A FINE CLASS

Of Young Gentlemen and Ladies Complete the Ninth Grade.

Some Excellent Recitations and Splendid Drill Work by the Junior Class.

"Don't you feel scared?" "I wish it was over with."
"These were some of the exclamations heard on the stage before the curtain rolled up at Reed's, on the graduating class."

The class of '26 was composed as usual, almost entirely of the fairer sex, radiant in white muslin, guarded by a younger class of amazons in scarlet with silver and golden spears. Miss Della Otis and Marion Blankenship were unable to attend, but the rest of the class were present, including the six boys, who by some hook or crook had managed to remain in school long enough to complete the ninth grade.

Prof. Yoder, the teacher of the famous class of 1899, was "out of sight" down in the audience as usual. Still he must have felt proud of these pupils, who have had a record of being notorious by hard students. These pupils were with Mrs. Kellogg last year, who ranks with Prof. Yoder as one of the most proficient teachers in the Salem schools. So both class and teachers have been fortunate in their associations.

The exercises opened with an Amazon drill by the girls of the Lincoln school in charge of Miss Griffith, which was the result of much hard work and pleased the large audience in proportion to the labor expended. The class was now presented by City Supt. Peebles and Chairman Byrd, of the board of education. The program proper was opened with a spirited recitation from Miss Nellie Spong, "The Nation's Volunteers."

Ira Hamilton's oration was "The Annexation of the Hawaiian Islands," and he did the subject justice in his splendid delivery and the excellent subject he had chosen was worthily treated and roundly applauded.

Ella Amellia Rineman sang "Woodland Echoes," in a manner that won applause.

Miss Rineman had the misfortune to have suffered from several fainting spells during the day, but with rare pluck and determination carried out her part.

Miss Gertrude Bashor recited "The Martyrs of the Maine." It was the finest elocutionary effort of the evening and won hearty commendation.

Senator Mulkey now spoke in Eulogy of the public school system, tracing eloquently the influence of the schools upon the character of the American people. He deplored that so few boys were completing the public school course. The Senator was at his best and was several times interrupted by applause.

Mrs. Hinges sang a sweet old song "Waiting" by Millard, and as usual received a rapturous recall, responding with "The Crimson Chain."

Chairman Byrd, of the Salem school board, now presented the diplomas in some well chosen words and then gave way for the last and best feature of the evening.

Mrs. Matthew of the North school had charge of the vestal virgin's drill, the final feature of a brilliant program, carried out by 12 young ladies and eight children.

Mrs. Holland chanted the Lord's prayer in the concluding scene.

The vestals were: Inez Bonorth, Bertha Clough, Alice Pressnell, Pearl Dawson, Rose Gage, Edna Peet, Mary Babcock, Mary Wanless, May Byrne, Chlois Bashor, Lena Bruce, Stella Brown. Grecian gowns with gold fringe, sandals and a golden fillet holding the hair comprised their costumes. Eight little ones as flower girls were the attraction of the evening, and their poses in colored gowns with an electric illumination were a fitting climax. Mrs. Matthew had imported from Portland an electric locomotive headlight especially for these tableaux. Her labors were more than repaid in the pleasure her trained flock gave the vast audience.

The entertainment as a whole was very well received. The only criticism heard was that there were no original numbers on the program, but all of the recitations were of a high order. It was a matter of regret to some that Miss Emily Horgan could not have rendered the class poem, as she is known to be capable of writing well in meters.

The program was not too long, except for the large number of young children who participated. It is in order to suggest that hereafter the exercises be held in the afternoon, as the strain on the children is too great at night.

Debated Again.

The Salem Y. M. C. A. Basketball team was defeated in Tuesday's championship game, played in Oregon City, with the Y. M. C. A. team of that place who recently won the state championship at Salem. Last evening our boys played against the Portland Y. M. C. A. team and were defeated 36 to 9. Some very good playing was done on both sides.

Graduates will please take notice that the "Cronise Studio" does not "charge a heap" but makes a special reduction to all students. 2-8-25

JOURNAL "X-RAYS."

"Cayuse" is the proper name for literary club for a large per cent of the coming Oregon youth. Cayuse signifies something wild and woolly, and the youths who are deprived of an ordinary education, through liberality of college legislation should be recognized somewhere.

