175 LIVES.

 between 5 and 7 o'clock. For fully an hour midnight darkness fell over the city, and the sky had all the appearance of a tornado. There was very little wind, however, but an immense volume of water fell, the gauge showing 2.34 inches. So far as learned, little damage other than the flooding of basements and overflowing of pavements resulted from the storm.

A special from Fairbault, Minn., says: The severe storm here today and last night will result in great damage to crops. Straight and Cannon rivers are full and still rising. Lightning struck the feeble-minded school this morning. The occupants were unharmed, but the building was badly damaged.

A message was received from Stevens Point, from A. R. Horn, division superintendent of the Wisconsin Central at that place as follows: "It began raining on the St. Paul division at about 7 o'clock this evening, and the wires went down west of Jewett Mills about 7:30 and about 8:45 we got a message from Robertson, the operator, via Marshall, that a cyclone had struck New Richmond about 7:30, killing from 250 to 500 people."

"We have started a special out from Irvine, leaving at 10 o'clock, with surgeons, and to pick up what other surgeons they can between there and New Richmond. Also sent section men from Jewett Mills with what help they can carry on their cars. I will leave here on a special as soon as I can get a crew out, and will take all the assistance I can get in the way of surgeons. Am trying to get St. Paul to start a special from that end."

A second message from Mr. Horn reads: "Party just came to Jewett Mills and reports that Dr. Ware was killed and Dr. Epley has both legs broken, and that they are in much need of doctors. This received at 10 o'clock. Don't you think we should start a special from Milwaukee with nurses and surgeons?"

A special from La Crosse says: The worst rain storm in 17 years swept over this section last night and today. Nearly five inches of rain fell. It came down in sheets, doing great damage to railroad property. All railroad communication, except on the Burlington from South Dubuque and Southern Minnesota division of the Milwaukee line, is off. Fifty families in Northern La Crosse were compelled to desert their homes in boats, and the water is still rising. Over 100 head of livestock were drowned. Nearly every bridge in the La Crosse river valley is gone.

A dispatch was received at 2 o'clock this morning from Jewett Mills, announcing the arrival there of the Wisconsin Central train. A Mr. Cutter, in the employ of the Central, sent a dispatch to the local offices of the road, saying that the town of New Richmond was gone south of Highway bridge, and that the estimated number of killed will reach 150. Many of the houses, Mr. Cutter states, were consumed by fire after the cyclone. Many people were killed, he says, while attending a circus, which was showing there.

Dr. C. H. Mack was seen last evening driving his 20-months old Bellfounder filly, being only the second time she has been driven. This is one of the best bred colts in Oregon and will be trained in due time, and many good judges of trotting horses proclaim her to be one of the finest specimens of this famous string.

Albert M. Grilley, former secretary of the Salem Y. M. C. A. arrived last night from Alaska after a two years' absence in the gold fields. He returned to his home in Silverton today.

Jacob Klootz, of Sublimity, who went to Dayton last week to visit an old friend of his, named A. K. Wirtz, who was quite sick, got there too late. He had already died.

Miss E. B. Aldridge arrived in Salem Saturday direct from Cannes France, where she sailed May 24th to make her home in Oregon. She is the only sister of Mrs. A. Hopf.

E. C. Giltner, nephew of Senator McBride and his private secretary and clerk of the committee of which Mr. McBride is chairman, is visiting in St. Helens.

Mrs. George Mack and daughter Helen of Joseph, arrived on last night's overland train to visit their mother Mrs. M. N. Chapman and sister Mrs. Lot L. Pearce.

Rev. and Mrs. F. B. Williams, Rev. Mrs. Kyle and Mrs. J. F. Harritt went to Oregon City this afternoon to attend the annual United Brethren conference.

Mr. Charlie Sorber, who has lately arrived from the east, went to Monmouth this morning to take charge of some contract work being done there.

