LITERARY NOTES

We have received from the publishers, Purds, Howard, Halbert, New York, a copy of "Some Marked Passages and Other Stories," by Jeanne G. Pennington...

It is a fairly notable question, whether one's interest in reading a book is enhanced or disturbed by finding marginal or other lines drawing attention to what has arrested the notice of some previous reader.

Another article in the same number possessing interest for a large class. The Outlook has been fortunate enough to secure for its January Magazine Number an article by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt on his former companion-in-arms, General Leonard Wood...

In January comes the 300th anniversary of the death of Edmund Spenser, the author of "The Faerie Queene." The anniversary is made the occasion of a comprehensive sketch of Spenser's life and work written for the January Number of the Outlook by Mr. H. C. Shelley...

The volume contains several other stories of more medicinal interest, although all are more or less infused with the same beautiful, hopeful spirit—that which appears in Miss Pennington's admirable little volume of "Don't Worry Noggits," which has been received with such marked favor...

To write an article for maids and mothers, and then to make it so interesting that it will rivet the attention of the fathers of maids, and husbands of wives, is a guarantee of very wide reading.

A very curious presentation of the number of Irishmen, of the stamp of Wolsey in England, the Duke of Tetouan in Spain, General O'Brusich in Russia, Viscount Taaffe in Hungary, who are leaders in many nations, is given in January Cosmopolitan under the title "Irish Leaders in Many Nations."

Many of the North American Indians were magnificent specimens of physical strength. This was due, largely, to their active outdoor life. They were not in the habit of knowing that an active life in the open air would not keep a man healthy. They had their medicine, which they used in the most judicious manner, but they did not know that an active life in the open air would not keep a man healthy.

Modern civilization does not do as usual thing requires the same amount of rest as the Indians. They were not in the habit of knowing that an active life in the open air would not keep a man healthy.

Adopting Spanish Methods. SANTIAGO, DE CUBA, Jan. 12.—The explanation of the war department at Washington of its intentions regarding the transfer of customs receipts from the different ports in Cuba to Havana is not here by statements from the Cubans that the plan is similar to the one adopted by the Spaniards, when requisitions on Havana obtained less than 6 per cent of what the requisition called for.

The merchants, business men and influential people here say Havana has grown rich and prosperous at the expense of the balance of the island, and the Cubans and government officials at Santiago say the Cubans of Havana are responsible for Major-General Brooke's order on this subject.

The people here add that the Havana Cubans are still anxious to sustain the same system of the centralization of funds which was in force before the American occupation.

General Wood, accompanied by his aide-de-camp, Lieutenant Hanna, and Dr. Castillo, representing the merchants and business men of this city, left here for New York today on board the United States transport Mississippi.

Keely's Deceit. By Associated Press to the Journal. LONDON, Jan. 13.—Mrs. Bloomfield Moore, of Philadelphia, is dead here at the age of 75 years. Heart disease was the direct cause of her death. She had lived in a fashionable part of London for the last year.

Mrs. Bloomfield Moore is best known as the financial backer of the inventor of the Keely motor. Besides investing heavily in the motor company's stock, Mrs. Moore gave $50,000 in all to Keely at different times. She met him in 1881, taking him up when members of the company had threatened to have him placed in jail for not disclosing his secrets. He had broken up his machinery and was contemplating suicide. For years Mrs. Moore showed her faith in Keely, her expressions of regard at times causing her family to interfere. She interested John Jacob Astor in the motor and he promised him if Keely would move his laboratory to New York Keely's refusal caused a breaking off of these negotiations.

Mrs. Moore sent a scientist from London to examine Keely's machines. At first the expert was enthusiastic, but one day he suddenly left Philadelphia for London and soon after Mrs. Moore broke entirely from Keely. At his death she is said to have expressed much grief and her own death, it is asserted, was hastened because of it.

For many years Mrs. Moore was an energetic figure in Philadelphia society. She wrote for the newspapers and magazines under the name of "Mrs. Clara Morton." Her wealth was more than $1,000,000.

BILLS, BILLS

The House Runs Up to Nearly Two Hundred.

Working Hard to Get Prospective Means into the Hands of the Committee.

The Thursday afternoon session was mainly taken up with the first reading of bills, of which one hundred and seventy-four have been introduced.

Reading Clerk Motter has a way of his own to read a large number of bills within a limited time, which renders suspension of the rules unnecessary.

By Speaker.—That chief clerk may excuse any clerk from reporting to him on days when the house is not in session. Adopted.

By Cummings.—For a committee of three to revise and engross the journal of the house, daily.

To committee on resolutions. There was considerable discussion of this measure, during the course of which the governor received a backhanded lick from Whalley, who sympathized with the effort to follow the "instructions" given by the governor, but did not believe that any false ideas of economy should prevent the revision of the journal in a proper manner, and thought that the work should be done as heretofore even if it cost a thousand dollars, as the governor had said.
