CONVICT CAPTURED.

Trustless Trusty John Downing Taken Near Jefferson.

Constable Hudelson and a Posse Deliver Their Man and Get the Reward.

John Downing, the trusty convict of the Oregon State Penitentiary who ran away Friday, was captured near Jefferson Sunday afternoon and delivered at the prison at 10 o'clock Monday.

The capture was effected by City Marshal W. A. Hudelson and a posse, and the warrant for $100 offered as reward was made out to him, but will probably be divided between several who assisted in the capture.

Downing was first seen by Frank Looney about half past twelve by the Jefferson and Green bridges. He had got rid of his prison suit and wore an old ragged suit that was a pretty complete disguise. But for the close description given of him in the circular of the prison officials and printed in this paper it is not likely he would have been recognized. Marshal Hudelson started after the convict on a bicycle heavily armed and soon had the man under arrest.

He offered very little resistance and was brought to town in a buggy by W. F. Jones, who with Looney and Hudelson shared in the honor of the capture.

HOW HE ESCAPED. Downing escaped July 28th. He had been employed that day working in the hayfield, although he was one of the road gang. He got away by telling the driver of the hay wagon that he had left his fork in the field and wanted to go after it, and meet the driver at the gate. He immediately took the road. Supt. Lee sent messages to a complete circuit of all the surrounding towns and would have been almost impossible for him to get away. The Jefferson boys deserve credit for their clever capture and Downing will lose all credit he had at the prison, will now have to serve his full term and get some severe punishment besides.

BROKEN AXLE.

J. C. Booth Sees the Advantage of Acquiring His Horse's Confidence.

While J. C. Booth was returning from Melama, Saturday night, the forward axle of his buggy broke just as he reached Turner. The buggy pitched forward, Mr. Booth was pinned down in the wreck by the buggy top. Fortunately his horse displayed intelligence and good training by stopping and standing quietly until Mr. Booth extricated himself, none the worse for his tumble. He was delayed until a new axle could be procured from Salem.

MILITARY AFFAIRS.

Oregon National Guard Invited to Help Receive Dewey.

Plan By Which Salem Can Secure the Presence of the Second Oregon Regiment.

Governor Gees received an invitation today to have the entire Oregon National guard and Naval Reserve of Oregon, or as much thereof as can be present attend the reception to be tendered Admiral Dewey in New York on his return to this country. But they are to come at their own expense.

Portland has firmly but courteously declined to have the Second Oregon regiment come there in a body and parade, conditional upon General Summers' offer that their travelling expenses home be guaranteed. Portland influences have also declared that not a dollar of the state military fund shall be used for the Second Oregon.

A prominent military man suggests that if Salem would raise money enough to pay the expenses home of the volunteers living at Albany, Eugene, Roseburg and Ashland, that the entire regiment can be seen on parade at Salem. It is estimated that about $600 would be required. If Salem raise that money and get the whole regiment here it would be a grand scoop on Portland.

To judge from the tone of the stuff sent out from Portland it is "all out in a thousand ways" with the reception of the Oregon volunteers at Portland. Because they preferred their travel pay and a discharge at 'Frisco, the excessive cordiality of the webfoot metropolis will be extended with Alaskan fur gloves. The Portland military push have announced that not a dollar of the state military fund shall be expended on the homecoming volunteers. That fund is to be used up on the Colonels and Generals who are drawing salaries on the skeleton remains of the national guard and who have no other visible means of maintaining their fierce and warlike existence.

Contracts Signed and Bonds Approved.

The School Board of District No. 24 held a special meeting Saturday night, when contracts were closed with and bonds accepted from the respective successful bidders for material and labor for painting the school houses. All were satisfactory, except the Eugene firm of Hurley and Jenkins, who objected to the form of contract demanded by the board. They asked for several modifications but as everything did not look all right to the board, that body asked that they sign a contract like that of the other bidders by 7:30 Tuesday evening or forfeit the same.