Miss Lella Parrish, who has been the guest of Miss Charlotte Hollebrand, returned to her home in Monmouth last evening.

B. A. Cooper and family, who have spent the winter here with her sister, Mrs. D. L. Fiester, have returned to South Dakota.

E. J. Cross, a Salem's painter and house decorator, drove to Monmouth this morning to close a contract in his line.

Miss Midge Dunn, of Dayton, arrived via steamer last evening and is visiting her sister Mrs. H. L. Pratt.

Miss Mabel Monroe, who has been visiting Miss Perry in the city returned to Portland yesterday.

W. E. Sorber, of this city, drove over to Monmouth this morning attending to some contract work.

Miss Nellie Ramsey and Miss Fern Stout returned to their home in McMinnville.

THE NEXT SPEAKER.

An Appreciative Sketch of Hon. D. B. Henderson of Iowa.
 Henderson of Iowa.
 A Biography and Pen-Picture of the Thirty-Third Speaker of the House.

A special to the Chicago Times-Herald says: David Brommer Henderson, probable successor of Thomas Brackett Reed as speaker of the house of representatives, is the man of whom a brother congressman said:

"He has the exultant buoyancy and hopefulness, Garfield said: he is as young and healthy-souled as if he were still looking at the rose-misted hills of life with the morning sun new-risen upon them."

And said his eulogist: "He knows the house and men as Blaine did. His ascendancy is due to his tact, his fullness of resources, his courage, his easy assumption of leadership, his prudence, his good will, his sanity of judgment, his good comradeship. He knows what he can and what he cannot do. He never affects the foliage of omniscience."

Yet again said this man who knew him: "He will swear with all the pious Scotch damnatory unctious of John Knox at the Democratic members for their resistance to Reed's rules, and then he will pass along one of the aisles on Democratic side and the members will rise up to greet him as if he were the cherished pride of the household."

His life has been a fighting one. The right kind of combativeness is uppermost in his nature. He was once called a "Lorna Doone" kind of a fighter, and the term will be well appreciated by those who know what kind of a fighter that is. He has been 17 years in congress, hailing from the third district of Iowa, Dubuque being his home, and the Democrats of that Democratic town indorsing what he does just about as cordially as do the enthusiastic Republicans. This is a high tribute to the man's abilities, for Colonel Henderson stands for about everything in the Republican party that the Democrats hate. He is for a protective tariff, for sound money, for a broad national policy, was a waver of the "bloody shirt" until changed conditions demanded a more conciliatory policy, has cordially supported the president and never lost an opportunity to attack and score Democratic fallacies.

He is 59 years old, and he can never be president of the United States, because he was born in Old Deer, Scotland, in 1840. His parents removed with him to the United States when he was 6 years old, and settled in Illinois. He remained in that state until 1849, when they passed on to Iowa, and that has been his home ever since. His boyhood was spent on a farm, and he secured his education at the same time that poverty was knocking at the door. After being graduated from the Upper Iowa university, he was prepared for the law, but the civil war called him to the army, and he enlisted as a private in the Twelfth Iowa infantry in September, 1861. He was commissioned a first lieutenant before he reached the front, and at Fort Donelson was taken from the field with his jaw broken. He gained a captaincy, and in 1862 was badly wounded in the foot that amputation was necessary. Since that several other operations have been performed on that leg, until it has been practically taken off, and the congressman walks with crutches.

