Exposing the Record

Post Oxford Tribune: The Salem CAPITAL JOURNAL has compiled a series of statistical tables showing just how each member of the late legislature voted on every question that came before either the special or regular session at Salem last winter. Last week the first of the series appeared, showing how each member of the house of representatives voted at the special session, and how often, in the opinion of the Jour-NAL each was right or wrong. The scheme is a good one, and every man who wants to know the record of any member should possess himself of the series-it would come handy as a table of reference in campaigns of the future.