The public interest that centers in local legislation, and the results of expected court decisions in the near future, have directed public attention toward the powers that be, and incidentally to the powers that ought not to be. The change from other days is not great, but the "innocents abroad" are just making a discovery.

The Salem push politicians howl at the "unscrupulous" methods of THE JOURNAL. THE JOURNAL is always "unscrupulously" on the side of a people. It is "unscrupulously" in favor of this city, and school district being put on a cash basis, reduced to the lowest notch, and no more debt being created. Let the "unscrupulous" push rage.

There is lobbying and lobbying. A man or woman may properly be employed by others to promote some matter of public interest before a legislature. But the man or woman who will beseege the legislature to logroll and lobby through a job in their own interest is second cousin to a highway robber, but a far worse enemy to the public.

Jacksonville Times: The bill of Senator Daly, of Benton and Lincoln counties, which makes a radical change in the laws regulating the government of schools and the selection of text books, has passed the senate. It is a body blow to the American Book Company, which will spare no efforts to defeat the bill in the house.

If there is any place where politics and personal interests should cease it ought to be in the management of the state schools for the blind and deaf-mute. The taxpayers are led mercilessly to support these institutions for a defective class and nothing but good continuous administration can be of any benefit to them. It is disgusting to think that there are persons who, merely to get a place, will plot to throw a new hand in charge of these unfortunates.

Bounty bills aggregating $352,000 are before the legislature, some of them are through one house. The are: Sugar-beet bounty (approx. 200,000 mately) 50,000 Coyote-squid bounty 40,000 Arsenic well bounty 40,000 Flax project 35,000 Salmon hatcheries 25,000

The flax industry and salmon industry are alone of general interest to the state at large. But the whole bounty business is wrong.

S. B. Bates, to create the office of tax collector in Multnomah county is being earnestly contested. It provides a special officer to collect all taxes and is intended to do away with a complicated system of sub-letting such business. It seems to be an excellent measure and one that would place this important business upon a proper and economical footing. The present expense of tax collecting is said to be $10,000 while under this bill it will only cost $8,000.

Senator Dufur is again at his post after several days' absence on account of sickness in the family. He is one of the senators who, while of the minority party, is not posing, nor straining points to manufacture a record. However the first bill that passed at this session was one of Senator Dufur's. He has not a few bills introduced, but aside from those of a local nature he has presented only technical faults and incongruities of our statutes pertaining to legal procedure. Thus the senator is modestly devoting his energies to set to rights some of the minor shortcomings of our legal code. This is certainly a more patriotic work than to spend his time making a failure of apparently great things.

STATE SCHOOL SUPT.

Ackermann Declares He Is Not Fighting the Text-book Bill.

Believes the Measure Will Pass the House—Daily School Revision Bill May Also Pass.

A JOURNAL writer called on State Supt. Ackermann today and asked him to state squarely his position on the Daily text-book bill. The state superintendent of schools said frankly that he was in favor of leaving it to the vote of the thirty-one county superintendents, taking away from him the power to appoint nine to twelve members of a state board of examiners, who have heretofore had a vote on text-books. That was his plan of reforming the law.

Ackermann says the state should have the best books for the least money, and admits that text books under the present law are higher priced than they should be. In conclusion he authorizes THE JOURNAL to say that he is neither personally nor officially fighting the Daily bill in the House, that he is not opposed to the measure and furthermore thinks it is the only bill that can pass, and that the Daily bill will pass the House he has no doubt.

Two members from Douglas county, were approached today with a proposition that if they would vote against the Daily text-book bill they could secure two votes for the Drain Normal school bill. They repudiated the proposition, saying the Drain Normal school bill was Senator Reed's bill and that it would go before the house on its merits. The feeling in the house for the Daily text-book bill is growing stronger and it will get an overwhelming vote if it comes up for passage.

The indications now point to the early passage of the Daily text-book bill and the school revision bill practically without opposition to either. This will be a consummation most devoutly to be wished for.

An understanding has been reached between Senators Kuykendall and Daly by which the Daily school revision bill will be reported with amendments. Senator Kuykendall is satisfied that it is the only way a general school revision bill can pass at this session and his earnest assistance of the author of the Daily revision bill with amendments will ensure the enactment of this much needed codification of the school laws in Oregon.
