GOING---OUR $20,000 STOCK OF DRY Goods and Millinery is going and going very fast. Our advice to persons who are for great big bargains is to call upon us before it is all gone. We never before advertised to sell out and now when we say that our stock and fixtures are to be cleared out within the next sixty days, we mean it. It is a genuine offer--Everything must go. Absolutely no reserve. Our goods are all bright and new and strictly up to date, indeed it is a pity to close them out at the prices we are asking, however I have another proposition in view and it is to my advantage to sell out, otherwise I wouldn't think of it. Dry Goods, Dress Goods, linings, corsets, hosiery, muslin and knit underwear, ribbons, handkerchiefs, gloves, jewelry, laces, pocket books; Stamped linens silk, embroidery, silks, chinaware, glassware and everything in the notion.

LETTER FROM MANILA.

One of the Salem Boys Seems to Be Enjoying Himself.

From a letter received from J. Rex Byars by his parents, Gen. and Mrs. W. H. Byars, of Mehama, we are permitted to make the following extracts. The letter is dated "On the Pasig, near Pasig Island, March 17," and says:

Well, last Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. we left our quarters in the walled city and have since spent our time running natives around the country south of town. We have had quite a little fighting. Only four or five wounded in the regiment so far. I was alone with three companies when a man was shot through the lungs. I fixed him up and he is doing fine. I have been under fire every day more or less, but it never bothered me any. There have been a good many killed of natives and many hundreds wounded * * * There is no chance to be discharged here and if I were, I would of course come home via Europe.

I wouldn't miss this for anything, if it is raining every day. We Oregonians don't mind that. * * * Harry and I are both feeling fine. I enjoy this much more than staying in barracks, and it is much healthier, too. We are living on ducks, ect., foraged from the country. We have a big gobbler at the shack.

It is a pretty fine country out here away from town. A little buzz goes by once in a while. It makes you mad because you can't tell where it comes from. They use smokeless powder, you know.

The Chicago Lady Quartet at the First M. E. Church, April 26.

This celebrated quartet is thus praised by the Denver Republican: "Their quartet singing is simply perfect, and every member is an artist." That this is true is proven by the fact that all who heard these ladies sing in Salem five years years ago are anxious to hear them again. This chance is given to them by the Methodist choir. The concert will be given next Wednesday night, and it is expected that a full house will greet these ladies from great Chicago. The price of tickets is only 50 cents. The box sheet will open at Dearborn's Monday morning, at 8 o'clock. If you will give yourself up to the enjoyment of one of the most delightful musical evenings of your life, secure seats for the Chicago Lady Quartet, M. E church, Wednesday, April 26.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever," so are genuine Carbons made by the Cronise photo studio. 4-21-2

Fred Kleiber Receives a Fatal Kick in the Head.

News reached Salem this morning that Fred Kleiber, residing on the Sears farm in Spring Valley, about six miles from Salem, had at an early hour this morning received what would without doubt prove a fatal injury, through the kick of a horse in the head. When messengers departed for Salem the unfortunate victim was still alive but there was little hope whatever for his recovery. Just how the accident happened is not known. He went to the barn alone to feed the stock. Not returning as usual, his wife went out and found him unconscious with a battered skull. Mr. Kleiber is about 38 years of age and a member of at least one fraternal insurance organization. Kleiber is said to be a member of Protection lodge A. O. U. W.

"The Strenuous Life."

At a banquea given by the Hamilton club in Chicago, Monday evening, at which he was the guest of honor, Governor Theodore Roosvelt, of New York, the hero of San Juan, delivered an address upon the "The Strenuous Life," in which he set out the duties of the nation in handling the problems of the Spanish war in a manner that calls for admiration and inspires renewed confidence in the patriotism of the Colonel of the Rough Riders. He said in conclusion:

The guns that thundered off Manila and Santiago left us echoes of glory, but they also left us a legacy of duty. If we drove out a mediaeval tyranny only to make room for savage anarchy we had better not have begun the task at all. It is worse than idle to say that we have no duty to perform and can leave to their fate the islands we have conquered. Such a course would be the course of infamy. It would be followed at once by utter chaos in the wretched islands themselves. Some stronger, manlier power would have to step in and do the work; and we would have shown ourselves weaklings, unable to carry to successful completion the labors that great and high-spirited nations are eager to undertake. The work must be done. We cannot escape our responsibility, and if we are worth our salt we shall be glad of the chance to do the work—glad of the chance to show ourselves equal to one of the great tasks set for modern civilization.

In the West Indies and the Philippines alike we are confronted by most difficult problems. It is cowardly to shrink from solving them in the proper way; for solved they must be, if not by us, then by some stronger and more manful race. If we are too weak, too selfish or too foolish to solve them, some bolder and abler people must undertake the solution. Personally I am too firm a believer in the greatness of my country and the power of my countrymen to admit for one moment that we shall ever be driven to the ignoble alternatives.

