Democratic Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The National Democratic Committee is in session here today and will decide upon the place of holding the next National Convention. New Yorkers are making a determined effort to secure it and urged that the presence of the convention in New York will be the means of harmonizing the several conflicting elements, and will remove the prejudice that exist against the East on the part of many of the active Democratic workers of the South and West. It is also urged by New York Democrats who are active in the movement to secure the convention for the commercial metropolis that Bryan would be materially benefited by having the Convention in New York, especially if, as now seems highly probable, he is to be the standard bearer in the national campaign. Many other cities are putting forth their claims among which are, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago and Kansas City.

POLITICS IN LINN COUNTY.

The Reform Forces Are All Anti-Imperialists.

A Prominent Silver Republican Writes to the Journal From Sodaville as Follows.

I herewith send a postal order for the DAILY CAPITAL JOURNAL for one year.

The JOURNAL is altogether acceptable here on the money question.

All of the reformers here are anti-imperialists that I am acquainted with, and I think that they are much stronger now than at this time last year.

We believe that the same power that established the gold standard is the bone and sinew of the Philippine bushwhacking—I will not call it war.

We cheerfully accept your position on the war, and believe that England patted McKinley on the back and gave him great encouragement in this Philippine bushwhacking in order to accomplish the job that they are engaged in—robbing the Boers.

England gave us the gold standard. She also gave us our Philippine disturbance, that she might subdue the Boers. When will we cease dancing at her piping. Had our hands not been tied, the Boer war would not have occurred. Every man has a right to his own views. I am not offering these remarks upon the grounds of criticism.

The great national campaign of 1900 is at the door and it will be met with McKinley, the gold standard and imperialism, on one side; Bryan, bimetallism and anti-imperialism on the other.

Your paper is in a position to do more for the reform work in Oregon than any other published in the state, and I hope that you may see your way clear to give your undivided support. But as I stated before, I do not question an individual's right to promulgate his sentiments.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.

School Board Fills the Vacancy and Transacts Other Business.

The school board met last evening in regular session, all members being present except Director Davidson. A number of bills were allowed and some routine business transacted.

The resignation of Prof. J. O. Hall was received and accepted. This leaving the Central School without a principal, the board authorized Mrs. A. H. Dodd, the primary teacher of that school, to take charge at a salary of $55 per month.

The following named teachers made formal application for the vacancy created. Prof. W. H. Brinkerhoff, Prof. Baker, Misses Pearl Kress and Pearl Applegate. Upon a ballot being taken to fill the vacancy, Miss Bertha Byrd, a regular substitute teacher, was duly elected, she receiving three votes and Miss Applegate one.

Director Cherrington favored employing a male principal at $70 per month, but the remainder of the board favored the plan adopted.

The clerk was instructed to secure from the county clerk a summary of the assessment roll to be used as a basis for the forthcoming tax levy, which is to be made at a meeting called for that purpose Monday evening, Jan. 29th at the city hall.

The report of C. E. Bruce, one of the enumerators of school district No. 24, was filed. In that portion of the district covered by him which includes all except that part lying between State street on the south and Mill creek on the north, the total number of children of school age is 1407, males 737, females 730. The other enumerator W. H. Savage has not yet reported.

JOURNAL "X RAY"

Quay is still quaking.

Improvement and progress should be the watchword for Salem's schools and school interests.

One state institution boasts of its excellent climate. The state probably furnishes plenty of good wood.

An Exchange has an editorial entitled: "Quay's end in sight," but the article fails to reveal anything further.

The poor printer is catching it, too. The paper trust has raised the price of paper stock 20 to 60 per cent.—Courier.

Independence profited by Salem's experience the past year—she went with a little less light and reduced her indebtedness.

While so many people are too poor to attend college, let us have that people's college which all can afford to attend—the high school.

An exchange truly says: "All is not friendship for the Boers that calls itself by that name. A considerable part is hatred for England."

Nothing would advance Salem so rapidly as the reputation for having the best public schools and high school in Oregon, and she can easily have it.

The JOURNAL is not gaining "a hundred subscribers a day," but it gains a few every week and it holds them. The longer they have it the better they like it.

The mouthpieces of the trusts say prosperity is surely here, because no railroad failures are reported nowadays. True, none since the 20 per cent. freight raise.

