SAID SOCIALLY.

What the Salem Social World Has Been Doing.

Last evening the young ladies of the Philodorian Literary society, of Willamette University, held their open meeting in the society hall at the University building.

The faculty of the University, the Philodorian society and a few invited guests made up the merry party.

The early evening was spent in enjoyable conversation, games and music and at the close of the evening a most delicious luncheon of cake and chocolate was served, which was doubly acceptable since the young ladies themselves had prepared it, proving themselves to be competent housewives as well as charming entertainers.

The special feature of the evening's entertainment was an advertisement guessing contest, in which prizes were offered to the most successful and least successful competitor. Pictorial advertisements were cut from standard papers and magazines and after all lettering had been effaced, were pinned upon the breast of each guest.

The one guessing the greatest number of the articles advertised received a handsome book as a prize. This fell to the lot of Miss Edna Hubbard.

The booby prize, a most interesting jumping jack was awarded to Otto W. Miesbach. A clothes pin race, also figured prominently in the evening's amusement. The fair Philodorian are certainly most successful entertainers and are the life of the university socially.

Y. M. C. A. PARTY.

Director C. W. Darby, of the Y. M. C. A. entertained the ladies and senior classes in physical work at the association rooms last evening.

Small fir trees had been placed here and there in the gymnasium transforming it into a virtual forest. Through the center of the hall a long table was stretched upon which an appetizing luncheon was spread. About seventy invitations were issued which number comfortably filled the room and during the evening the guests were treated to a choice and skillfully executed program of musical and literary numbers.

Social converse and merry games filled out the evening, which was closed by a game of basket ball between two teams, the Dawey's and the Schleys. A most exciting and evenly contested game was played, but the team named after the hero of Manila harbor were finally victorious by a score of nine to two. Messrs. John Chase and Sheldon retraced the game and the two teams were composed of the following young men:

Dewey's	Position	Schleys
Moir (capt.)	forward	Bruce (capt.)
Robinson	goal tresser	Rare
King	center	Cox
Carlisle	guard	Zaenker
Hodgkin	guard	Goodhue

A SOCIAL DANCE.

The Friday night dancing club gave another of their enjoyable dances last evening in Tioga hall. A full membership to the club was present and one of the most successful events of the social season was the result of their convention.

A GOLDEN WEDDING.

Rev. and Mrs. T. F. Royal, of the Leslie Methodist Episcopal church celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding yesterday afternoon at their home in South Salem. During the day many of the friends of the highly esteemed couple called at the parsonage and extended their congratulations and well wishes, and in the evening the members of the South Salem church, met at the parsonage and spent several hours in celebrating with Mr. and Mrs. Royal the happy anniversary. At parting they all wished their kind host and hostess many succeeding anniversaries as best pleased.

HER FOURTH BIRTHDAY.

Friday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock little Miss Hattie Bladen, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Rignod entertained her little friends in honor of her fourth birthday. Under the guiding leadership of Miss Bonnie Gans, who was Hattie's guest of honor, the little ones amused themselves with games such as delight the childish heart. Light refreshments were served and at four o'clock the guests departed feeling that they had indeed made their debut into Salem's social circle.

The following were present: Misses, Hattie Rignod, Ruth Van Patten, Naomi Van Patten, Lollie Van Patten, Vera Drake, Helen Veach, Essie McGuire, Mona Simpson, Hazel McIntire, Berolice Reid and Bonnie Gans; Masters, Loyd Rignod, Loyd Lee, Fayette Brown, Edward McGraw and Victor Reid.
