PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

and vegetables are imported from all parts of the U. S. Under this encouragement the sugar beet factory multiplies in the north and far west, semi-tropical plants are sent to the south and congenial climates are sought for the choice productions of the far east. The hybridizing of fruit trees and grains is conducted in the search for varieties adapted to exacting conditions. The introduction of tea gardens into the southern states promises to provide employment for idle hands as well as to supply the home market with tea. The subject of irrigation where it is of vital importance to the people is being carefully studied, steps are being taken to reclaim injured or abandoned lands and information for the people along those lines is being printed and distributed. Markets are being sought and opened up for surplus farm and factory products in Europe and Asia. The outlook for the education of the young farmer through agricultural, college experiment stations with opportunity given to specialize in the department of agriculture, is very promising. The people of Hawaii, Puerto Pico and the Philippine islands have been helped by the establishment of experiment stations to a more scientific knowledge of the production of coffee, India rubber and other tropical products for which there is demand in the U. S.

Good Roads.

There is widespread interest in the improvement of our public highways at the present time and the department of agriculture is co-operating with the people in each locality in making the best possible roads from the local material and in experimenting with steel tracks.

Paris Exposition.

Throughout the U. S. a very extensive and complete exhibit of the agricultural and horticulture products of the U. S. is being prepared for the Paris exposition.

The Peace With Spain.

On the 10th of December 1898, the treaty of peace between the U. S. and Spain was signed. It provided among other things that Spain should cede to the U. S. the archipelago known as the Philippine islands, that the U. S. should pay to Spain the sum of $20,000, and that the civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants of the territories thus ceded to the U. S. should be determined by the congress. The treaty was ratified by the senate on the 6th of February, 1899 and by the government of Spain on the 19th of March following. The ratifications were exchanged on the 11th of April, and the treaty publicly proclaimed. On the 2d of March, the congress voted the sum contemplated by the treaty and the amount was paid over to the Spanish government on the first of May.

We Accept the Philippines.

In this manner the Philippines came to the U. S. The islands were ceded by the government of Spain which had been in undisputed possession of them for centuries. They were accepted not merely by our authorized commissioners in Paris under the direction of the executive but by the constitutional and well considered action of the representatives of the people of the U. S. in both houses of congress. I had every reason to believe and I still believe that this transfer of sovereignty was in accordance with the wishes and the aspirations of the great mass of the Filipino people. From the earliest moment no opportunity was lost of assuring the people of the islands of our ardent desire for their welfare and of the intention of this government to do everything possible to advance their interests.

Our Good Offices.

In my order of the 19th of May, 1898, the commander of the military expedition dispatched to the Philippines was instructed to declare that we came not to make war on the people of the country, "nor upon any part or faction among them, but to protect them in their homes, in their employments and in their personal and religious rights." That there should be no doubt as to the paramount authority there. On the 17th of August, it was directed that "there must be no joint occupation with the insurgents;" that the U. S. must preserve the peace and protect persons and property within the territory occupied by their military and naval forces; that the insurgents and all others must recognize the military occupation and authority of the U. S. As early as December 4, before the cession and in anticipation of that event the commander in Manila was urged to restore peace and tranquility, and to undertake the establishment of a beneficent government, which should afford the fullest security for life and property. On the 21st of December, after the treaty was signed, the commander of the forces of occupation was instructed "to announce and proclaim in the most public manner that we come, not as invaders and conquerors, but as friends to protect the natives in their homes, in their employments and in their personal and religious rights."

Wanted No War.

The same day while ordering Gen. Otis to see that peace should be preserved in Ilo Ilo, he was admonished that: "It is most important that there should be no conflict with the insurgents. On the first day of January, 1899, your general orders were reiterated that the kindly intentions of this government should be in every possible way communicated to the insurgents." On the 21st, of January, I announced my intention of dispatching to Manila a commission composed of three gentlemen of the highest character and distinction, thoroughly acquainted with the orient, who, in association with Admiral Dewey and Major Gen. Otis were instructed to "facilitate the most humane and effective extension of authority throughout the island and to secure with the least possible delay the benefits of a wise and generous protection of life and property to the inhabitants."

The Commission.

These gentlemen were Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell university, the Hon. Charles Denby, for many years minister to China, and Prof. Dean C. Worcester, of the university of Michigan, who had made a most carful study of life in the Philippines. While the treaty of peace was under consideration in the senate these commissioners set out on their mission of good will and liberation. Their character was a sufficient guaranty of the beneficient purpose with which they went, even if they had not borne the positive instructions of this government which made their errand perminently one of peace and friendship. But before their arrival at Manila the sinister ambition of a few leaders of the Filipinos had created a situation full of embarrassments for us and most grievous in its consequences to themselves.

Their Report.

The clear and impartial preliminary report of the commissioners which I transmit herewith, gives so lucid and comprehensive a history of the present insurrectionary movement that the story need not be here repeated. It is enough to say that the claim of the rebel leader that he was promised independence by any officer of the U. S. in return for his assistance has no foundation and is catagorically denied by the very witnesses who were called to prove it. The most the insurgent leader hoped for when he came back to Manila was the liberation of the islands from the Spanish control which they had been laboring for years without success to throw off. The prompt accomplishment of this work by the American army and navy gave him other ideas and ambitions and insidious suggestions from various quarters perverted the purposes and intentions with which he had taken up arms. No sooner had our army captured Manila than the Filipinos forces began to assume an attitude of suspicion and hostility which the utmost efforts of our officers and troops were unable to disarm or modify. Their kindness and forbearance was taken as a proof of cowardice. The aggression of the Filipinos continually increased until finally just before the time set for the senate of the U. S. to vote upon the treaty an attack, evidently prepared in advance, was made all along the American lines which resulted in a terribly destructive and sanguinary repulse of the insurgents.