In congress he has been chairman of the committee on rules, in the absence of Speaker Reed, and is also chairman of the judiciary committee, two positions which have given him excellent opportunity to fit for the chair of the speaker. In the house the committee on rules takes much the place of the cabinet in the English and Continental governments. As a legislator Colonel Henderson has a wide reputation as chairman of the judiciary committee, which passes upon every measure of constructive law, and everything going to the jury or jurisdictional policy, everything going to the organic legal structure of the nation. No bill is considered, no measure acted upon, no question comes to a vote, unless he and his four associates on the committee on rules so decree. Keeping the house in relation with the committee, from the standpoint of the floor, falls largely upon Colonel Henderson. No other man in the body probably could do it so well as he. When General Grant rode along the picket lines, both the Union and Confederate guards turned out and saluted him. Colonel Henderson commands that kind of respect from his friends and his opponents. He has no rancor. He makes no animosities. Even his critics pay this tribute to him:

"He is an American of Americans; a type of that composite citizenship which is the American people, and in view of which so great a thinker as Herbert Spencer concluded that with all our faults America will be in the future the chief of all nations."

Colonel Henderson is noted in Iowa as one of the best trial lawyers in the state, because of his ability to win juries. He could earn two or three times as much from practice as his seat in congress pays, but the fighting fever is in his blood, and the fascination of Washington is over his senses. He enjoys his biennial battle for political life, and the perennial just with Democrats at the national capital is as breath to his nostrils.

The colonel often pours oratorical vitriol upon the Democrats of the house, but he is personally popular among them. In the midst of biting remarks he takes out much of the sting by calling his political opponents "brothers," in a conciliatory tone. When he has finished one of these speeches he is likely to be seen going about on Democratic side of the house putting his arm around the necks of congressmen and "brothering" up to them in a hearty, friendly way. It is a trick of the house to throw his maimed leg over his desk and then hitch along by inches until he has slid around three sides. When aroused he speaks with much vehemence, shakes his bovine head with vigor and drowns the noisy house in his bursts of eloquence.

Colonel Henderson's force has made him a recognized leader for many years. He has always championed legislation in the interest of the old soldiers, and has loyally backed measures for liberal pensions. As the chairman of the bankruptcy bills, and bankruptcy law now on the statute books is credited chiefly to his learning as a lawyer and his ability as a manager on the floor of the house.

Colonel Henderson, like Speaker Reed, was opposed to intervening in Cuba. He voted for the $50,000,000 defense fund, but said he did not believe war would follow. When the conflict became inevitable there was no more loyal patriot than the gallant veteran from Iowa, and as speaker he will be as zealous a supporter of the administration in the future as in the past.

FORWARD--Of appendicitis, at home in Silverton on June 12, 1899. Frank R. Forward, aged 24 years.

THE G. A. R.

SHOULD BE AT PEACE WITH ALL OTHER ORGANIZATIONS.

THEY have done enough, and are still doing, and they ever will do patriotic service to their country and good deeds to their fellow men.

Their yearly Memorial, or commonly called Decoration Day, is commendable in itself. That they cherish the memory of their departed comrades is similar to the custom of the Hebrews that the anniversary of the death of one of their near relatives, they light a wax taper or light an oil lamp and continue it burning for twenty-four hours, and they abstain from pleasure and offer up prayers for the dead, for that time and mourn for their departed relatives.

Therefore the G. A. R. have taken their symbols from an old religious custom that has been in existence from time immemorial, yet their patriotic custom has not in any way injured the Hebrew custom and it therefore seems to me that the G. A. R. has set a good pattern and if any organization that is organized for good and moral purposes or for charitable institutions should adopt their custom and decorate the graves of their departed friends it can never cheapen the organization of the G. A. R., because their devotion to their country is well known and there is no good citizen but will respect their acts and deeds forever.

Let all follow their example who want to, even if the relative or friend of a dead convict should decorate his grave it will not hurt the heroes who have saved our country and are still doing it. And there may be good reasons why other benevolent institutions may take advantage of decoration day.

For instance a laborer or a clerk who belongs to some benevolent organization can't always leave his post or place of business, and on Decoration Day, the most of the manufacturers abstain from labor and many merchants close their place of business, that would give the clerks a chance that does not belong to the G. A. R. to pattern after them and other organizations on that day.

Respectfully submitted for the perusal of the Grand Army of the Republic and their friends by a rejected volunteer, or he would have been a G. A. R.