The problems are different for the different islands. Porto Rico is not large enough to stand alone. We must govern it wisely and well, primarily in the interest of its own people. Cuba is, in my judgment, entitled ultimately to settle for itself whether it shall be an independent state or an integral portion of the mightiest of republics. But until order and stable liberty are secured, we must remain in the island to insure them; and infinite tact, judgment, moderation and courage must be shown by our military and civil repeesentatives in keeping the islands pacified, in relentlessly stamping out brigandage, in protecting all alike, and yet in showing proper recognition to the men who fought for Cuban liberty.

The Philippines offer a yet graver problem. Their population includes half-casts and native Christians, warlike Moslems and wild pagans. Many of their people are utterly unfit for self-government and show no signs of becoming fit. Others may in time become fit, but at present can only take part in self-government under a wise supervision at once firm and beneficent. We have driven Spanish tryanny from the islands. If we now let it be replaced by a savage anarchy our work has been for harm and not for good. I have scant patience with those who fear to undertake the task of governing the Philippines, and who openly avow that they do fear to undertake it, or that they shrink from it because of the expense and trouble; but I have scanter patience with those who make a pretense of humanitarianism to hide and cover their timidity and who cant about "liberty" and the "consent of the governed" in order to excuse themselves for their unwillingness to play the part of men. Their doctrines if carried out would make it incumbent upon us to leave the Apaches of Arizona to work out their own salvation and to decline to interfere in a single Indian reservation. Their doctrines condemn your forefathers and mine for ever having settled in these United States.

I preach to you, then, my countrymen, that our country calls not for the life of ease, but for the life of strenuous endeavor. The twentieth century looms before us big with the fate of many nations. If we stand idly by, if we seek merely swollen, slothful ease and ignoble peace, if we shrink from the hard contests where men must win at hazard of their lives and at the risk of all they hold dear, then the bolder and stronger peoples will pass us by and will win for themselves the domination of the world. Let us therefore boldly face the life of strife, resolute to do our duty well and manfully; resolute to uphold righteousness by deed and by word, resolute to be both honest and brave, to serve high ideals, yet to use practical methods. Above all, let us shrink from no strife, moral or physical, within or without the nation, provided we are certain that the strife is justified, for it is only through strife, hard and dangerous endeavor, that we shall ultimately win the goal of true national greatness.

A Special Session

Grandfather's Days

AND NOW-A-DAYS.

XXXX

IN OUR GRANDFATHER'S DAYS EVERY BODY ATTENDED to their own business, but now-a days a great many people attend to other people's business and neglect their own. And therefore a great many are without any business. In our grandfather's days a merchant used to try and serve his customers, whether it was early in the morning or late at night. But now-a-days the customer has to be on hand to the minute or go without the necessary articles, because the stores close at 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

In our grandfather's days the Salem merchants used to do a thriving business, they had money to pay their bills on time.

But now-a-days the majority of them are kicking because times are hard and the weather is bad, but in reality, they make the times bad by not giving their business the attention it deserves, for merchants have no business to make rules and dictate at what hours customers should come to trade but this is how it is nowadays, but in our grandfathers' days the boat could blow the whistle and stop at Salem at any hour, when the boats' crew could come in and buy their goods in Salem that's the time the merchants were healthy and getting wealthy and the people believed they were wise.

In our grandfathers' days very few small stores in the country could exist, because the Salem merchants were alive and they knew how to offer inducement to bring the farmers to town and get their business, but nowadays it is different.

The little country towns are thriving, their merchants hold the trade, get their produce and ship from the stations, while the Salem merchants are asleep, but this is nowadays.

In our grandfathers' days when Friedman traded for produce he paid the farmer the same price for their wares as he sold it to the consumer making only one profit instead of two, on account of it he had to have several delivery wagons delivering the goods to the customers.

At present Friedman can be found at Friedman's New Racket, Corner of State and Commercial streets, Salem, Oregon.

He is also auctioneer and at present the only one paying a reasonable license to the city for that privilege, which he thinks it is proper and right that the city should receive at least two hundred dollars a year, from a person competent to carry on the business of an auctioneer, as there are a number of them in Portland paying at the rate of three hundred dollars per year, and they don't kick, therefore Friedman will not kick at the price and will attend to all auction sales and work reasonable. It pays the people nowadays, as well as it used to in our grandfathers' day to trade at Friedman's, it is where you will find good clothing at reasonable prices for men and boys, hats to fit the man of the Grand Army down to his grandchild, shoes for the most delicate women and dress goods and trimmings in abundance in fact any thing you need you will find at

FRIEDMAN'S NEW RACKET!

Cor. Commercial and State Streets, Salem, Ore.

P. S. While Friedman don't believe in closing the store early in the afternoon, yet he will not take advantage, therefore Friedman's New Racket will continue to close with the balance at 6 o'clock p. m., so long as all of them carrying the same line of goods close. FRIEDMAN.
