The Populists' demand for direct legislation has been heeded in South Dakato, and the experiment will be of loterest to the people of all the states. At the recent election the South Dakotans adopted the constitutional amendment providing for the initiative and referendum. When 5 per cent of the qualified voters of the state demand any legislation, thus taking the initiative, the legislature must submit the proposition to a popular vote at the next general election. Further, if the legislature
