pleasant and sensible chats that teach a lesson simple enough for all minds. Tonight at 7:30 a meeting for all classes at the church, scholars and teachers especially invited.

Our very noticeable thing in these meetings is the absence of the usual texts of standing, or remaining seated on certain propositions. A pencil and pad is distributed to each one, which no one is expected to use unless agreeable.

A Pleasant Evening. A few of the many friends of Miss Eva Stanton gathered at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Stanton, Tuesday evening in honor of that young lady's birthday. The evening was happily spent in games and music, following which a delicious luncheon was served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Shipman Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Herick Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. H. Herick Thomas, Cora Stanton, Lila Moore Daisy West, Lena Falk and Edith Cluser; Messrs. William Shipman, Adolphus Cluser, Charles, Mc Sarley, Jessie Moore, Wilbur Ross, Bert Stanton and Bert St. Helens.

"Saved Her Life."

Mrs. John Walley, of Jefferson, Wis., than whom none is more highly esteemed or widely known, writes:

"In 1890 I had a severe attack of La Grippe and at the end of four months, in spite of all physicians, friends and good nursing could do, my lungs burst and nervous system was so completely wrecked, my life was despaired of, my friends giving me up. I could only sleep by the use of opiates. My lungs and heart pained me terribly and my cough was most aggravating. I could not lie in one position but a short time and not on my left side at all. My husband brought me Dr. Miles' Nerve and Heart Cure and I began taking them. When I had taken a half bottle of each I was much better and continuing persistently I took about a dozen bottles and was completely restored to health to the surprise of all."

CHARLES M. DAY.

Is Found to Have Died From Natural Causes by the Coroner's Jury.

Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Coroner Clough, of Marion county, impelled a jury from the neighbors of C. M. Day, the old man found dead on the garden road, and an inquest was held.

The neighbors had demanded a post mortem examination and Dr. J. N. Smith was summoned to make the same. While this was being done, the testimony of witnesses were taken.

The aggregate of the testimony amounted to the facts Charles M. Day had last been seen alive on Tuesday morning, though Mrs. Simmons testified that she saw him standing by the window about 4 p. m. Wednesday. On Tuesday morning deceased had been asked by Mr. Lyons to do some work for him but had plead sickness. Had not seen him again until he looked in the window Wednesday morning.

Deceased has considerable property, five acres in Salem, two lots in Highland and one in a suburb of Seattle, Wn. Was 62 years old, and had a brother in Illinois and another one in Gardiner, Mass. Dr. J. N. Smith testified that he had made a thorough post mortem examination of the body and that in his opinion death had resulted from a perforation of the pyloric intestine just below the stomach. The jury after considering the evidence returned a verdict in accordance therewith affirming that in their opinion death had resulted from natural causes.

The remains were buried today in the I. O. O. F. cemetery, funeral services being conducted from the undertaking parlors of A. M. Clough, at 2 p. m., at which Rev. W. C. Kantner officiated.