Small boy to Sunday school teacher: "Please, sir, I swallowed my penny; what shall I do?"

Salem S. S. teacher: "Why, cough up, of course."

England has never considered food stuff as contraband of war, but when it's found going into the Transvaal, even the big German vessels must be overhauled to stop the traffic.

The nasty fusion administration in Nebraska is forcing the railroad companies to restore carload rates for the incursions "pound rate" system with which the companies have been robbing the public.

One who speaks from a recent and experience says that the answer to "Why do not men go to church?" is that they don't want to take chances on being jammed against the wall by a woman who has had strong onions for supper.

Engene Guard:—A Yaquina Bay sand collector has presented the Portland free museum a collection of twenty-seven kinds of sand handomely inclosed in a glass tube. The sand possessed by the keepers of the summer resort hotels of Yaquina is not included in the lot. Some of that sand, together with a sample bill, would add greatly to the interest of the collection.

THE ILLUSION.

"What beautiful peaches!" said an old lady as she stopped at a stall in the market and admired a basket of the choice fruit. They were covered with a pink gauze and looked very tempting indeed.

The old lady bought the peaches and took them home. The next day she appeared again at the stall and showed the stall keeper a small piece of pink veiling.

"Do you keep that kind of veiling for sale?" she asked.

"Well," she said, "when I took those peaches home they were small and sour and green, and I thought if I could get some of that veiling that made them look so pretty and plump in the basket I'd wear it myself. If it would improve me as much as it did the peaches, people would think I'd found the elixir of youth."—London Fun.

SOME QUEER TASTES.

He put his fingers in the open iron-work of the hotel lamp-post to steady his weak knees, wiped the rain from his face with a shaking hand and fixed an uncertain eye on the windows of the dining room. He was very drunk. His face was pale and hairy. The thin rain had soaked his rags. Inside the dining room well groomed men and showy women sat in a glory of tinted lights, in a room beautified with table flowers, shining with silver and cut glass, warm with crimson walls, damask curtains, plush carpets. They lifted delicate food to solemn faces. They smiled formally. The dripping observer kept his watery eye on them. "Well," he said, in a voice of generous pity, "suppose they're enjoy'ng' selves—in 'thru' away."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

How a Lion Charges.

A lion's first signs of anger are as follows: Its tail rapidly twists from side to side, the bottom slightly raising and the black tassel at the end beating the air; it lowers its head more than usual and growls, at intervals showing its teeth. Then its voice becomes louder, it roars, shows its teeth and lowers its ears, the movements of the tail increasing all the time.

At the time of charging—that is, at the height of its anger—the tail rises in the air until it is almost vertical, the black tassel continues to move, the ears are flattened completely, and the animal comes toward you at a slow trot, then at a gallop, and finally springs forward with open mouth and extended claws.

Sometimes it shows these various symptoms without charging, restrained by prudence, but it never charges without showing them. When the tail rises the hunter can bring his rifle to the shoulder and await his opportunity. In hunting, a man who is on his guard is worth four.

A charge is extremely dangerous, almost always fatal when unexpected, either because of the dense vegetation or other causes, but if you see the animal getting ready flight is useless. Stand your ground. The only thing to do is to keep cool and trust in your weapon. If you have no confidence in yourself it is prudent to avoid measuring your strength against these animals.

Bread For Horses.

A delivery wagon of one of the big bread baking factories stopped in front of an up town livery and boarding stable, and two men at once unloaded barrels of bread and carried them into the stable. The bread looked good and was good. There were all sorts and sizes of loaves in the barrels—"home-made," "rye," "Vienna," "potato," "granum" and "cottage."

The curiosity of a man who saw the bread being delivered to the stable was aroused, and he ventured to ask the proprietor of the stable what it meant.

"There's nothing remarkable about it," said the proprietor with a laugh. "I simply buy it for horse feed. We grind the bread up and mix it with other feed, and it makes first class food for horses. It is stale bread and costs us 40 cents a barrel, and there are 50 or 60 loaves to the barrel, so you see it comes pretty cheap. Some of the bread is only a day old and is good enough for any man to eat, but the bread factories cannot sell it. What you see here are returned loaves from the grocers."—New York Journal.
