MORTGAGE NOTES.

Held to Be Assessable in the Opinion Attorney-General PAre notes secured by mortgage subset to assessment and taxation when held by resident owners?"

This question was recently propounded to Attorney-General Blackburn by J. W. Hobart, D. P. Burton and A. B. Alexander, a committee appointed for the purpose by the convention of judges, commissioners and assessors recently held in answer questions submitted by county officers, but answers in this case because the question is one in which the state and citizens of the state are directly interested. He says in part: An answer to your question involves the condideration of section 1 of article 9 of the constitution of the state, and of sections 2729, 2731 and 2732 of Hill's Annotated Laws, and perhaps, some othersection thereof.

empting these excepted classes," The classes of property exempted are such only as are used for municipal, educational, literwry, scientific, religious or charitable purposes," In section 2731 of the code, in the definition of personal property is included 'all debts due or to become due from solvent debtors, whether on account, contract, note, mortgage or otherwise," etc. "The debt which the note evidences, and the mortgage to secure it, are intangible property and follow the person of the owner." Sections 2741 and 2742 are also quoted by Judge Blackburn.

some of the assessors have been assessing notes secured by mortgage and others have not. The doubt as to whether such are taxable seems to have arisen because of the repeal of the mortgage tax law. Under the opinion made public tolay, the face of a mortgage debt is tax able now as much as under the old mort-tax as he second that in case of mort-tax as he second that in case of mortgage tax law, except that in case of non-resident owners of the notes. Only notes held by residents of the can state