A Barbarous Order.

Ten days laser an order of the insurgant government, was issued to its adherents who had remained in Manila of which General Otis justly observes that "for barbarous intent it is unequalled in modern times." It directs that at 8 o'clock on the night of the 4th of February, the territorial militia shall come together on the streets of San Pedro, armed with their Bolos, with guns and ammunition where convenient; that Filipino families only shall be respected; but that all other individuals of whatever race they may be shall be exterminated without any compassion, after the extermination of the army of occupation, and adds: "Brothers we must avenge ourselves on the Americans and exterminate them that we may take our revenge for the infamies and treacheries which they have committed upon us. Have no compassion upon them; attack with vigor."

The Uprising Quelled.

A copy of this fell, by good fortune, into the hands of our officers and they were able to take measures to control the rising, which was actually attempted on the night of February 22, a week later than was originally contemplated. A considerable number of armed insurgents entered the city by waterways and swamps and, in concert with confederates inside, attempted to destroy Manila by fire. They were kept in check during the night and the next day driven out of the city with heavy loss.

Could Not Surrender Manila.

This was the unhappy condition of affairs which confronted our commissioners on their arrival in Manila. They had come with the hope and intention of co-operation with Admiral Dewey and Major-General Otis in establishing peace and order in the archipelago, and the largest measure of self-government compatible with the true welfare of the people. What they actually found can best be set forth in their own words: "Deplorable as war is, the one in which we are now engaged was unavoidable by us. We were attacked by a bold, adventurous and enthusiastic army. No alternative was left to us except ignominous retreat. It is not to be conceived of that any American would have sanctioned the surrender of Manila to the insurgents. Our obligations to other nations and to the friendly Filipinos and to ourselves and our flag demanded that force should be met by force. Whatever the future of the Philippines may be, there is no course open to us now except the prosecution of the war until the insurgents are reduced to submission. The commission is of the opinion that there has been no time since the destruction of the Spanish squadron by Admiral Dewey when it was possible to withdraw our forces from the islands either with honor to ourselves or with safety to the inhabitants."

Rebellion Must Cease.

The course thus clearly indicated has been unflinchingly pursued. The rebellion must be put down. Civil government cannot be thoroughly established until order is restored. With a devotion and gallantry worthy of its most brilliant history, the army ably and loyally assisted by the navy has carried on its unwelcome but most righteous campaign with richly deserved success. The noble self sacrifice with which our soldiers and sailors whose terms of service had expired refused to avail themselves of their right to return home as long as they were needed at the front forms one of the brightest pages in our annals. Although their operations have been somewhat interrupted and checked by a rainy season of unusual violence and duration they have gained ground steadily in every direction and now look forward confidently to a speedy completion of their task. The unfavored circumstances connected with an active campaign have not been permitted to interfere with

The Ordinary Sleeper--A New Feature in Western Travel.

The Pullman Company now operates two grades of sleeping cars via the Rio Grande Western Railway. The ordinary sleepers are entirely new, and the berths, both upper and lower, are fitted up complete with mattresses, blankets, sheets, pillows, curtains, etc., with stoves arranged for making tea, coffee, etc., requiring nothing to be furnished by passengers. Uniformed pullman porters are in charge of the cars, who are required to keep them in good order and attend to the wants and comforts of passengers. The cars are very handsome and commodious, and while not so elegant, are just as comfortible as standard or palace sleepers. Both first and second-class passengers are permitted to occupy these cars on payment of the Pullman berth rates, which are less than half of the rates charged in the regular palace sleeping cars.

The ordinary sleepers are carried daily on trains via Rio Grande Western Railway between Denver and San Francisco and Portland. On five days in each week the sleepers are run through between Los Angeles and San Francisco, or Portland and Denver, Omaha, Chicago and Boston.

Salt Lake City--An Important Factor in Transcontinental Travel.

No one crossing the continent can afford to cut Salt Lake City from his route. The attractions of the place, including the Mormon Temple, Tabernacle and Church institutions, the Great Salt Lake—dead and denser than the Dead Sea in the Holy Land—the picturesque environment and the Warm Sulphur and Hot Springs, are greater to the square yard than any locality on the American continent.

The Rio Grande Western Railway, connecting on the East with the Denver & Rio Grande and Colorado Midland Railways and on the West with the Southern Pacific (Central Route) and Oregon Short Line, is the only transcontinental line passing directly through Salt Lake City. The route through Salt Lake City via the Rio Grande Western Railway is famous all the year round. On account of the equable climate of Utah and Colorado it is just as popular in winter as in summer. Send to J. D. Mansfield, 253 Washington St., Portland; or Geo. W. Heintz, Acting General Passenger Agent, Salt Lake City, for a copy of "Salt Lake City—the City of the Saints."
